Fumilayo Rita

Pride - self pride, school pride and international pride - fills the heart of Fumilayo Rita. The 21 year old native of Lisbon,Portugal has been at UL Lafayette for three years and has found it be rewarding.

"I have had the opportunity to grow as a person and get to know diverse groups of people from different countries, religions and sexualities," Rita, a senior in microbiology, said. Her experiences have allowed her to "exchange ideas and learn."

Able to write and speak seven different languages - Portuguese, French, English, Spanish, Italian and two African languages - Rita takes pleasure in meeting new people.

"I love UL Lafayette and have pride for UL Lafayette," Rita stated. She was a member of the 2001 homecoming court and actively participates in school events and organizations.

She serves as Omega Phi Alpha pledge educator, Up Til Dawn entertainment chair and International Student Council entertainment consultant. Over the years, she has found involvement in the National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ), National Society of Black Engineers (NSBE), Judo Club, Karate Club, Union Program Council (UPC) and others.

Rita enjoys spending time at the Office of International Affairs. "I feel like I am home. We talk, eat and I cut up," Rita laughed.

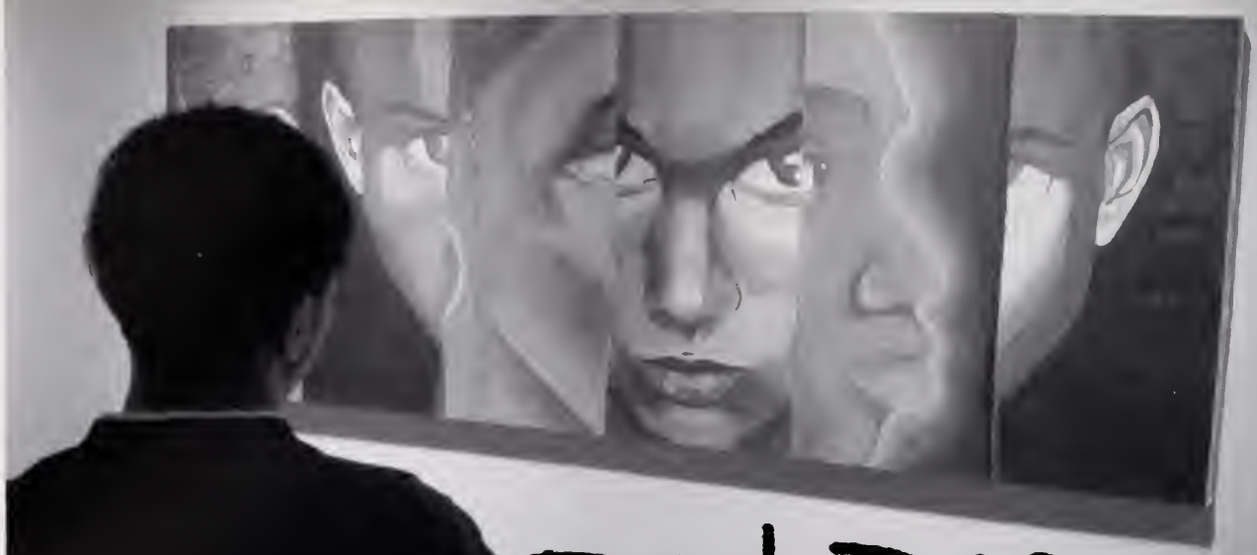

When asked about future plans, Rita said, "I want to work for the United Nations as a climax of my career and to be in countries during wars to help people."

Hours pass and with them memories mount. In reference to time, Rita said, "I just take it day by day."

Miss UL Pagent

Michelle Desormeaux

Submitted by Perfect Son

A woman of great talent is the best way to describe Michelle Desormeaux. Twenty-two-year old Desormeaux was crowned Miss UL Lafayette in the 2002 Miss UL pageant.

"My mom was the one who asked me to enter this pageant," said Desormeaux, who did not have any plans to enter the competition.

Desormeaux, a general studies major, is no stranger to the stage and spotlight. She has participated in many pageants throughout the past four years. Last year she placed in the top 12 in the Miss Louisiana USA pageant. Since then, she was determined to compete once again.

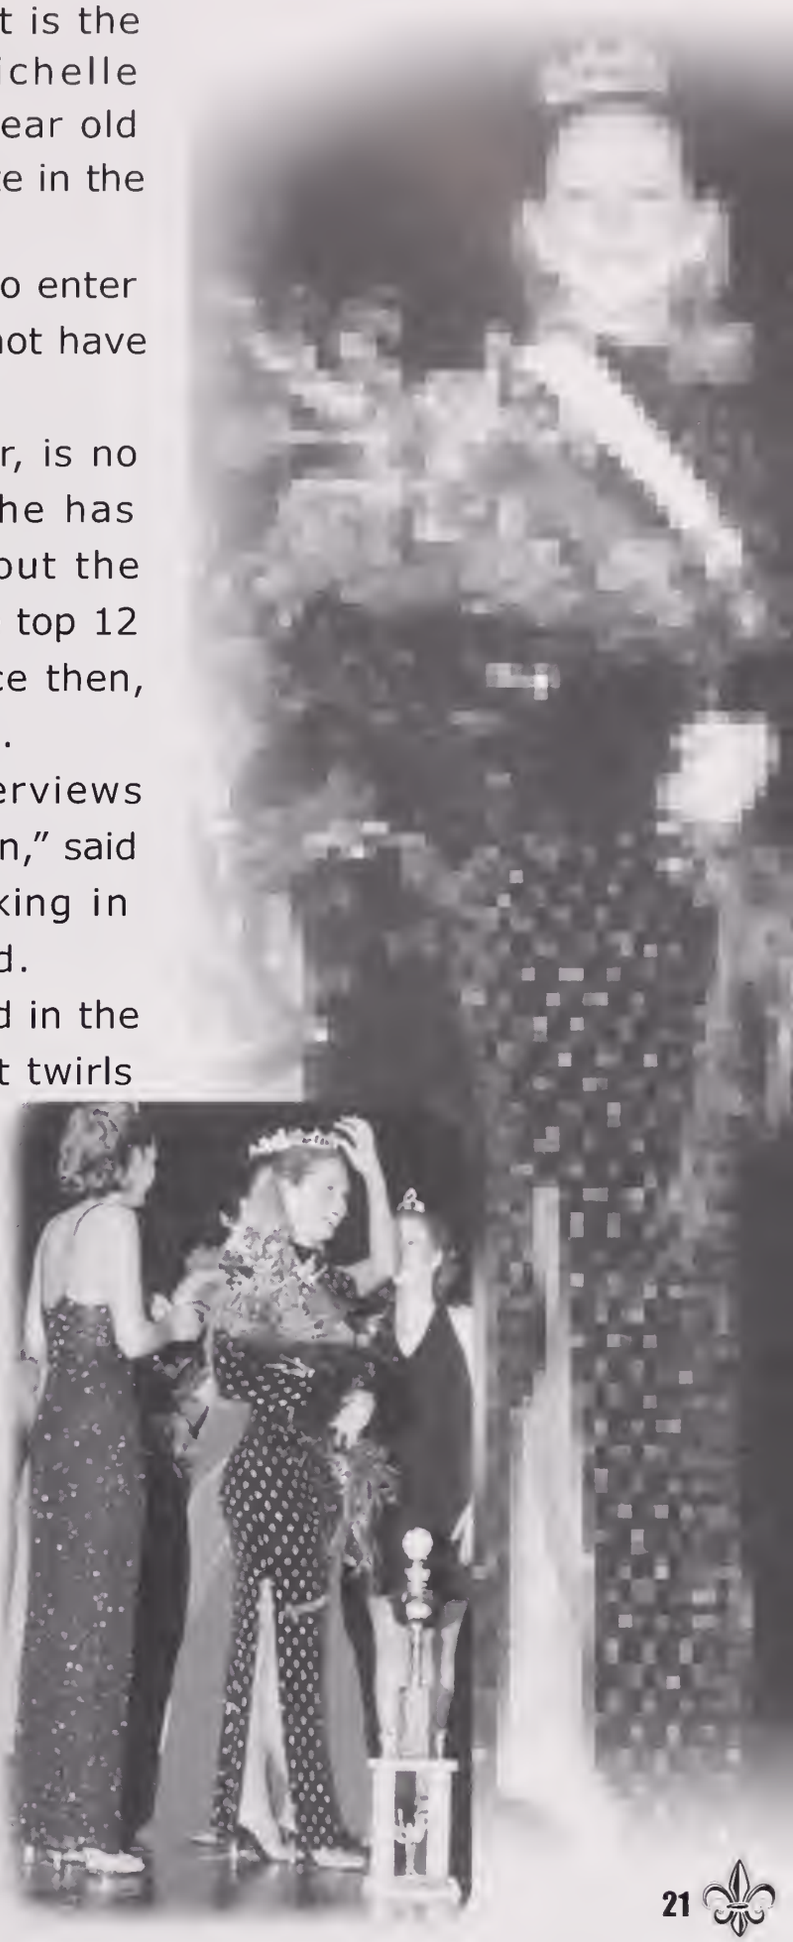

"I think that my talent and my interviews were my strongest areas in this competition," said Desormeaux. "I felt very comfortable talking in front of the judges," she proudly stated.

Desormeaux's talent was well-executed in the form of dance. Her high kicks and elegant twirls across the stage are attributed to her teaching aerobic and dance classes at Bourgeois Hall.

"It's an honor to be Miss UL Lafayette," Desormeux said delightfully. "I take it very seriously, as the whole school is looking at me. I feel like the whole school is depending on me; it's like a job," she stated.

Along with teaching aerobic and dance classes, this energetic young lady loves spending time with her friends, sewing jackets, purses, and pillows and working.

Madrigal Dinner

UL Lafayette's Choral Dept. took a step back in time with the second annual Madrigal Dinner on Nov. 15, 16 and 17.

UL Lafayette's Madrigal Dinner was set in the high Renaissance. The nobility of the Renaissance period were amateur composers who wrote music for the entertainment of dinner guests. During that time, education was considered the ability to read music. Nobility would throw dinner parties to demonstrate this ability.

"It's a unique experience that hasn't been seen in the Acadiana area before, and it's fun to take what you have learned about in textbooks and be a part of it as though you are in some sort of time warp," Mariah LaPointe, production manager, stated.

The original play, written by graduate student Rick Rowan, is a continuation of last year's performance by the University Choral. The great bard, William Shakespeare, makes a guest appearance in a parody of some of his great works. Other period performances such as puppet shows and the Rosewood Consort on Renaissance instruments help make the Madrigal Dinner an accurate representation of the Renaissance Period.

The meal was donated by alumnus Greg Nelson, manager of Charlie G's. It consisted of traditional period food like wassail, wylde ryce and mushroom soupe, smoked pork tyndre loine, sweete potatoes and haricot verts, sweete raisinet and wine. Serving wenches, dressed in traditional garb, served the meal courses throughout the production in time with the play, adding a feeling of nostalgia.

The guests were encouraged to dress in period costume, enabling them to truly feel as though they had stepped into the high Middle Ages.

Robin Gough, who played the part of the Jester said, "It gave me a chance to be my true self as a character, and entertain people with the mixture of music and an Old English accent I had for a week after."

Proceeds from the dinner benefited choral scholarships.

Christopher Flis

People often have varying degrees of interest and while they may be pursuing one thing at the moment, there is always something that they fall back upon. Chris Flis, a 22-year-old Texas native and English major, has just that and it happens to be a great love for fossils.

With his father working for Gulf Oil, Chris spent parts of his childhood growing up in London and in Dublin. There his father would take him to look amongst the rocks that they had found. "It really wasn't until I was five or six that I started noticing the oddities in what I had found," he said. "This was after we had moved back to the US and were living in Midland, Texas and my dad was working for Chevron."

Given that Midland was part of the world's largest oil fields, the land was constantly being cut away. This provided amply opportunities for Chris to search through the dirt and rocks for fossils. "My father would always take me to an area called Iraan, which was scarred by pump jacks," he said. "We would spend hours crawling down rocky cliffs and slopes finding Cretaceous fossils."

His interest in vertebrate fossils didn't come until the early 1990s when he had run out of room for his invertebrate fossil collection. "A friend of my father's had mentioned an unusual quarry which was supposed to have bones and teeth in the rock piles," he said. "This wound up to be true and for the next five to six years my father and I had accumulated a first class collection of Tertiary mammal bones."

The most common thing that Chris has found has been stray, disarticulated bones of prehistoric horses, camel, and bison. Occasionally the trip would prove to be fruitful by exposing portions of mammothbones, teeth, and tusk.

Prior to his move to New Orleans, Chris began volunteering for Midland's Annual Gem and Mineral Show in which he would show his fossils to the public. "It's very rewarding to see people get excited about the bones," he replies.

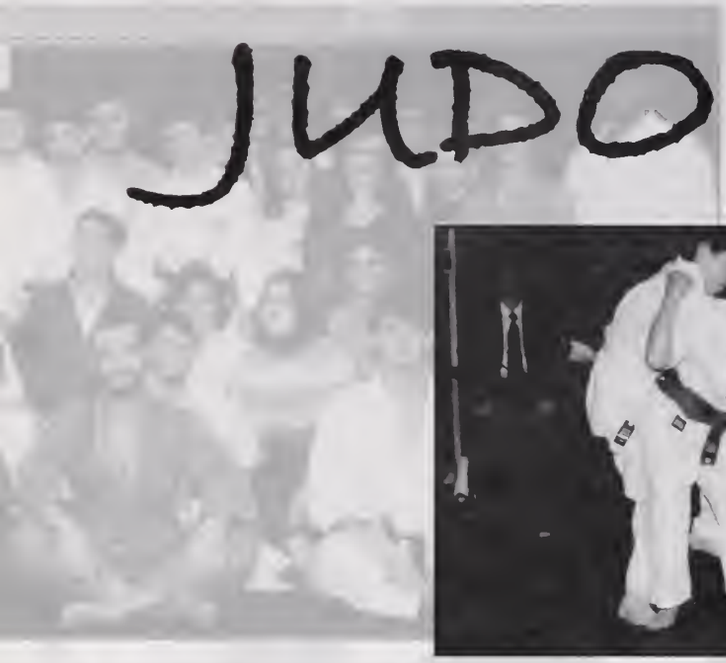

For years Chris accumulated a museum worthy collection of fossils. His main interest, dinosaurs, is his next collecting goal. While his major is English, he hopes to one day become a paleontologist. "I belong in the field, out in the open - not in an office," he replied. "Not in an office...I'm very good at what I do." Chris' love for pre-historyis one that he hopes to share with everyone.

While he is currently working on his creative writing, Chris hopes to one day wander through dinosaur footprints and unearth all that these great creatures have left behind.

CAMPAIGN 2002

This spring, as every year, the weather warmed, the leaves returned and students campaigning for Student Government Association manned the corners of Rex Street and St. Mary Boulevard.

"This has been a fun and memorable experience," said Loveless Green,Jr., a candidate for senator in the College of Nursing.

Candidates for office had approximately two weeks to campaign around campus. Signs, t-shirts and flyers were just a few ways the candidates advertised themselves.

While Vision and Change were busy making signs and flyers, Jive had a different idea. Ross Fontenot campaigned on one of the busiest intersections on campus while wearing a Speedo. Although some people were shocked by it, others said they would definitely remember him when it was time to vote.

"The candidate that will wear a Speedo will work hard for you in the SGA," said Fontenot, a candidate for senator in the College of Liberal Arts.

"The candidate that will wear a Speedo will workhard for you..."
- Ross Fontenot

This year, there were three major parties running: Vision, Change and Jive, in addition to numerous individuals running independently. "Big 3" candidates lead Vision and Change. Brian West was the sole Big 3 candidate running as an independent. Each party also had senatorial candidates representing each of the various university colleges.

All too soon students acquainted themselves with the Student Government hopefuls decked out in shirts with bright green, yellow and red colors.

"I thought that campaigning was very strong among everyone this year, including the independents," said Shanea Morrison, a candidate for the College of Liberal Arts. Platforms focused on continuing university prestige, dorm reform and campus unity. Morrison continued, "Because of the thoroughness of this year's campaigns, everyone had knowledge of the major issues."

Election results were released at 5 p.m. on the final day of campaigning. Of the three candidates running for the position of president, none received the majority of votes. The top two candidates, Jessica Clarke and Wayne Simoneaud, had a runoff. Clarke squeezed by Simoneaud by only 24 votes to become 2002-2003 SGA president.

Bach Luncheon

Want to relax and enjoy some great food and music? Then the Lafayette Natural History Museum and Planetarium sponsored Bach Lunch is a great way to do all three.

Held every Friday in fall 2001 from Sept. 21-Oct. 26, Bach Lunch offered local bands a chance to gain exposure. This mini-festival also took place in spring 2002 from March 8-May 10 with the exception of Good Friday.

"It's a lunch hour series featuring different musicians performing from noon to 1:00 p.m. Bach Lunch is a free event and a great way to start off your weekend," Marsha D'Aunoy, Bach Lunch director, expressed.

If food is your concern, plate lunches are sold for $5 and usually are donated by various local restaurants. "All sales from the lunches go to benefit the history museum and its planetarium," D'Aunoy said.

Guests are encouraged to bring blankets, lawn chairs and even their own picnic lunches to the outdoor event.

Each week a band takes the stage for one hour to entertain the crowd.
Most of the bands are in some manner affiliated with the school of music at UL Lafayette, and consist of former or current members of the music department. The bands play anything from blues and cajun to jazz and soul.

The museum encourages everyone from kindergarten to grandparents and everyone in between to join them. The museum is located a few blocks from campus on the corner of Girard Park Drive and Auditorium Road. "It's a lot of fun for everyone and since we are so close to the UL campus we encourage students to join us," D'Aunoy stated.

Seth Thibodeaux

"UL Lafayette is a close to my heart kind of place," said Seth Thibodeaux, a senior in intrapersonal and organizational communication.

UL Lafayette feels like home for the 21-year-old for a reason. Not only because he is a native of Lafayette, but also because his mother, father and two sisters attended the university.

Active on campus in various organizations, Thibodeaux said one of his most memorable experiences was running for the Student Government Association (SGA) last year. "I gained friends, met people from different backgrounds and more people from Lafayette who went to different high schools," Thibodeaux stated.

"[SGA campaigning] let me be involved with people like me, which was great because sometimes I would feel like I'm the only one working hard," Thibodeaux said.

Work is no stranger to Thibodeaux, who is employed by the Alumni Association as a staff assistant. "It's a great, unique opportunity to be a student and give to theuniversity. By working with the alumni, I see all of the events that the Alumni Association sponsors from behind the scenes," Thibodeaux said.

He credits the success of the Alumni Office to working as a team. "If we need stuff done and sent off soon, we all work together," Thibodeaux said.

Changes he would like to see at UL Lafayette include increasing the enrollment of on-campus residence and elevating student involvement. "Student support is definitely lacking, but the UPC [Union Program Council] and the SGA are on the right path. UPC is creating new events and has new blood such as Blake and Princess working."

Hanging out with friends and traveling occupies Thibodeaux's free time. After graduating, Thibodeaux will seek a master's degree in public relations from UL Lafayette. Eventually, he would like to leave Lafayette and earn a doctorate someday. Yet, Thibodeaux mentioned returning, "What I didn't like [about UL Lafayette] I can come back and change." But for now Thibodeaux said, "For now this is where I want to be."

UP 'TIL

UL Lafayette's Up 'Til Dawn is a campus program that raises money year round for children diagnosed with cancer.

"It is a program as most other fund-raising ones are. As a member of the executive board you organize and plan ways to raise money; as a participant you are able to work hands on to earn the money; and as a recipient a child will benefit from the money going to the hospital," Annie Wingate, executive director of Up 'Til Dawn, explained.

The Executive Board is made up of 23 members who are each responsible for different aspects of the program. Students coordinate public relations, food and beverage, entertainment and fund raising. Throughout the school year, the executive board organizes garage sales, public relations blitzes, fund-raisers at local clubs and letter-writing parties to help raise money.

DAWN

Any student can join or form a team at the beginning of the school year. Each team must have a name and at least six members. Each team also is responsible for raising a certain amount of money. The smallest amount to raise is $750. An executive board member is assigned to each team to monitor its success.

Local businesses such as Nightcaps, Amanda Scott's Downtown, Acadiana Dodge and Bank One are just a few that help the program succeed.

The fund raising ended on April 10 with a huge blowout to celebrate all the money the teams raised. The Finale Event was an up-all-night party and consisted of live music, games, contests, awards, comedians and karaoke.

Robert Vincent

At the age of 23, Robert Vincent, an Erath native and Mayor Pro-Tem, has learned that everything in life happens for a reason. A senior in professional land and resource management, he not only handles the responsibilities of being a student, but also those of public office and with the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

At the age of eight, Vincent fell in love with politics while helping his aunt campaign for the Clerk of Court elections in St. Mary Parish. Two years later, he and his family received news that he had a form of muscular dystrophy called Charcot Marie Tooth, which is a slow progressing disease that is more visible in middle age.

The news did not attack his spirit. He immediately began working with the MDA. "It was something that life had dealt me and I had to deal with," Vincent said. "Through family, faith and God, we accepted it."

Even with the slow progression of MD, Vincent remained active in his community. He did not want to see Erath stay the way that it was, he wanted to see it progress.

When he turned nineteen, Vincent decided to run for the Erath City Council. He was elected councilman receiving the highest number of votes. With this position he was appointed Mayor Pro-Tem which includes assuming the duties of the mayor when he/she is out of town or incapacitated.

"I was always confident that I would win," he said. "It was overwhelming that the people of Erath would have that much confidence in me...it was very humbling."

Most Mayor Pro-Tems are not full-time college students. "You have to have good time management skills for sure," Vincent said. "When you enjoy something, you will make time and it isn't considered a burden."

Though he wishes he could go back in time and rid himself of muscular dystrophy, Vincent was awarded Personal Recognition Awards for both regional and statewide competitions by the MDA. For the past six to seven years, he has been awarded the Shining Star Award, also by the MDA. "Everyone has a moral obligation to help others," he said. "If you don't help someone in your lifetime...it's wasted time."

Zachariah Walls and his crew fill a room with laughter and noise by acting out whatever they feel from the top of their heads in Cult of the Stage Monkey. The improvisation group, started in fall 1998, is an independent student theater group.

"Overall, my goal is to make everyone's day a little more surreal," Walls, one of the founders of Cult of the Stage Monkey, stated.

Performed every Monday at 7 p.m. in the Shadows Room of the Student Union, Cult of the Stage Monkey was the second improvisational group in Louisiana and the first group geared toward providing entertainment to college students. Actors perform both fictional and real sketch comedy shows.

"We were bored and wanted to do something new and fun. A former high school friend saw the first improvisational group in New Orleans and we got the idea from there," Walls explained on how the organization began.

Initially one may think this is another theater group; however, many differences separate this group from a typical production. "We don't have the benefit of a set, script, lighting and other luxuries common to a true theatrical performance," Walls acknowledged. Walls added: "We all have different majors. Only one performer is in performing arts and we encourage anyone with interest to audition simply showing up and exhibiting talent."

The student audience is integral to the success and humorous quality of the show as they participate by giving the actors topics to act on.

The greatest accomplishment of Cult of the Stage Monkey was a paid performance for "Don't Attack Us Because We're Against Violence and Hate Crime," a program in which they donated their proceeds to the Faith House, a local non-profit organization that provides a place of refuge for battered and homeless women.

"We're enjoying it and as for its future, after I graduate I want to be able to come back and see it still in existence," Walls announced.

"We are already on the web and even have a group in Mississippi, so when I'm out of here and graduate school I want to form the third Cult of the Stage Monkey wherever I'm at."

Sidelines

Gerald Rivales

Sidelines is the new and improved version of the Groucho's of semester's past. Gone are the days of on-campus students starving after the hour of 7 p.m. With its looks that received a facelift came a new menu, extended hours and bright shining faces.

Sidelines, located in the Student Union, is equipped with a couple of pool tables for entertainment as well as arcade video games. To give the place a change of atmosphere, the lighting was lowered to give of the effect of a sports bar. Although many things have changed, some have remained the same. The television sets and picnic style tables are still part of the environment.

The menu was enhanced drastically. Students can use their declining balances to purchase an array of items. The big-selling item is the smoothies. The flavors range from chocolate chip to strawberry.

More and more students are hanging around in the Student Union because of Sidelines. "The food is good, but service can be slow at times, though," Nicolette Joseph, a sophomore in child and family studies, said. When asked about her favorite Sidelines meal, Joseph responded: "I usually get chicken tenders, fries and a strawberry smoothie. It's great."

Another huge difference between Groucho's and Sidelines is the way students receive their food. At Sidelines, students have to place an order and then they are given a ticket to pick up their food.

Late-night munchies can be resolved with the assistance of a meal or snack from Sidelines. The service is speedy considering all of the scores of people that place orders around 6:30 -7:00 p.m.

Boys and Girls Club of Acadiana

Whether it is done out of the kindness of ones' heart or one feels obligated to do so, volunteering helps loads of people. Numerous programs exist that enable people to volunteer.

One well known service program for children is the Boys and Girls Clubs of Acadiana. Known as the "Positive Place for Kids," this organization provides multiple services to children aged six to 18 after school and during the summer. The Boys and Girls Clubs of Acadiana has several UL Lafayette volunteers and employees.

"I always had the passion to work with kids, so I got involved," Davonia Alsandor, a junior in sociology, stated. Alsandor began volunteering there about one year ago.

"Working with kids is great. I know that in some small way I am making a difference by helping," Alsandor continued.

After almost six months of volunteering at the two Boys and Girls Clubs in Lafayette, Alsandor was hired as a part-time employee.

With units in Lafayette and Iberia parishes, the Boys and Girls offers several locations for students to volunteer. Volunteers can work with the youth in the computer lab, play games, assist with homework or simply provide help and guidance throughout the year.

Whether it is working with children or volunteering your time to the elderly or disadvantaged, do a good deed every-day - become a volunteer!

Erin C. Miller

Erin C. Miller, a senior in music education, is glad that she chose UL Lafayette to perfect her music and to expand and grow as a musician.

"As soon as I came here, I was able to grow a lot as I was thrown into all of these major ensembles," Miller, the 22-year-old Baton Rouge native, said. For two years she held the position of drum major. "Being in that position, especially as a woman, you have to prove yourself," Miller said.

Miller's primary instrument is the oboe, however she also plays the piccolo in the basketball band. Her interest in music began as a child, but not until the twelfth grade did she realize her desire for a career in music.

While keeping busy with her schoolwork, Miller is active in Sigma Alpha Iota, an international music fraternity for women. She has been president since fall 2001 and mentioned that it is a sisterhood that represents women in a male dominated field.

Miller is also a member of Music Educators National Convention (MENC), which offers her the opportunity to mingle with local band directors yearly in Baton Rouge.

"I feel like I am one of those people who took my hobby and made it a career," she said. Miller also said that if she could change anything in her past she would not because if she did, she would not be where she is today. She added that her parents have always been supportive and appreciate her love and persistence for music.

Though she is uncertain about exactly what she wants to do when she graduates, she wants to be an inspiration to younger musicians. Her ultimate dream is to be a music administrator for a university.

While managing her classes around band, Miller admits that at first it was difficult but that you get used to it. "Practice time...night rehearsals...it becomes a part of your life," she said. "It takes a lot of time management."

Career Services

Career Services, located at 1606 Johnston St., is a student job seeker's best-kept secret. This small building houses a handful of resources to help students and alumni optimize their search for the perfect job.

"The services we provide help bridge the gap between being a student and preparing for the world of work," said Evalyn Rodgers, the director of Career Services.

Rodgers and her staff are devoted to making students aware of the job possibilities around them. They work closely with employers and arrange for them to come to campus to recruit students. In turn, they assist students in getting interviews for these recruitment sessions.

Career Services boasts an extensive, interactive website. To maximize the website's resources, students should register with Career Services, which costs $10 per year.

One of the many features of the site is a step-by-step guide to creating a resume'. The student can post the resume online immediately after creating it, which allows local and national employers to view it. Students who already have a resume can post it directly from an MSWord file. The website also features a job database any student can view, whether or not they are registered with Career Services.

There also is a section called "What Can I Do With This Major?" This feature allows students to have a better idea of their future by pointing out careers they may not have even considered, but will be prepared for after obtaining their respective degrees.

"It shows you how to turn your passion into employment," Rodgers explained.

Career Services also coordinates the two-day career fairs held each semester in the Student Union. The first day was devoted to Business, Government and Non-Technical, and the second day was for Computer Science, Engineering and Technical. Representatives from local and national companies attended to provide information about themselves, as well as speak to potential employees. Participants also offered their expertise by helping students perfect their résumés.

Online Job Hunt

Cameron Odom

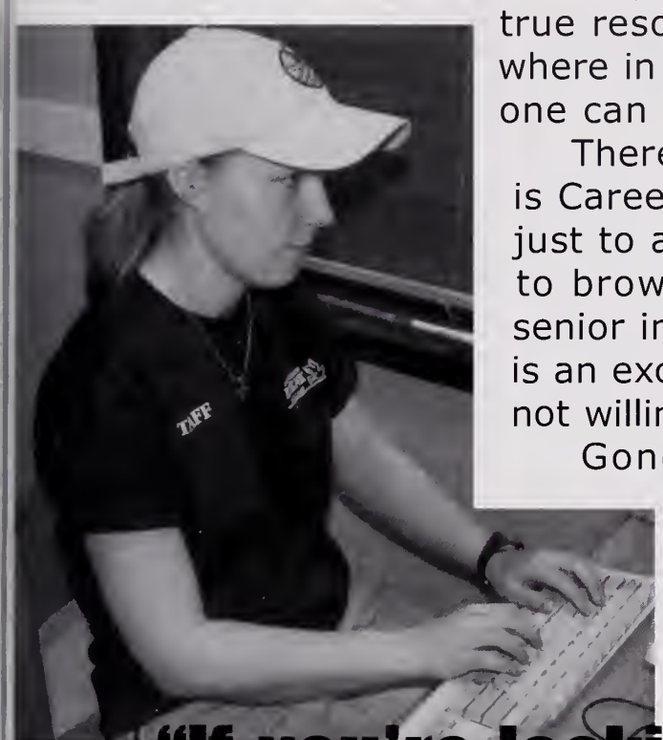

"If you are looking for a job, then the Internet is a good place to begin," states Lynn Stevens, a prelaw senior. Looking for a new and better job? Or do you just want to post your resume'? In this new era of growing technology, the Interenet has become "the place" to begin the search.

On-Line sites such as monster.com, jobsonline.com, and headhunter.com are among the most popular sites. Many people at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette were extremely familiar with these sites. There are an abundance of on-line job sites.

Once one is logged onto one of the above mentioned sites, one can check posted jobs or post one's own résumé. More companies are beginning to get on board on-line. Most employers are posting numerous job listings. Jobsonline is one of the Internet's leading employment sites.

Andre' LeBlanc, a senior in political science, believes that "the Internet is a true resource because it allows you to search for jobs any where in the world. " With this technology, any and every one can attempt to find a job in their field.

There are career-specific sites also. One popular site is Careerdirectory.net. Also, there are sites that pertain just to a specific city or town. Most of the sites are free to browse and post one's resume'. Mark Govender, a senior in political science, thinks that "on-line job hunting is an excellent way to find a job where you live, if you are not willing to relocate."

Gone are the days of pounding the pavement to circulate a resume'. People can let their fingers do the walking, straight to a ".com" address. With the change in today's economy and technology finding a new job has become as simple as 1-2-3.

-Yokenda C. Hawkins

"If you're looking for a job, then the internet is a good place to begin..."

College students spend time in different ways: going to school, going to work, going home to do more work. But what they do in their spare time?

"I in-line skate and eat out at restaurants," Melissa Cormier, a chemistry junior, said. "Free time is scarce because there is never a day that goes by that I don't have some homework to do. But I do find time and I'll do stuff at home," Cormier continued.

Lavar Greenhouse, a computer engineering major, said he enjoys reading fictional books and spending time on a computer.

"I'd like to go sky-diving and rock climbing," Greenhouse said, "because I've never done those yet and one day I will."

Acadiana is known nationally for its good food, hospitality and its numerous festivals and events, so of course students love going to the different festivities.

"I've been to Festival International here in Lafayette and also the Greek Show," Greenhouse said. The Greek Show is a step performance hosted at the Cajundome annually by Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. Greeks and guests from all over come to participate and view the show and other events that occur that weekend.

Favorite spots where many students choose to spend their leisure include coffee shops. Some invade PJ's, CC's Coffee House and Starbuck's inside of Barnes and Noble Cafe. Others choose to drink and shoot pool at bars and lounges such as Pete's, Daiquiris Supreme and The Bulldog.

Gerald Rhodes

"On campus I'm always either in the library or Lee Hall," Cormier said. "I go to Lee Hall because that's where all my partners are at and like to aggravate them," Cormier laughed.

Although times have gotten more technological advanced in the past years, board games still are popular among college students. "Playing chess and monopoly are still fun when people get together," Greenhouse said.

There is a saying "all work and no play leads to a dull life." Students at UL Lafayette show the importance of getting a good education and working hard in school work, but they also prove that having fun and relaxing from time to time does the mind, body, and spirit good.

Kemisha Ware

Junior Kemisha Ware is no stranger to hard work. As the current Vermillion sports editor, Ware transferred to UL Lafayette after spending two years at Grambling State University. "The journalism program at UL Lafayette was too hard to pass up," Ware said.

Ware began writing sports at Grambling her freshman year. Upon transferring Ware knew that she wanted to continue her work in college journalism. "I was hired as a news writer at first. I was just happy to continue writing period," Ware said. When the position became vacant for sports editor, she jumped on the opportunity. "I knew I could handle it," Ware said. Editor in chief ofThe Vermillion, Leslie Gautreaux,appointed Ware to the position. "I didn't think twice," Gautreaux said. "Kemisha was extremely hardworking and dedicated to her job."

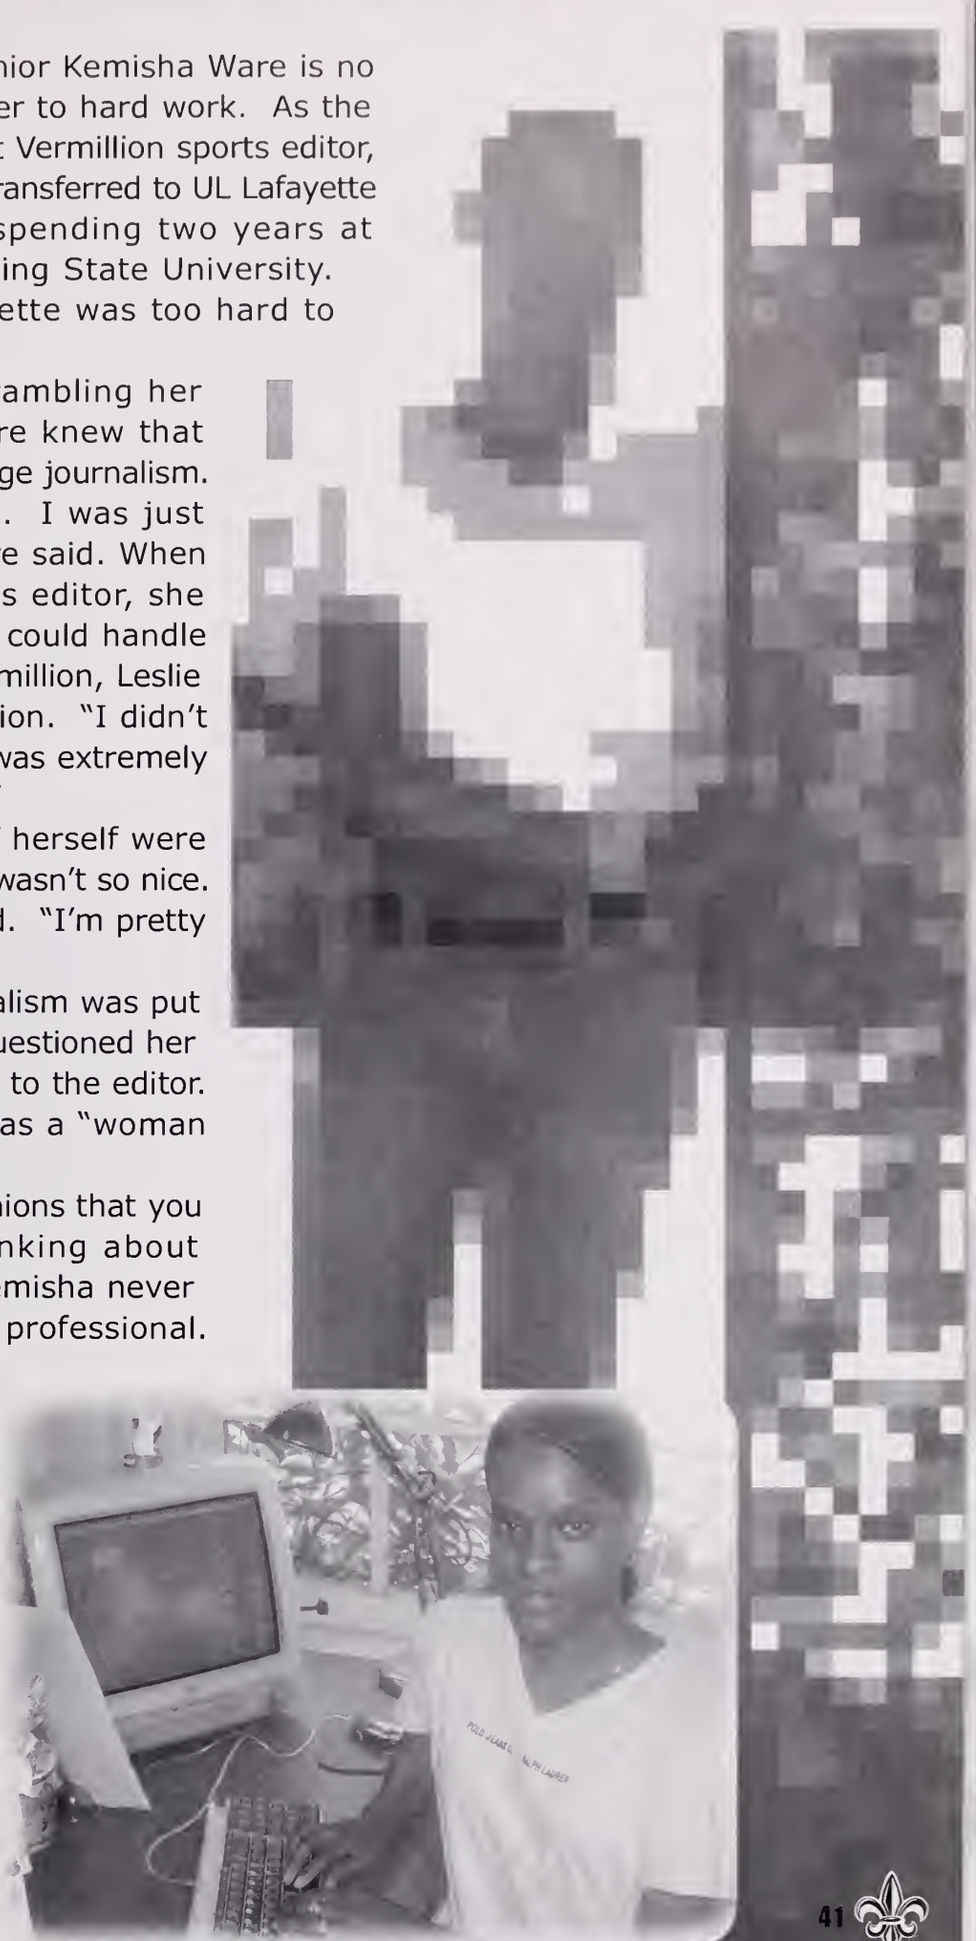

If a digitally remastered version of herself were possible, Ware says that she wishes she wasn't so nice. "Sometimes I'm too trusting," Ware said. "I'm pretty gullible sometimes.

Ware's passion for sports and journalism was put under fire when an anonymous writer questioned her ability to hold such a position in a letter to the editor. The letter addressed her competence as a "woman writing about sports."

"It's good when people bring up opinions that you disagree with because it sparks thinking about important topics," Gautreaux said. "Kemisha never lashed out. She was very classy, very professional. I don't know what I would have done if I were in her place."

"I think that my mother has taught me to be strong, and not cry... I haven't quite gotten that one down though," Ware said. "I do work a little harder than before. As an editor, I am always teaching and still learning. Things that seem easy are not always so. I realized that since taking on this responsibility."

Cornelsen Colors

Course and Cause

The ROTC is in the business of building leaders. Through military science courses, offered to freshmen and sophomores, instructors give insight into and the philosophy of the United States Army.

"We want to give them [the students] a flavor of what the military is all about," said military science instructor Major Yolanda Archambeault of the US Army.

Students enrolled in 100 and 200 level military science courses participate without military obligation. Both non-commissioned and commissioned officers teach the classes that focus on military history, ethics, organization and leadership training. Classes are structured with both classroom and lab exercises.

"All classroom work is to support lab work," Archambeault said. "I take what's going on in the media [and] I use the situation that we have to support military values."

Students encounter basic military training skills in marksmanship, map and compass techniques and rappelling during weekly labs. Upper level courses offer, to those students who choose to execute written agreements with the Army, further training in leadership development.

A hallmark of the ROTC program this year was a charity drive which collected toys for children in need.

"We asked cadets to donate money for toys, the Cadet Fund would match the amount collected," said Cadet Sanquanetta Ellis, who headed the drive. "I wanted to get more involved in the community."

The idea for the drive originated during a week of field training. Ellis's initial idea was for ROTC cadets to make small gifts to give to children spending Christmas in local shelters.

"I wanted to do something bigger," Ellis said. "Cadet [Randy] Demarysuggested that we ask the SGA for help. He wrote and submitted the proposal to the SGA."

The SGA responded to the proposal by offering more than $1,000 to the program, exceeding the proposed amount of $250.

"I thought it was awesome. It didn't matter what age, we gave [toys] to everyone," Ellis said.

UL Lafayette Remasters Technology

Every day technology surpasses us, and as a community we strive to remain a contender in the ever-changing wave of the future. At UL Lafayette, students are given some of the latest resources and technology to work with.

Each year, new computers are added to different departments to help keep them updated with the rest of the world. There have been many major technical upgrades in the last few years such as the new Dupre' Library and its huge Student Technology Enhancement Program (STEP) lab.

Cyrille Nicles

The library now has approximately 60 computers. These computers, as well others around campus, now access the Internet through an upgraded, 192-line modem pool. Users can access a variety of services including the World Wide Web, e-mail, and Telnet.

"The lab gives me access to the Internet and allows me to print whatever I need. It's also a big help to those who don't have access to a computer at home," said Nathan Bedford, a senior in geography.

To begin digitally remastering the university for the future, the Student Government Association began the initiative to install digital clocks in buildings all over campus.

Those who live on campus are privileged to have an incredible phone operating system. The university phone system has more options than the average home phone line.

"Unlike an answering machine, my roommate and I can both receive messages even when one of us is on the Internet or talking on the phone," said Ashley Bensel, a resident of Harris Hall.

Students taking advantage of one of the many computer labs offered on campus.

The Student Union also comes equipped with an Internet-accessible room located on the first floor. Sometimes called BYOC (Bring Your Own Computer), the room's walls are lined with desks where students can use their own laptops to get online. Each section has its own telephone outlet to surf the Web.

As each semester passes, the university finds bigger and better ways to help the faculty and students in every way possible. As a whole, the university administration is making a conscious effort to push forward so as not to be left behind in the dust of latest technology.

Jermayne Bradford

"I would tell him that I would really like to have a building erected in my name somewhere near the Student Union since I have spent so much time there," responds the Union Program Council's (UPC) not-so-well kept secret when asked what he would say to Dr. Ray Authement. His name is Jermayne Bradford, President of UPC and a senior majoring in Psychology.

Bradford is a native of Baton Rouge but a Ragin' Cajun in his heart. As an active member on the campus of UL, Bradford finds that time is of the essence. "If there was a digitally remastered form of me available, I would change my over-dedication to things, because I often spend too much time on one specific thing and it causes me to become stressed out and frustrated. I also tend to get so wrapped up in one project that I lose sight of other issues of importance."

His work with the UPC is a year-round job that he fully enjoys. After graduation, Bradford believes that his dream job would involve becoming the owner of a business and helping others discover their dream jobs by working for him, of course.

Besides classes and UPC, Bradford likes to take some time to listen to music, especially the sounds of Jagged Edge and 'NSync. He believes that the Internet is the greatest technological invention of our time. "You can find anyone or anything on the Web without ever leaving home. It's just amazing!"

Bradford states that his greatest influence is "the guy who invented the word success." That is what he is striving to attain. Also, he would like to leave behind a few words of wisdom to future students: "The one superior lesson that I have learned is that you have to go to class to pass! Always remember that education comes first and graduation is the most important goal in college."

Completion of the Gates

The entries to University of Louisiana at Lafayette, are marked by gates erected by the student body. Designed to commemorate the University's Centennial Anniversary, these landmarks will grace the campus for another 100 years.

Steve Johnson, SGA President, described the gates as "prestigious and appealing." Alumni members John T. Landry, director of development, and William J. Crist, director of the physical plant, headed the project of the gates along with Johnson and former SGA presidents Ferris Wheeler and Princess Willis.

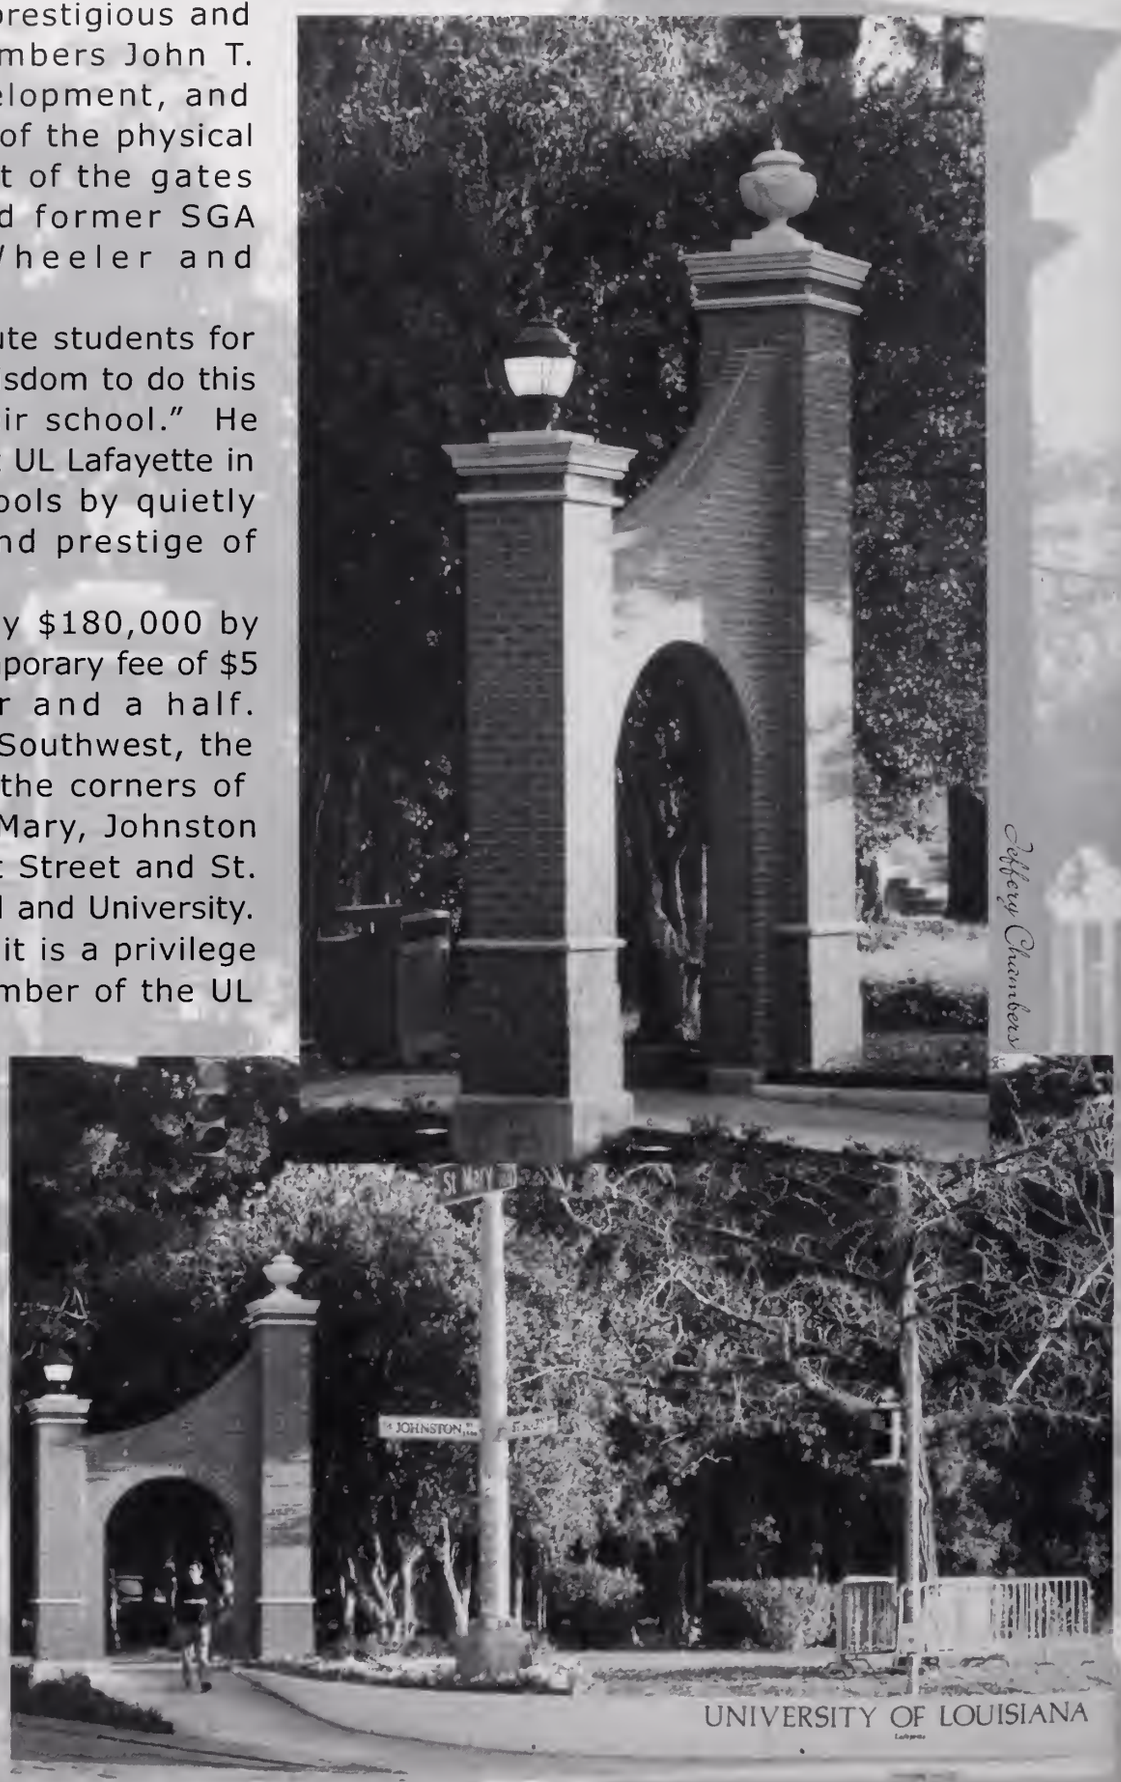

Landry wanted to "salute students for having the foresight and wisdom to do this [erect the gates] for their school." He explained the gates will put UL Lafayette in the class with other schools by quietly announcing the pride and prestige of entering the campus.

Students raised nearly $180,000 by assessing themselves a temporary fee of $5 a semester for a year and a half. Contracted to Architect's Southwest, the gateways are located on the corners of Johnston Street and St. Mary, Johnston Street and University, Taft Street and St. Mary and Hebard Boulevard and University.

The gates signify that it is a privilege and an honor to be a member of the UL Lafayette student body and alumni. Johnson said, "The gates are an added advantage to UL Lafayette's campus."

The gateway designs complement the style of the campus buildings. They are an extension of the buildings that commemorate 100 years of education and development that have taken place within the halls of UL Lafayette.

Louisiana's Victory Run

The largest Louisiana state flag in the world, respectably called "Louisana," belongs to UL Lafayette thanks to Steve Gossen. Gossen, an UL alumnas of 1964, was inspired by the University of Texas at Austin which has its own flag tradition.

Gossen said, "Our main purpose is to establish enthusiasm prior to each game, but at the same time, we also want to honor and respect our state flag." Five, smaller, Ragin' Cajun flags that accompany "Louisiana" have every single victory of UL Lafayette since 1908 embroidered onto them.

The organization selected to handle the flag on its maiden 'run' is the Chi Alpha Christian Fellowship. Meeke Golden, the flag master, said, "No matter what they [Chi Alpha] do, they take a tremendous amount of pride in doing it." The flag requires a minimum of 35 flag runners who are dedicated, reliable and responsible.

Nicki Clarneau

The flag was scheduled to make its official debut on the first game on Sept. 1. The plan was to incorporate this new tradition of 'The Victory Run' with the Herbert Heyman Football Classic. However, rain did not permit the run. On Sept. 22, 2001 though the flag made its debut.

"Louisiana," so large that it had to be laid on the roof of the manufacturer's building to be completed, is 80 feet by 53 feet and weighs approximately 160 pounds. The flag, made of 4,680 sq. ft. of solar max nylon, and 2,820 sq. ft. of optic white nylon with more than three miles of blue and white spun polyester threading to secure the design and additional miles of heavy filament polyester thread used to join and edge the flag, took more than 270 hours to construct.

"Hopefully, the flags will stir as much passion in Ragin' Cajun fans as the whole project has stirred in me and those who helped make this project a reality," Gossen said.

"This will be a tradition that brings football fans to their feet before each game, this flag and the five Ragin' Cajun flags will be something like no other at UL Lafayette."

Wellness Wednesdays

Wanda Nigues

The UL Lafayette College of Nursing sponsors Wellness Wednesday, a health promotion clinic open to faculty, staff and students. This program gives senior nursing students practical experience in the health care profession.

"We aren't really here to diagnose anybody, we're here to prevent the problem before it happens," said nursing student Ray Istre.

Wellness Wednesday is held in Wharton Hall in room 115 every other Wednesday from 12:30-3:30 p.m. Patients go to the health clinic for checkups and to monitor important health factors such as cholesterol and blood pressure. All services are free to students.

Patients who come to Wellness Wednesday have a chart of their vitals that monitors changes in their health.

"We give advice on what they can do to improve their health, like diet and exercise, and they can come back in two weeks and see the progress they have made, said Jeremy Boyer, a nursing student who benefits from the learning experience. "We get a lot of return visitors who do regular check ups."

"We have a lot of literature on different problems that people can take home to look at and help them bring their cholesterol or blood pressure down without medication," nursing student Amanda Girouard said.

The difference between the Student Health Services and the Wellness Wednesday clinic is that Student Health Services has a doctor and can prescribe medications. The Wellness Wednesday clinic will make referrals to the doctors and hospitals covered by patients' insurance. Patients' follow-up care can save them money with their free checkups.

Wellness Wednesday has been in operation since 1997. According to nursing student Ross Castille, "We still have patients from when we started who come in for checkups."

Kristen Russell

Kristen Russell runs, lifts weights, exercises, does cardio workouts and eats healthy everyday.Why? She trains for fitness competitions.

Russell, a junior in marketing, rose to the challenge of fitness in 2001. It was in July of that year that she won the title of Miss New Orleans Bikini.

She achieved yet another accomplishment in 2001 by winning the preliminary round to the Miss Hawaiian Tropic. However due to family sickness, Russell was unable to attend.

"I just decided to do it," Russell, 22, stated. "I was working at a gym and two girls were training for the competition and I told my coworkers and friends I wanted to do it and they laughed saying I ate too much," Russell recalled.

"Once I made up my mind I had to prove it to myself," Russell said.

Starting a protein and low carbohydrate diet filled with fruits and vegetables and conditioning her body, Russell was soon able to see the results. Though only losing about 10 pounds, Russell toned up and built muscles causing a dramatic change in her physical appearance.

"The protein shakes are an acquired taste," Russell admits. During training, Russell wakes up at 5 a.m. and works out for two to three hours (including a six mile run), eats six egg whites for breakfast, a protein bar and/or shake for lunch and a grilled chicken salad with broccoli for dinner.

Competition comes naturally as Russell has participated in over 20 pageants, all of which she has either won or placed. Russell even appeared in the October 1998 issue of Teen magazine as a Salon Selectives finalist.

The education director of Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority and past treasurer, Russell tries different methods to perform her responsibilities. "I try to make stuff fun and educational because that way people pay more attention. I use visuals to make them laugh and remember," Russell said. She also is a former residence hall counselor.

Russell values "God, family and friends." "I love my job at Sun & Fitness. My family is always there and my brother who is five years older than me has really helped out. Everyone is so supportive of me."

2001-2002 SGA

Each year students elect senators and officers to serve on the Student Government Association (SGA). They often make major decisions, most of which involve money. And not just any money: your money. So what do these students decide on, and how does it all work?

Every Monday at 5 p.m. in the Student Union Forum, the SGA Legislative Branch holds meetings which are open to the public. These students take the initiative to make improvements to benefit the student body. They serve their respective colleges, each with its own budget. They argue, they vote and they come together for one key purpose: students. To learn more about the SGA or to learn how to become part of spring elections call 482-2SGA and get involved.

The following is a list of accomplishments obtained by the SGA:

-Initiated financial support through student-assesed fees for the following university programs:
- *STEP
- *Club sports
- *Student Orientation Staff
- *Student Health Services

-Raised over $15,000 for Louisiana's Bucks for Fire Trucks program, which helped purchase a brand new fire truck for New York City after September 11.

-Formed a Judicial Branch to work in conjunction with the SGA's Legislative and Executive Branches.

-Sponsored Up 'Til Dawn a fundraiser for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

-The Big Three lobbied for the sale of beer at football games.

-Allocated thousands of dollars to student organizations.

-Revealed Dr. Authement's approval of the SGA's vision of an amphitheater to be among the new facilities constructed at the old McNaspy Stadium site.

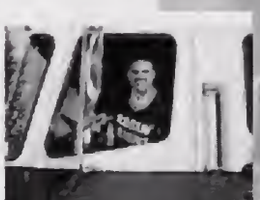

-Elimination of the CAAP exam

-Allocated funds to purchase barbecue pits for the Student Aquatic Center

Acadiana Festivals

Festival International de Louisiane and Festival Acadiens are two of Lafayette's most outstanding festivals that were both created to feature different musical styles. Mardi Gras is also another annual festival that features music as well as food, parades and more.

"The purpose of Festival International is to celebrate the various musical cultures of the French-speaking world," Herman Mhire, director of the University Art Museum, explained.

Festival International started in 1987, and has been held in downtown Lafayette every third weekend in April. Festival Acadiens began in 1974, and takes place annually in Girard Park on the third weekend in September.

Mhire, founding president of Festival International, was first inspired by a set of extraordinary paintings on glass from Senegal, West Africa in the home of Maurice Dedieu. With this inspiration, he began to do research and came up with the brilliant idea of coordinating an arts festival that brought local, regional and international French-speaking countries together. Some of the groups that participate include the French Canadian Fiddlers, Master Drummers of Ruwanda and Reggae singers from the Caribbean.

Making cracklins sure looks harder than eating them!

"Festival Acadiens is a self celebration," Barry Ancelet of the Modern Language Department said.

It too has attracted many visitors from all over the country. The two types of music that are featured at this festival are Zydeco and Cajun music, both of which are a result of the rich blend of French, Spanish, German, Anglo-American, African and Native American cultures that found themselves living together in south Louisiana.

Catch that pig!

Other activities that take place at both of these festivals are food sales from local restaurants that focus on Cajun and Creole cuisine. The festivals also feature arts and crafts exhibitions.

Festival International has been selected as one of the top 10 festivals in the world. Mhire believes, "If they [people] can't go out into the world, bring it [the festival] to them."

Now the girls try to catch the greasy pig.

Money collected from Festival Acadiens is redistributed to the community and university, including the Modern Language Department. The overall aim of these festivals is to determine how these cultures will find its way into the future.

Mardi Gras is yet another fun-filled celebration that draws many people to Acadiana. Mardi Gras goers view parades that roll down the streets of Lafayette. Also live bands and amusement park rides provide another outlet for people to attend.

Lafayette is indeed a place that lets the good times roll. Laissez les bons temps rouler!

Blue Moon Guest House

A sidewalk paved with concrete and doubloons, signs pointing the way to random places and a smiling face greet travelers as they walk through the gate of the Blue Moon Guest House (et L'auberge de jeunesse). Lafayette's first traditional hostel, the Blue Moon offers a warm home atmosphere to those traveling through the area.

Proprietors Mark Falgout and Catherine Schoeffler opened the hostel in August of 2001.

"We were acquaintances we just didn't know that we had the same idea," Schoeffler said. The two met to discuss their interest in opening a hostel in Lafayette. "We noticed that a house was for sale on Convent St.; it was the perfect spot," said Schoeffler. "It's in the middle of town, within walking distance of so much of our culture."

The house dates to pre-1900. Several renovations and additions have been made since its initial construction. "We spent as much money on renovating for building codes as we did to buy the house," Falgout said. "We had to turn closets and hallways into bath rooms," Schoeffler added.The home accommodates up to 30 people with a combination of shared and private rooms. Some amenities include a self-service kitchen and Internet access. Guests and the public enjoy a bar and live music on the back porch three to four nights a week. Daily rates range from $15-20 for shared rooms and $40-75 for private rooms. "We want to provide a place where travelers can be comfortable. We put what we wanted to experience in this place," Falgout said.

The guest book of the Blue Moon reads like a diary passed throughout the world. One guest said, "It's a very good feeling staying at the Blue Moon Guest House. Spiritually free. It reminds me of early childhood in Kingston, Jamaica."

In regards to the future of the guest house, Schoeffler said, "I see it as becoming sort of a place where the people who spend time in this area of the city can drop in and interact with an international community." The Blue Moon Guest house invites you to do just that.

Bourgeois Hall

New to UL Lafayette this year was an outdoor, student-oriented $2.35 million swimming facility.

The new facility, located at the Bourgeois Hall recreational complex, was entirely student-funded and was consequently aimed at appealing to the student body's requests. There are a total of three pools meeting various stipulations that the company, Barah Architectts, took into consideration when designing the atmosphere for aquatic recreation.

All students, faculty and staff have access to UL Lafayette's gym, Bourgeois Hall, located on Cajundome Boulevard.

"Bourgeois [Hall] is like a health club. [It's] a place to drop in for recreation and play at your leisure," Wayne Harper, director of athletics, stated.

Bourgeois, as it is commonly referred to, offers access to an indoor track, a weight room, cardiovascular equipment, basketball and racquetball courts and aerobic classes for students.

Sonya Hamilton, a junior in exercise science, takes advantage of a few of the fitness facilities at Bourgeois, particularly the indoor track.

"There's no excuse not to run when you have a free indoor track at your disposal," Hamilton said.

Open seven days a week, this unique facility also is the home to intramural sports, which are structured team or individual sports. Students participate in leagues that compete in tournaments.

In addition Bourgeois also houses sports clubs such as the Judo Club, Karate Club and Powerlifting. Sports clubs are at a higher level than intramural sports; however, are not rated on the same level as varsity. The largest club, Judo, boasts nearly 120 members.

The Student Aquatic Center is the latest and newest addition to Bourgeois. Students will have access to the pool from 7:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m. After swimming, students can play a game of beach volleyball.

With all that Bourgeois Hall has to offer UL Lafayette students can mix fun and fitness.

One World Diversified...

With so many dishes to choose from on Dessert Night, who needs to eat dinner?

Talented musicians wow crowds during the jam session.

Culture Mania in full swing at the Student Union.

A celebration of successful firsts began with the opening ceremony of International Week 2002. Students and faculty gathered on the porch of the Student Union to lend their support to the International Student Council (ISC) and others who work hard to make the program successful each year.

Running from March 4-9, International Week showcased the international student body's culture and diversity. Students representing the major ethnic groups on campus read excerpts of the welcome in their native tongue.

This year, many new programs were developed including a jam session that followed the opening ceremony. "I wanted to have something that showed the diversity on campus, and what better way than with music," said Danielle Harrison, who helped to organize the opening events.

Silvana Membreno from Honduras was crowned as queen in the first Miss ISC Pageant. Thirteen women representing the international students attending the university competed for the title. The contestants introduced themselves wearing clothing representative of their home countries. The winner was chosen based on her poise and respones to personal interviews and questions.

"Events throughout the week focused on breaking stereotypes and sharing unique cultural information," said Elmer Munoz, a member of the ISC.Culturamania introduced students to artifacts and art from various countries and The Night Of Cultural Explosion showcased the talents and traditional clothing ofinternational students.

The week was organized with events that were both fun and educational. A multicultural debate gave students an opportunity to clarify any cultural stereotypes and dessert night introduced students to the world by way of thetongue.

Munoz integrated the theme of International Week with the need for acceptance by saying: "You have heard languages you have never heard, countries you have never heard of, and seen features you have never recognized. By these differences we are truly One World... Diversified Yet United."

ISC President

"I always wanted to come to America, that was my dream," said Dieudonne Zekila, president of the International Student Council (ISC). Zekila is a sophomore majoring in electrical engeering and has been president for two consecutive years.

Upon arriving here in summer 2000 from Brazaville, Congo, he became very active in international affairs on campus.

"I love working with people of different cultures," said Zekila.

Despite his openness to diversity, he has faced the challenge of gaining support from the international student body. This he finds to be his only problem as president of the ISC. He also feels that his kind-natured spirit has caused people to take advantage of him at times.

In 2001, Zekila campaigned intensively to have international student fees lowered when it drastically increased. He also is in the process of incorporating a scholarship program for international students.

Zekila is thankful for his parents who instilled godly and family values in him. He feels that they have both set perfect examples in life for him to follow. Along with watching television and playing soccer, Zekila's favorite past time is day dreaming.

"I always dream of being in the position of helping people less fortunate than I am," Zekila states.

After graduating, he would like to invest in a business in his field of study and keep his dream of being in the position of leadership.

"I see myself as a political leader some day."

"Special Events is UPC's most dynamic committee because we do anything and everything to help the student body kick back and let loose," Brandon Stelly, Special Events chairperson, raved.

"Our events have been proven to relieve stress caused by school and work. When Special Events throws a party, (students) are sure to have a blast," Stelly added.

The Special Events Committee sponsors the annual Halloween Drive-In Movie Night, Krewe of Roux parade and the Spring Music Fest.

"The purpose of the Spirit Committee is to promote school spirit and to showcase UL Lafayette's Ragin Cajun pride," said Krystal Papillion, committee chair.

Pep rallies are a huge focus for this committee. "Ragin Roar" is the kick-off pep rally of every fall semester.

"Ragin Roar sends UL Lafayette's Ragin Cajuns into the school year with a bang! We also promote spirit for all campus athletics," Papillion commented.

The Spirit Committee also sponsors road trips and the Miss UL Lafayette Pageant.

"The African-American Culture Committee (AACC) gives students the opportunity to share information concerning the distinct heritage of the African American people," commented Shanea' Morrison, chairperson of the AAAC.

The AACC hosts activities during Black History Month, Black Expo, Quiz Bowl, Zulu Connection, Gospel Extravaganza and the Mr. and Miss Black Expo Pageant.

Another UPC Committee is Entertainment, chaired by Chad Becnel. This committee sponsors concerts, dances and loads more. Students help to promote and plan these social events by booking acts and getting them to commit. The Entertainment Committee has limitless entertainment opportunities to offer students.

The Issues and World Culture Committee is one of diversity. "The purpose of this committee is to present the many cultures of our planet to the UL Lafayette community," Eric Depradine, committee chair, stated. This committee sponsors blood drives and Pow-Wows.

Another well-known UPC committee is Traditions, chaired by Jessica Clarke. The main focus of this committee is Homecoming, which is packed with on and off campus activities and the election of the Homecoming Queen and her Court. It ends with the traditional UL Lafayette Homecoming Game and is followed by a dance in the Student Union. Lagniappe Week is also a big event for the Traditions Committee.

"If stem cell research is used negatively, namely cloning, it could hurt us. Especially if scientists create the 'perfect' breed of human beings," Shantell Bell, a junior in business systems analysis technology, stated. This is just the beginning of the stem cell research controversy.

President George W. Bush approved federal funding for limited stem cell research on Aug. 9, 2001. These stem cells are to be harvested from living human embryos. Many view this particular type of research as the best bet for curing such diseases as diabetes, Parkinson's disease and Alzheimer's disease.

Stem cells are present in developing embryos. They provide the foundation for growing all of the body's tissue. Scientists are hoping that the cells will help develop healthy tissue that could replace any afflicted tissue and cure a number of diseases.

Is it life or not? Is it a question of morals or medicine? This year has seen a technological and biological breakthrough in the category of extensive stem cell research. Scientists all over the world are arguing either for or against the testing of embryonic cells.

Scott Lewis, a senior in mass communication, had a complex stance on the issue. He stated: "As with any controversial matter, I think that everyone should take it slow and consider all sides of the issue. Besides, the medical benefits are obvious, but the philosophical objections should not be ignored."

Justin N. Gardner, courtesy of Parking and Transit Identification Systems

On one side, anti-abortion activists firmly believe stem cell research is taking human life. This is controversial because the best source of stem cells is from human fetal tissue. On the other side, there are scientists who believe that this research could answer many medical questions.

This issue is alive and thriving at UL Lafayette. Students are split on how they feel about the matter. Lawrence Salone, a senior in public relations, stated, "I feel that if it is used for finding out more about diseases, then it is fine; however, I think there are alternatives to it, such as cloning humans."

"I think that the research is a good thing. It could help us if it is continued only to be used for the right type of research and not for cloning," Melanie Riedl, a senior in public relations, added.

The opinions vary from person to person. Our President endorsed the research with set limitations to try to appease both sides of this controversy. Stem cell research has divided conservatives and liberals as well as pitted scientists against religious leaders. Only time will tell if either side was right or wrong.

HARMONY

Harmony House is over two years in the works and well on its way to developing a close relationship with the environment. The brainchild of a few renewable resource students, the project began very humbly.

"It is a normal house," said Courtney Burke, one of the students who brought the plan to life. "We have to make it environmentally friendly."

Dr. Charles Reith, department head of renewable resources, elaborated on the house's initial condition, "It was a mess, just an awful mess."

Burke, along with Emily Neustrom and other renewable resource students, proposed the idea to Reith shortly after he began working for the university.

"I was aware of similar projects where residences were built with the specific intention of being eco-friendly. This was the first eco-renovation that I have ever heard of, though."

As with any university-sponsored housing project, students living in the house must contribute at least 10 hours of service to the project per week. Renewable resources majors interested in participating in the project are eligible to live in the house.

Renovations began with a fresh coat of ecologically friendly paint and furniture made with hemp fibers. "There was a rather large gas heater that was always on, you couldn't turn it off," Reith said. The heater was removed and ceiling fans were installed to conserve energy.

Residents of the house kept busy raising awareness of the house and funds for renovations in the initial renovation process. Students created a comprehensive brochure describing their goals for the home. Local businesses responded to the students' efforts with numerous donations.

"Our vision is to show people that you can go into a house and make it environmentally friendly and still have all the luxuries that everyone wants," said Burke.

Reith continued, "The house will ultimately be a reflection of those that move through it. It certainly represents a small amount of progress to where it can be someday."

AIDS AWARENESS

"The AIDS Memorial Quilt helps put the humanistics behind the statistics."

-FUMILAYO RITA

AIDS Awareness Week, sponsored by the Union Program Council (UPC), served to educate students about AIDS and to remember those who have died from this disease. All activities during the week of Sept. 17 - 21, were open to the community and students, all free of charge.

"The AIDS Memorial Quilt helps put the humanistics behind the statistics," said Fumilayo Rita, UPC Issues/World Culture chairperson.

The goals of AIDS awareness week were to make students aware and educate them, to comfort the families of those who have died from AIDS and to remember those who have died. Rita said, "AIDS Awareness Week opens the eyes of students."

Free, anonymous and needle-free AIDS testing done by Acadiana C.A.R.E.S. encouraged students to screen themselves. Students participated in an educational section where they learned about the behaviors that put them at risk of exposure to the virus HIV and the disease AIDS.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt was nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize in 1989. This quilt is the largest community art project in the world. In 1987, the quilt was created by a small group of strangers who wanted to ensure that their loved ones would not be forgotten.

The quilt now has more than 43,000 3-by-6 memorial panels. It has toured the country in sections, in each location of the tour, more panels are added from the community. The AIDS Memorial Quilt has been the subject of several books, films and artistic and musical performances.

"By seeing the work done by family, loved ones and friends for people who have passed, makes you become emotionally involved," Rita said. Perhaps, this type of involvement is needed to combat this disease.

JOHN M CUMMINGS JR MD

"WHEN WE FIRST STARTED...

IT WAS ABOUT VAGINAS"

said Leslie Gautreaux, a cast member of The Vagina Monologues and the executive board that produced UL Lafayette's first V-Day.

Over 800 cities worldwide held the annual event to raise money and awareness of the V-Day initiative: ending violence against women. With Lafayette's V-Day campaign came The Vagina Monologues , a play based on serious as well as humorous interviews between Eve Ensler (the author of The Vagina Monologues and founder of V-Day) and 200 women from all walks of life.

A 36-woman cast brought the play and the women it portrays to life. Planning for the event began in July 2001 when the members of a small reading group decided to bring Ensler's message to Lafayette. "We had no money, we had nothing. We even had a fund raiser so that we could buy stamps," Gautreaux said.

Auditions for the cast began in December. "It was something interesting and I wanted to act again," said Kim Doucet, a student at the university and a member of the cast. "It soon became about us all being together and doing something that was so much bigger than we were."

The production received sponsorship after a few local businesses noticed the efforts of the cast and executive board. The Times of Acadiana, Euphoria and the Sidebar all enlisted to help make the effort successful.

Students as well as the community overwhelmingly supported the cast and cause as well. Proceeds from the three sold-out performances benefited The Sexual Abuse Response Center in Lafayette which works to help women in Lafayette.

"I was really skeptical because I didn't like the book," said Katy Miller, a junior in Francophone Studies. "But seeing it performed changed my perspective."

In a speech to the cast before the final performance, director Crystal Lemaire said, "Put all your enthusiasm and happiness into your performance, I know we have impressed a lot of people in this town."

ENERGY

Tuition was increased by $21 this year due to the rising costs of energy. Implemented to help pay last year's utility bill of about $1 million, it is the university's second tuition increase in one year.

Some refer to this nationwide problem as an "energy crisis." No matter what you call it, the effects are visible at UL Lafayette.

Although the surcharge will no longer be in effect for the next academic year according to SGA President Steve Johnson, this temporary surcharge created a variety of responses from UL Lafayette students.

"We could complain, but, if it's needed than so be it, because this is our university," Gideon Scarbrough, a senior in interpersonal communication, said. "Being that we have one of the lowest tuitions in the state as well as the country, we should help our university so that it may prosper," Scarbrough continued.

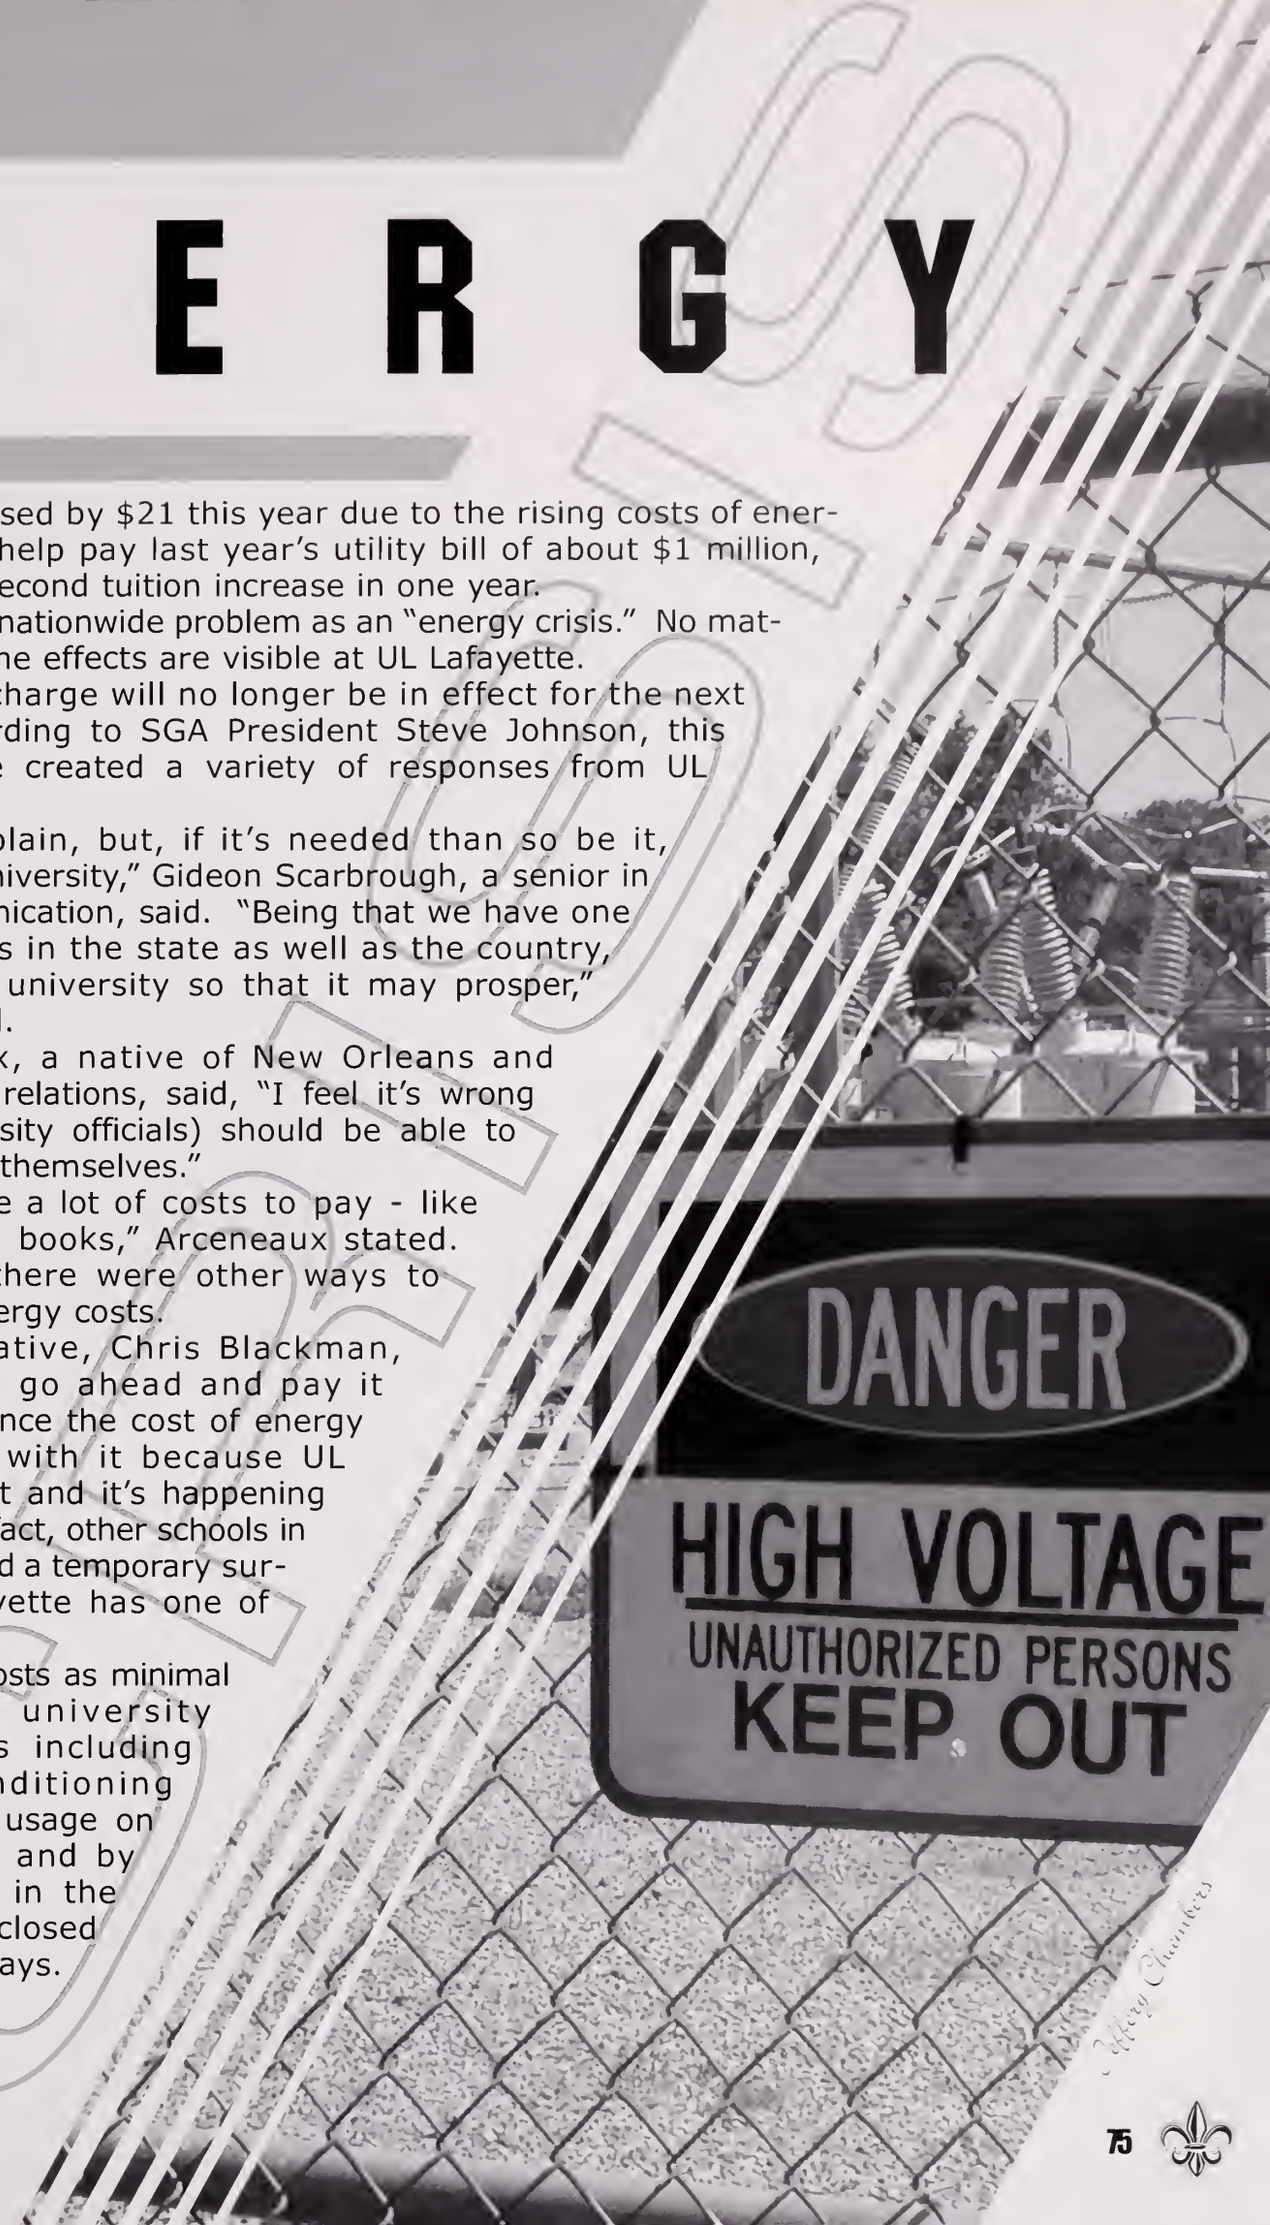

Anitra Arceneaux, a native of New Orleans and sophomore in public relations, said, "I feel it's wrong because they (university officials) should be able to pay it (energy costs) themselves."

"We already have a lot of costs to pay - like room and board and books," Arceneaux stated. Arceneaux believed there were other ways to pay for the rise in energy costs.

Baton Rouge native, Chris Blackman, stated: "If needed, go ahead and pay it [energy surcharge] since the cost of energy has risen. I'm ok with it because UL Lafayette has to do it and it's happening everywhere else." In fact, other schools in the state have instituted a temporary surcharge and UL Lafayette has one of the lowest.

To keep energy costs as minimal as possible, the university underwent changes including upgrading air-conditioning systems, minimizing usage on nights and holidays and by cutting off the unit in the library entirely on closed school days and holidays.

Marines run to load their gear as they prepare to fly to a new position somewhere near Kandahar, Afghanistan, Tuesday, Dec. 10, 2001. U.S. Marines moved troops and heavy weapons closer to the fallen Taliban stronghold to cut off escape routes for Taliban leaders and fighters from Osama bin Laden's terror network.

Associated Press

Former Taliban fighters sit inside a cell at a jail complex in Shebargan, Afghanistan, Sunday, Dec. 9, 2001. They surrendered to the northern alliance following their defeat in Kunduz, Afghanistan. One-third of them are suspected to be members of al-Qaida.

On Tuesday, Sept. 11, 2001, the United States suffered an attack against her people. To Americans all over the world, the earth stood still as they held their breath to find out what had happened. President George W. Bush promised the nation to "hunt down those responsible" and to make sure that justice was served. On January 3, 2001, the President received confirmation from Congress that he could authorize the use of US Armed Forces against those responsible for the attacks launched against the United States.

The official notification from Congress authorized the President to "use all necessary and appropriate force against those nations, organizations, or persons he determines planned, authorized, committed, or aided the terrorist attacks that occurred on Sept. 11, 2001."

When the war began, the public knew it as Operation Infinite Justice and special forces were sent to Afghanistan to map out the terrain long before infantry troops set foot on foreign soil. Within 24 hours, complaints from Muslims across the nation sent Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and others looking for a new name for the war that was brewing in Afghanistan. The name was changed to Operation Enduring Freedom because in the Muslim faith, infinite justice is something that only Allah can provide. Rumsfeld later stated that the new name was appropriate because it reminded Americans that the battle would be long but that he believed that the nation was strong enough to withstand it.

Ground troops arrived in Afghanistan some time later as air strikes began in an attempt to flush out Osama bin Laden, the man believed to be responsible for the Sept. 11 attacks. American troops fought side by side and cleared caves with troops from the United Kingdom, Norway, and Australia, Canada, Denmark, Germany and France. The goal for Enduring Freedom is clear - seek out those responsible and ensure that justice is served.

Though Operation Enduring Freedom may be a long battle, the American people will be able to get through it because the reasons why have a deeper sentiment that lies in the hearts. We are still wounded from the attacks at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, and in Pennsylvania. We need to show terrorists that they cannot enter our country and destroy our nation or her people. We are resilient and we will get through this with the help of fellow man and our faith.

ANTHRAX SCARE

Before Sept. 11, 2001

the threat of biological terrorism didn't exist in the minds of the American people. After the attacks; however, bio-terror took on a whole new meaning as people found themselves faced with the threat of anthrax.

Anthrax, a disease believed to be nonexistent in the United States, reared its ugly head shortly after the September 11 attacks. It is caused by a type of bacteria known as Bacillus anthracis. This bacteria produces spores that can lead to serious infections and even death.

Mary Boyington, a graduate student in French, did not believe that anthrax ever posed a threat to the country. "I did not suspect that it was international terrorism. I thought that it was domestic, like the Unibomber...someone who took advantage of the weaknesses of our country and used it to attack," she said.

Darby Fontenot, a junior in accounting, never believed that this was something that people had to worry about. "I wasn't really scared. Nothing ever happens in Lafayette... or in Louisiana," she said.

Jeff Corbello, a senior in education, claimed that the city was not a top priority on a bio-terrorists list. "I wasn't really worried at all because Lafayette isn't important enough to be sent anything or to be attacked," he said.

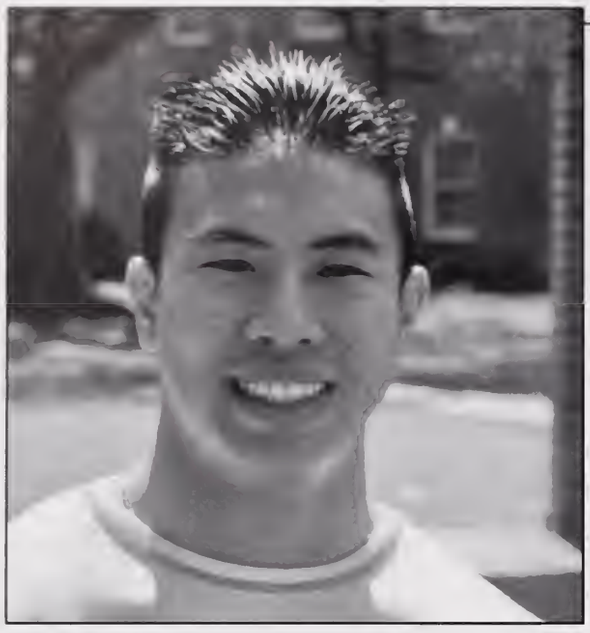

Almost as quickly as it appeared, anthrax has disappeared without a trace. No new cases have been reported and the FBI has failed to find out who started the anthrax explosion or where the strains had been developed.

9-11 Student Comments

Anthony Cao
Freshman - Computer Engineering
"I was devastated. As a minority, I am now more cautious as to not do anything stupid or alarming. I am more aware of the terrorism problems this world has. I felt a sense of hopelessness because there was nothing that I could do to help."

Tim Mitchell
Senior - Political Science
"My initial reaction was total anger, then sadness for the victims and their families. Confusion and fear began to enter my mind. I believe that we as Americans are closer and emotionally intact with each other. Although I did not lose anyone personally, as a US citizen and an Army Officer, I feel as if I had."

Chartina Norman
Senior - Criminal Justice
"I was extremely shocked and surprised because I didn't expect anything like that to happen here. After the attack, I suffered from nervousness and anxiety because I did not know what to expect next. I think that it has made us stronger. Americans now have more of a reason to value our freedom. We can no longer take it for granted."

Jason Crooks
Freshman - Public Relations
"The tragedy that happened on 9/11 was a horrific occurrence that ripped our nation apart. Yet, the silver lining to this black cloud is that the people of our nation were forced to look beyond their differences in order to cooperate in mending the land that we all call "home." It is so unfortunate though that it took such a catastrophic wake up call as this for us to come together as a nation."

Shelton Evans
Junior - Political Science
"I believe that Sept. 11 has been a wake-up call for our country. It was a tragic and horrific event but it has made our country and people more aware that we are not immune from terrible acts of violence. The citizens have gained more pride of country as for a sense of togetherness, but we have also developed stereotypes against Muslim people, which I hope will change."

Shytishia Moore
Senior - Political Science
"The very first thing that I did when I saw it on the news was drop down to my knees and started to pray. I felt pain in my heart and soul for those people on the planes and the World Trade Center. I prayed for survival and for their relatives to get through it. My soul cried inside."

LaRae Hogan
Senior - Political Science
"I believe that Sept. 11 has made US citizens realize that although we are an international superpower, we are still vulnerable and capable of being attacked. Because of this tragic event, many lives were lost, but it has made us open our eyes and be well-prepared for things that can and maybe will happen to us."

Ashley Kern
Freshman - Interior Design
"My family's life was affected because my uncle was in the Pentagon when it was attacked. We cried all day because there was no word on if he was alive or not. To go through something like that, it makes you realize how special the people around you really are! I think that 9/11 will hopefully help bring our country together and people will stop worrying about the minor details of life. It's time to think about how special it is to be apart of the freedom in our country."

Beth Lacour
Sophomore - Psychology
"Initially, I felt a tremendous combined sense of fear, helplessness, deep sorrow for the lives lost, and a great deal of sadness. I have gained a greater appreciation for the freedom and safety I live in, as well as a new sympathy for those who live in constant fear of war. My feelings on nationalism and patriotism have also risen."

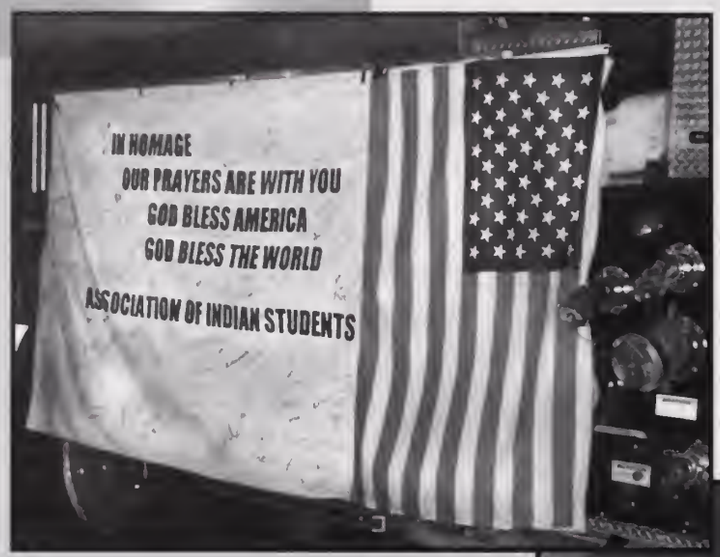

Shannon Sinegal
Senior - Political Science
"I did not lose anyone, but a very good friend of mine lost a dear friend."

Ulysses Joseph II
Freshman - Mass Communications
"I was shocked and surprised at what happened. It really did not hit me until later on in the day. When I fully realized what was going on, I was in disbelief."

Nicolette Joseph
Sophomore - Child and Family Studies
"I was very sad about the disaster that took place on 9/11. It made me afraid to fly on an airplane. This act of terrorism stirred anger and despair inside of me. But, I do believe that the attack brought America closer together, spiritually and mentally."

"...nothing that I could do..."
"I was in disbelief."
"My soul cried inside."

Campus Unites to Heal

Rick Garneau

"It was the first time that I was able to express my sorrow over the September 11th attacks."

-Chris Flis

Over the course of the campus sponsored relief events, students and faculty gathered to roll up their sleeves and donate blood that was so desperately needed. With the extent of injuries that had been received in the terrorist attacks, it was urgent that the blood banks be kept well stocked. Gladly students lined up alongside of their teachers and waited for their opportunity to help the lives of others.

With all of the buzz and efforts that were occurring on campus, various religious leaders gathered to pay their respects, along with the student body, at a special candlelight vigil to be held in honor of the victims and heros. The vigil was important to the campus community. It allowed for students to show their grief and sorrow for a tragedy that struck the heart of America. Visions of a strong an great nation were scarred by ghastly images. People felt vulnerable and afraid, wondering how something like this could have happened.

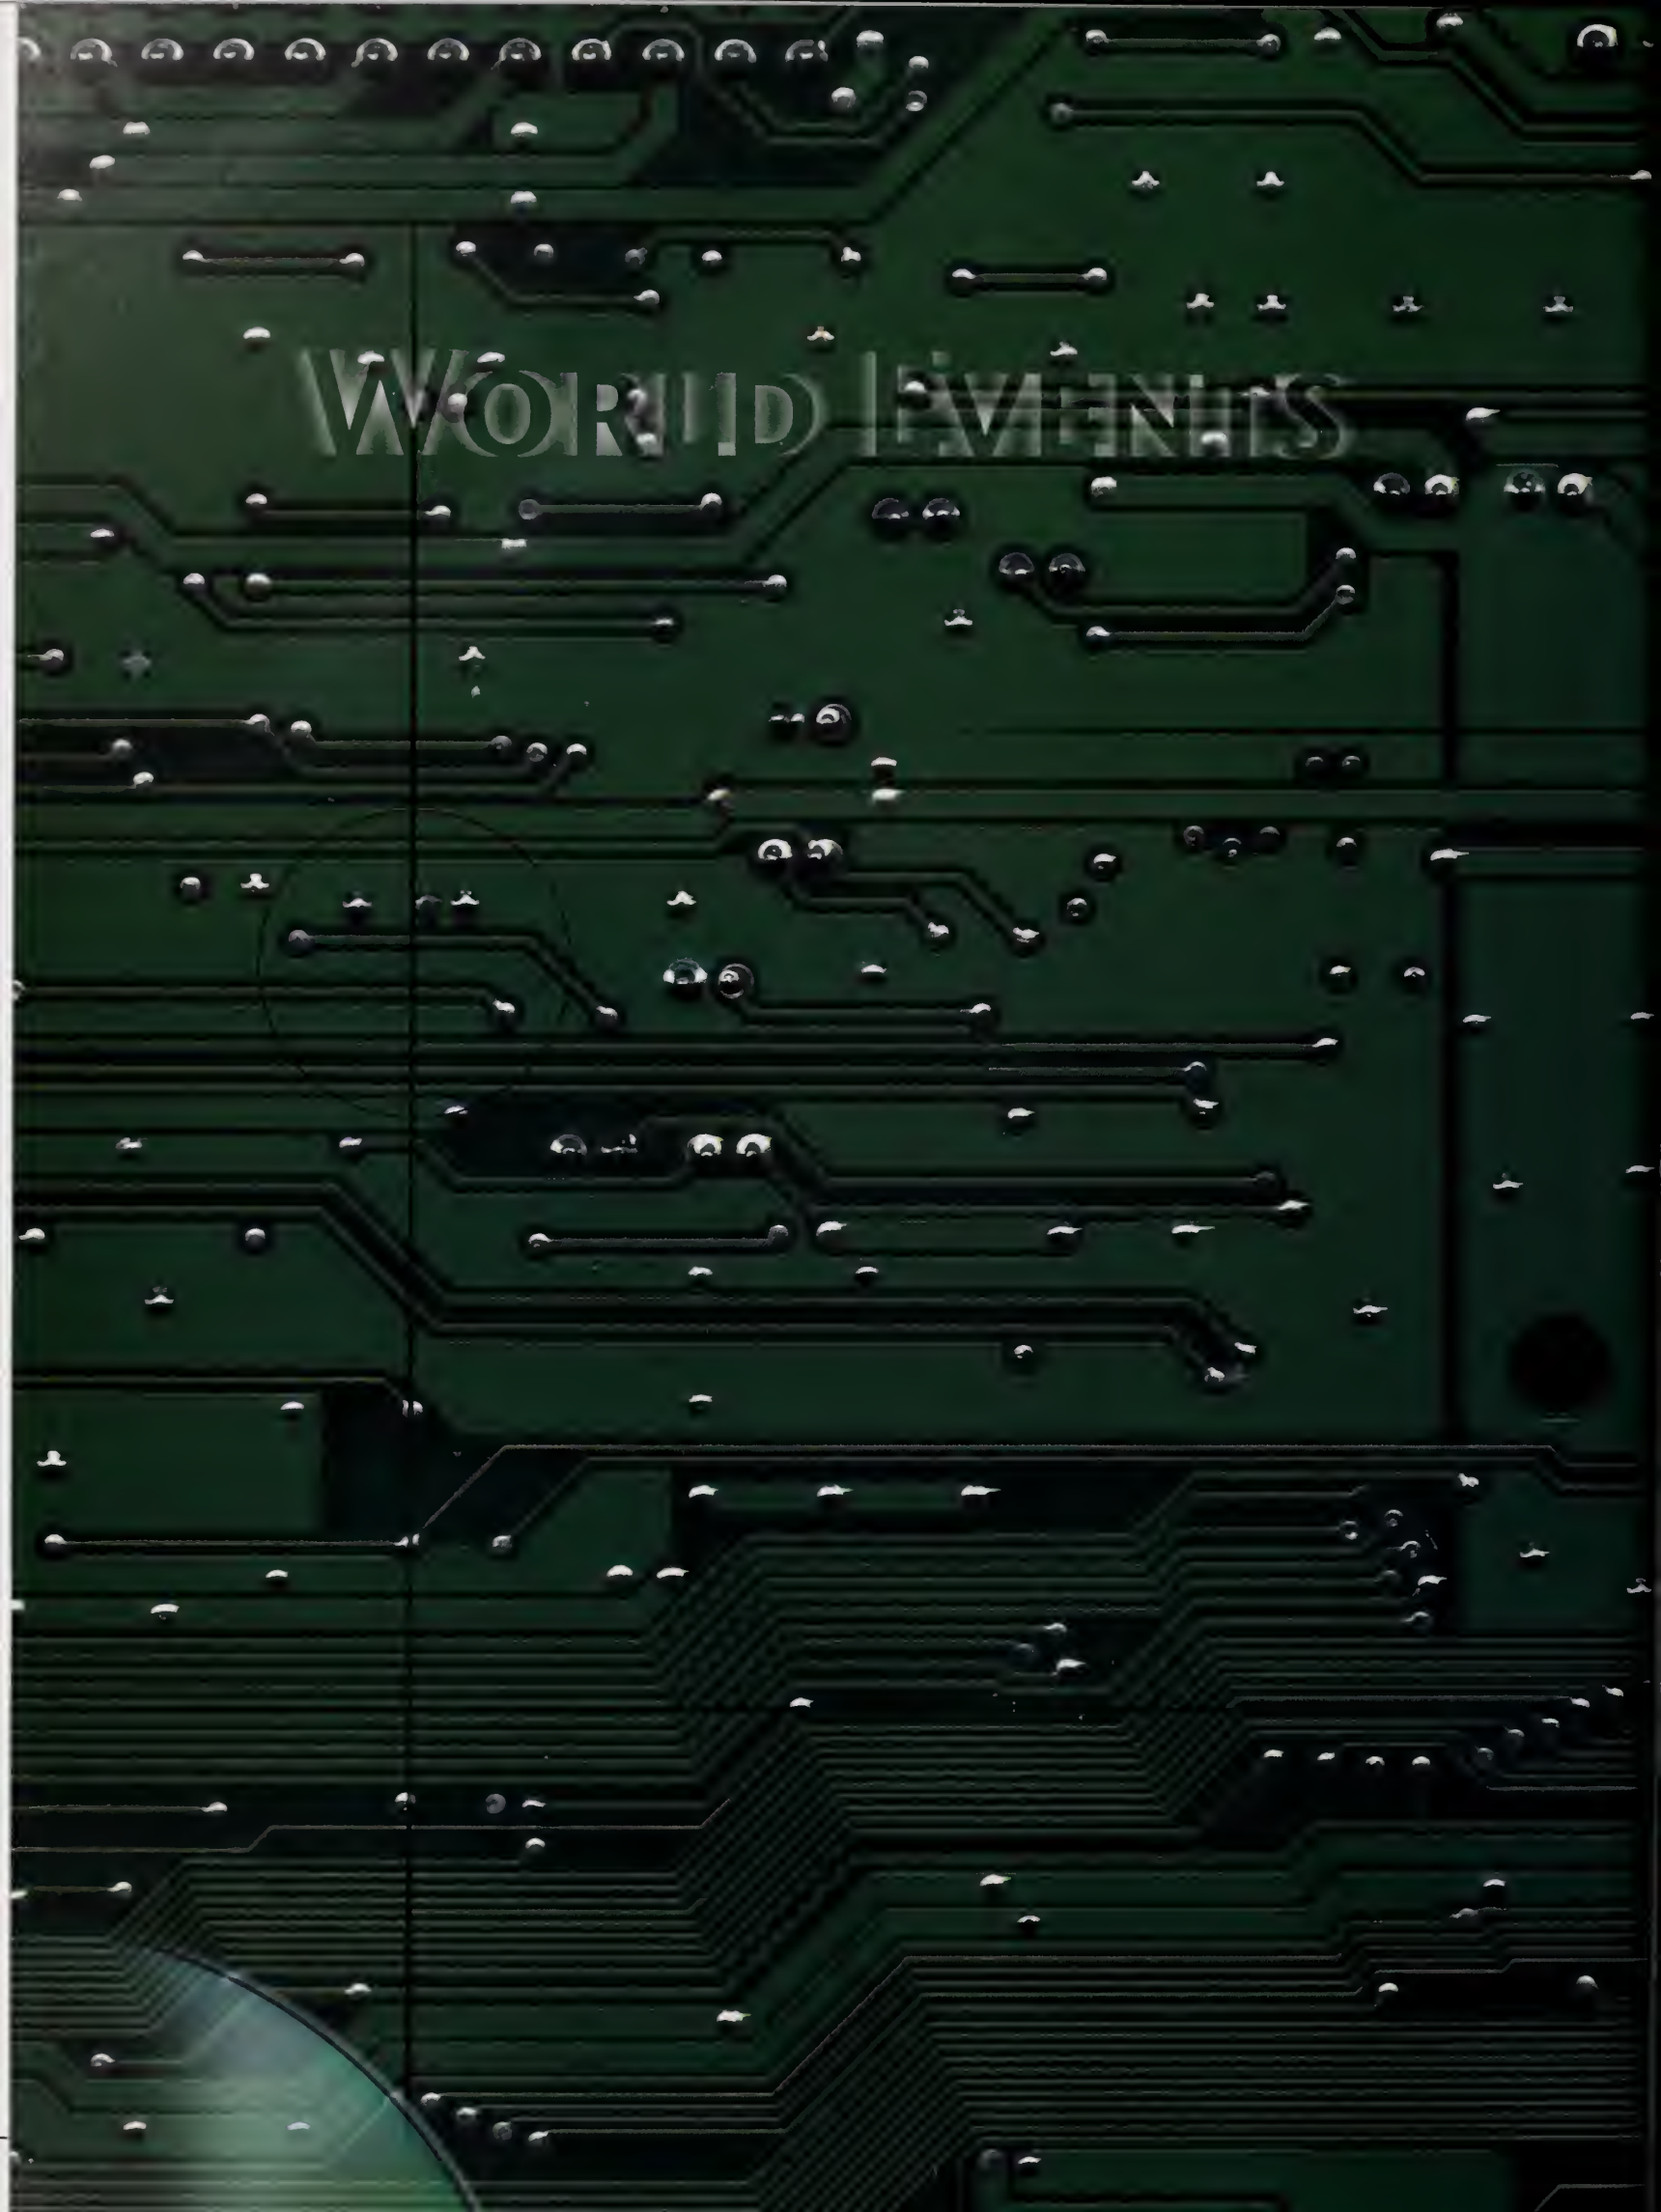

With candles and American flags in hand, students of various religious faiths and backgrounds gathered to send their condolences for the lives lost and those which were barely hanging on.

Chris Flis, a junior in English, expressed his feelings after attending the vigil. "It was the first time that I was able to express my sorrow over the September 11th attacks," he said. "I was completely awe-struck by the number of students who turned out. It's nice to see our campus community show such respect and patriotism."

While the country was beginning to mend a terrible wound, UL-Lafayette students and faculty members gathered to give from the bottom of their hearts - whatever the cost. In the eyes of university leaders, UL-Lafayette showed the true definition of a unified community.

Ronald Lajaunie
Wayne Theriot

Following the retirement of the university's former vice president of business and finance, the duties of the position were divided. In 1997, Wayne Theriot and Ronnie Lajaunie were appointed to share the responsibilities of the department.

Theriot, assistant vice president of business affairs, graduated from the then - University of Southwestern Louisiana in 1972. Through the next four years, he worked for various private companies before beginning work as the university bursar.

"I took the position because of my feeling for the university and my dedication to it," said Theriot.

Lajaunie, a graduate of 1974, also began working with the university a few years after graduation in 1977. Lajaunie serves as assistant vice president of finance. Both men have worked with various departments within the university since they began working at the university.

"Some of our duties overlap, but it works out well," said Lajaunie.

Theriot described how the division works: "I oversee the business services, accounts payable, payroll, etc. Ronnie handles things like the university's annual report."

Lajaunie added, "I mostly deal with the budgets and financial reports of the university."

Theriot and Lajaunie are both avid UL Lafayette fans attending both home and away games. "We both take our wives to every home game of just about every sport on campus," said Theriot.

Outside of the university they serve as referees for high school football. Lajaunie is an avid golf player.

As UL Lafayette continues to grow with the latest technology, many business processes will continue to be streamlined.

"Since I have started in this position, I have seen the evolution of many methods of business become more student-friendly. I find that you will get more students who appreciate the time that these improvements save them," Theriot said.

Della Bonette

Most students are unaware of the duties UL Lafayette's administrators. Still more are not even aware of the lives they lead outside of Martin Hall.

Della Bonnette, vice president of information technology, helps to provide the technological infrastructure for the university as well as its outreach programs. A few of her responsibilities include computing, networking, printing and media services, KRVS, Continuing Education, the Marine Survival Training Center and Edith Garland Dupre' Library.

Continuing Education is a service area that provides non-credit courses that provides fun, business and industrial training to members of the community. The Marine Survival Training Center provides vital training to offshore workers in an effort to prevent accident fatalities.

Still, this is not all that Bonnette does. Her responsibilities also include the technical service areas such as Computing Support Services, Information Networks, the Microscopy Center and the telephone system.

"One of the greatest rewards is to have the association with so many talented people, both students and faculty," she said.

The first of two projects that she is currently working on are the donation of $1 million to build an open access computer lab, complete with classrooms and testing rooms, at the site of McNaspy Stadium. The second is a student identification/debit card that would give students access to dormitories, vending machines, copy machines, meals and even purchase their textbooks.

While Bonnette is busy working on new ideas to improve the technological infrastructure of UL Lafayette, she does maintain an active life outside of the realms of Martin Hall.

"I enjoy camping, hiking, cooking, and reading," she said. She also freely admits to another interest of hers - riding motorcycles. "My husband, son and I like to ride motorcycles," she said laughing. "We've traveled up to New England, Colorado, and California."

So while she's planning and implementing new technological strategies for the student, faculty and administrative body at UL Lafayette, she thoroughly enjoys the time she has to be Della Bonnette.

University Advancement

Gerald Nicles

The current organization of the Office of University Advancement has evolved a great deal within the last few years. Upon the departure of the former vice president of University Advancement, the department reorganized itself with collective leadership in mind.

Liz Landry serves as the director of advancement services. "When the former VP left, someone still had to funnel paperwork and keep the identity of the department," Landry said. "I feel like I have kept us together as a unit."

Leading the department along with Landry are several other individuals. Julie Simon-Dronet serves as the director of public relations and news services, Sharee Broussard is the executive director of the Alumni Association, and heading the office of development is John Landry.

These departments work together to enhance the university's prestige, keep alumni informed and raise private funds to support university endeavors.

The UL Lafayette Centennial campaign was headed by this department. "I think that Centennial is the greatest thing our area ever did," Landry said. "The PR [public relations] office used it as an opportunity to showcase the university, the Alumni Association facilitated the return of alumni to campus, and Development led a fund raising campaign that brought Foundation assets to $75 million. This will help to attract top notch students and faculty," Landry added.

The department keeps the future in mind. "A lot of positive things continue to happen because of Centennial," Landry said. "Our need now is to look at other things to continue support for our university."

With this in mind, the department has set its sights on athletics. Landry continued, "Athletics is an important part of people's lives, as an area we need to work on recognizing and enhancing our sports program. It is important for the university, it is important for the students and it is important for our economy."

Landry concluded, "As a department, we hope that students realize that there will come a day when they will think back fondly of their time at the university: it would be nice if we could help them to still feel at home here regardless of where their life has taken them."

Edward Pratt

Edward A. Pratt, Dean of Students, has had a long and successful career at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette. His path to Dean of Students was paved when he was on a football scholarship at USL and was offered the chance to work with the Deans of Men. He was offered an internship and stayed until he was offered an opportunity to work with Dr. George Coussan, Director of University of College. While helping Dr. Coussan to run the office, Dean Pratt says that he had the opportunity to learn a lot from him. "He [Coussan] was one of those teachers that you look back and know that he was a great influence - a mentor," he said.

After teaching and coaching at Northside High, Dean Pratt came to UL Lafayette as an Assistant Dean of Men. "Dr. Authement said that Dean Able was retiring and reassembling a new staff in the Dean of Men's office," he said. "He wanted to me to join and I did that summer."

Four years later, in 1973, Dean Pratt became the Dean of Student Personnel after the offices of Dean of Men and Dean of Women combined. He then became the Director of Financial Aid until moving on to the position of Dean of Student Affairs and then Dean of Student Services. He didn't come into his current position until 1990 and now currently oversees all department heads.

The areas of his career that Dean Pratt is most proud of are helping to create Fraternity Row, serving as advisor to SGA and completing the process of building the new residence halls. The new resident halls are considered by him to be the greatest improvement for students. Within the eight units, 468 students will be housed.

On a typical day, Dean Pratt can be seen walking around campus and associating with students. Though he is seen in many places around campus, he does have a very busy job. Aside from heading and daily administering the 13 departments under him, he also acts as a channel between students and other departments to get things accomplished that work outside of the UL Ombudsman area of capability. "Students may not get what they want, but at least they don't walk away feeling angry," he said. He continued by stating that he tries to get them to see what went wrong and where.

While UL is a major part of his life, he also enjoys his own free time. Time that he can spend hunting, fishing with his wife or spending time with his children and grandchildren. "We love to spend time with them whenthey are in town," he said smiling. He also admitted the he and his wife, along with other university staff members enjoy spendingtime together outside of work. "We [my wife and I] socialize with our friends and a lot of people within the university on non-business time," he said.

While Dean Pratt may be busy in Martin Hall orwalking campus meeting and greeting students, onething is for certain - Dean Pratt loves all of his students and UL.

College of the ARTS

This year has been a very exiting one for the College of Arts, especially in the school of architecture.

The proposal for implementing a master's degree program within the college started about three years ago and now will become effective in Fall 2002. The energy level in Fletcher Hall has peaked among students and faculty.

"We are the first of all of the schools in the state to make this change to the program," Robert McKenny, director of architecture said. Everyone has given positive feedback on this change.

"I think it's a good thing, a strong asset to the College of Arts," said Diane Ortego, a second year architecture student.

Along with having the master's degree program approved, the architecture program was busy with such activities as writing up a new graduate course, planning design week, presenting a lecture series and breaking ground for a new art museum.

Design week went pleasantly. As usual, there was a between-class volley ball tournament and the annual crawfish boil in Girard Park.

The next best thing to happen to the college was the visitation of the National Architectural Accreditation Board (NAAB). "It was a good visit," said Gordon Brooks, dean of College of the Arts. "Faculty were busy preparing the department for the accreditation team. We got a lot of compliments."

"I am confidant the we will achieve a full term accreditation," Dean Brooks added.

College of BUSINESS

The College of Business, the second largest College on campus, contains about 2,400 undergraduate students and about 200 graduate students according to Dean Michael Fromuller. The College of Business offers eight majors: professional land and resource management, accounting, business systems analysis and technology (BSAT), management, economics, finance, risk management and insurance (RMI) and marketing.

The professional land and resource management degree offered by UL Lafayette is one of only six such degree programs in the United States and Canada. This degree program trains students to be knowledgeable about Louisiana Mineral Law, Department of Conservation information retrieval procedures, local parish/county systems for recording information on property ownership, U.S. government regulations relating to offshore leasing matters as administered by the Minerals Management Division of the Department of Interior and techniques and procedures for conducting environmental assessments. Many other facets of managing land and related resources are also taught in the curriculum.

An accounting degree prepares students for professional careers in all aspects of accounting. Traditional service areas such as auditing, income tax compliance and planning, financial planning an others are covered by a degree in accounting. Also included are newer areas such as assurance services, environmental accounting, forensic accounting, litigation support services and asset valuation services.

BSAT, a new business major, teaches how to design and manage information systems and how to integrate emerging technologies in to business strategy. Students will learn how to program a computer and modify computer/network configurations in order to manage such operations rather than to do the work themselves.

The largest department in the College of Business Administration is management, with over 700 majors. Students are recruited by local, regional, and national organizations.

Economics, the foundation science of the College of Business, provides the basis for the study of business decision making, from which the disciplines of finance, management, marketing and international business are derived.

Finance integrates the combined techniques of of information technology, economics, accounting, and management.

RMI majors are offered an interdisciplinary course of study to help prepare them for important careers in risk management, insurance or any related financial service industry. Students are also encouraged to participate in approved paid programs.

Marketing, one of the highest paying professional fields in the world, involves learning how to understand and measure consumer wants and needs.

UL Lafayette offers internships for all majors within the College of Business as well as scholarships for students in their respective majors.

Dean Fromuller said, "It's a really cool major where you can make a lot of money."

College of NURSING

Did you know that UL Lafayette is home to the fifth largest nursing program in the country? Or the fact that over 1,000 nursing students, over 100 being registered nurses, graduate each year from the program? These nursing students face the world of health care with a strong foundation.

"Wherever a client needs health care, that is where a nurse should be; so that's what we try to do with our students as well. We provide them with a multitude of opportunities," Dr. Melinda Oberleitner, department head, stated.

The first nursing students enrolled in September 1951 at what was then SLI. The first freshman class contained 20 students, with six in the first graduating class of 1955. This year, the College of Nursing celebrated its 50th anniversary with a reception at the Alumni House. Different uniforms, patches and textbooks were displayed along with commemorative pens that marked the College's milestone.

The curriculum for a degree in nursing has undergone many changes in the past 50 years, along with the traditional nursing student. Computer technology has been integrated in almost all classes, beginning with Nursing 101.

"Nursing historically has been a primarily young, female major; now, many students are second-career students, not just the 18-year-old out of high school, Oberleitner stated.

Nursing students get experience in many different clinical settings. They not only work in the hospital but do rotations in jails, nursing homes, shelters, school clinics, Hospice and Home Health.

The College of Nursing continues to challenge future health care professionals long into the future.

College of ENGINEERING

Flooding. Worn out bridges. Highway speed limits. Pot Holes. Lafayette traffic. More than a few of these have been on your "Things to Complain About" list at one time or another. But the fine folks at our College of Engineering are not complaining at all. They're rolling up their sleeves and doing something about it.

Take Dr. Ehab Meselhe - a specialist in hydrology and hydrolysis - for instance. While we hurry about our day he uses sophisticated equipment to work on our flood control problem. And then there's Dr. Jamal Katt, who is into Pavement Engineering. He scored a grant from the Board of Regions that allowed him to build a testing facility for pavement. You may not thank him for it, but the shocks on your car will.

The College of Engineering is making changes to its campus appearance as well. Madison Hall, which houses the department of chemical, civil, electrical, computer and petroleum engineering, is undergoing extensive construction.

According to Anthony Ponter, the Dean of Engineering, renovations will be completed by September 2002. "A new building housing faculty offices and teaching rooms and theaters is in the planning stage," Ponter said. It should also be noted that one of the three buildings being built at the former sight of McNapsy will be given to the engineering department.

With over 1500 students enrolled in the college, these renovations excite engineering students. Brandy Guidry, a senior in chemical engineering, agrees. "I am glad to see the college improving. It will definitely attract more students who are interested in engineering, because our college is accredited and has a good program," Guidry said.

In reference to accreditation, the College of Engineering maintains national accreditation in all programs. This past year it was visited by two agencies both of which gave beyond satisfactory remarks. According to Ponter, the Accreditation Board of Engineering and Technology (ABET) said the college had absolutely no deficiencies. While the National Association of Industrial Technologies (NAIT) preliminary assessment said the college has an excellent program with well educated students.

Perhaps this knowledge will be used to try to work on the many problems mentioned previously. After all, one of the goals of the college is to "direct its activities towards economic development, especially in the areas of manufacturing and telecommunications, corrosion engineering and transportation."

College of LIBERAL ARTS

The College of Liberal Arts, headed by Dr. David Barry, is one of the largest colleges on the campus of the UL Lafayette. Throughout the academic year, each department sponsors functions as a way to get acquainted with its students and even brings home national recognition.

In the Modern Languages Department, UL France gives students the opportunity to participate in an exploratory summer program in which students can earn up to six collegiate credits. Since 1986, UL/France has exposed students to other cultures while helping them to take advantage of the European environment.

The History Department organizes a trip to the Western part of the country every summer for students. Headed by Dr. Carriker, the main focus of the trip is Wyoming.

The Communication Department holds an annual banquet for members of its honor society, Sigma Gamma Mu. This year the banquet was held at the Lafayette Petroleum Club in the Oil Center. The banquet honors its members for outstanding academic achievement in the area of communication.

Spring 2002 brought with it recognition to the public relations program it received the honor of being ranked number eight in the country for its graduate program.

The spring semester also led the way for the advertising program's yearly American Advertising Federation regional competition. Headed by Dr. William Swain, members of the advertising campaigns class presented their campaign project at a regional competition in Atlanta.

The English Dept. also held its annual Deep South Festival of Writers and published its annual Southwestern Review. The Deep South Festival of Writers is the oldest writer's conference in this part of the country and UL Lafayette has received the honor of being its host. Dr. Jerry McGuire, who helps to coordinate the event, had much to say about the conference.

"We try to make this the one circumstance of the year in which we bring to campus national and international writers to read, give workshops, and perform," he said.

The Southwestern Review is published every spring after a call for submissions in the fall. "The Review is funded by students and it reflects both graduate and undergraduate works."

While these are just a few examples of the activities conducted within the College of Liberal Arts, it is easy to see that the various departments are reaching out to their students to get them involved.

College of EDUCATION

The College of Education at UL Lafayette, now under redesign, has the largest number of graduates currently teaching in Louisiana.

The state mandates that all education majors take 31 hours in a primary teaching area and 19 hours in their secondary teaching area. With help from other colleges, courses have been restructured in order to gear those classes specifically for the target certification levels.

The National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), now requires that students have at least 150 hours of field experience prior to student teaching.

Gerald Carlson, acting dean, said: "The classes we teach for our education majors are going to have a field component built in. We ask the other colleges that have classes specifically for education majors to build in some sort of laboratory or field experience so the students have hands-on experience before they actually go and student teach."

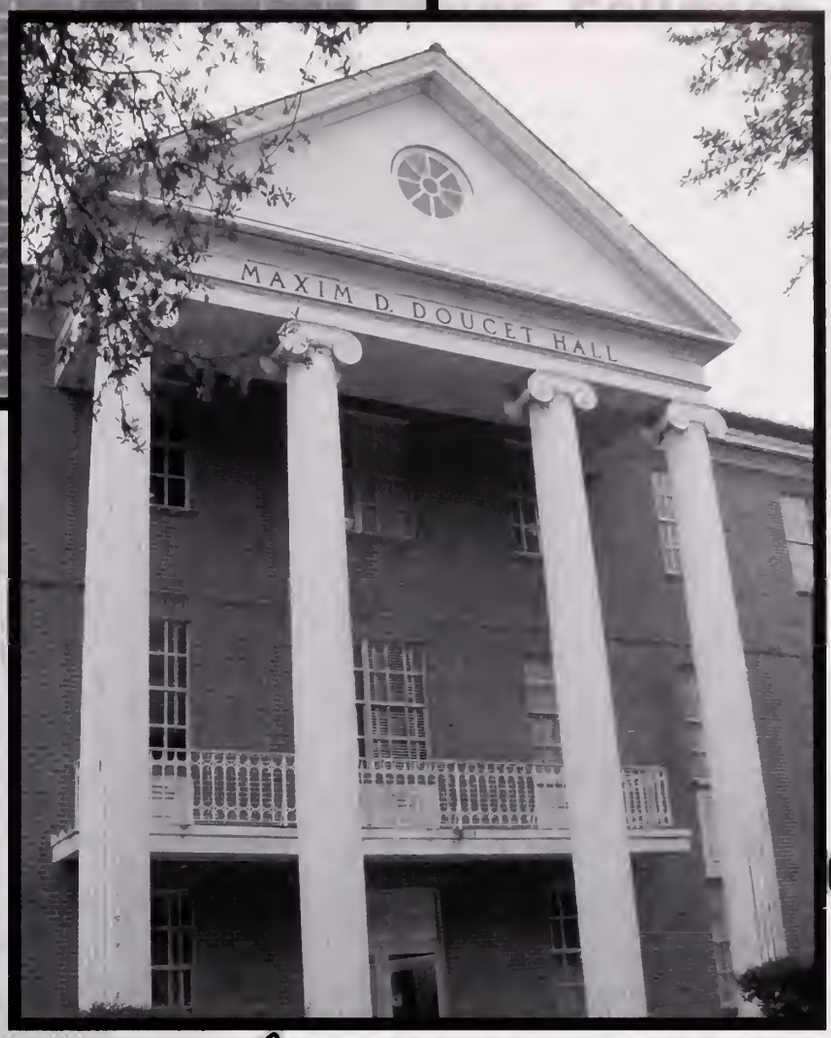

The Blue Ribbon Commission on Teacher Quality has required that all universities establish a partnership with at least one public school. The schools in the partnerships are called Professional Development Schools (PDS). The UL Lafayette College of Education has the only counseling PDS in the United States and Louisiana's only Master of Education program specializing in the education of the gifted.

"We have a very unique program that nobody else is doing in this state with LSUE. Students receive their first 16-65 hours at LSUE, then we send faculty to LSUE for students finishing their last two years of the program. We have two PDSs right there with us. It has been a tremendous program because the students from there don't even have to come to Lafayette, we deliver up there," Carlson explained.

College of GENERAL STUDIES

The aim of the College of General Studies is to help students; especially those who are readying for graduation. Students can visit Declouet Hall and arrange to be tutored in many different subjects, including Spanish. The College of General Studies has also made two computers available in Declouet Hall for student use. These are in addition to labs where several more computers are available.

Cornell Mallory, the assistant to the administrative secretary in this department, helps with many of the office duties as well as student assistance. "Students who want to focus on a certain area of study would take general studies," said Mallory. The curriculum is comprised of a total of 36 enrichment courses along with 12 hours of English, history, math, science and electives. Students are required to take 24 hours in their area of concentration and are encouraged to continue on to graduate school or go into professional practice. "This area of study is great for students who wish to start their own business in a particular concentration," said Mallory.

The flexibility of the major attracts people of diverse interests and backgrounds. "Unlike what many people believe, General Studies has been undertaken by students of all nationalities," Mallory stated. "It is a widely undertaken major."

College of SCIENCES

Many say variety is the spice of life. UL Lafayette's College of Sciences proves just that.

Science includes a variety of different studies and so does our science department. Offering majors in biology, resource biology and biodiversity, chemistry, computer science, geology, mathematics, health information management, microbiology and physics, a student seeking an education in science has many options.

In addition the college offers curriculum to prepare students to attend professional school in areas such as medicine, dentistry, physical therapy, pharmacy and others.

"Initially I had a major in pre-pharmacy with the intent of going to pharmacy school. However after my first year here I changed my mind," Mary Pickney, a junior in microbiology, said.

"The faculty is great. They have a more personal approach," Pickney continued. "I think the experience of the professors and the research that is done here really makes the College of Sciences stand out." Pickney currently plans to attend medical school.

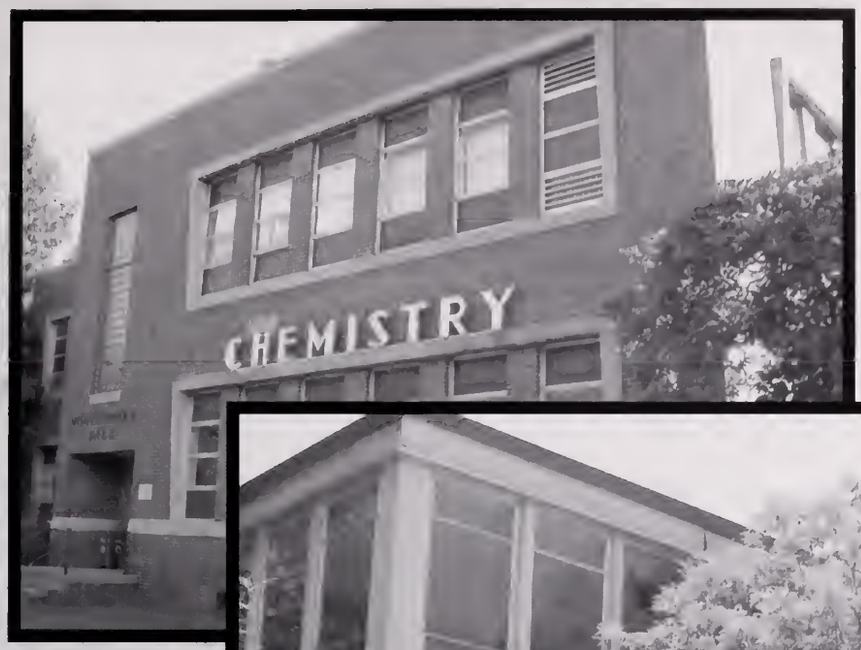

In 1990, the biology department was recognized as the best in the State of Louisiana by an independent panel of distinguished biologists. The department is housed in two buildings, Billeaud Hall and Wharton Hall. Major facilities include the Microscopy Center, well equipped research laboratories, a nucleic acid analysis facility, aquatic laboratories, Herbarium, zoological collections, a living protist culture collection, and a shop maintained by a full-time technician.

Also under the College of Sciences is the department of health information management. It is one of only two schools in Louisiana offering a bachelor of science degree in health information management.

Master's and doctoral degrees are also offered for those who wish to pursue graduate studies in science.

As a whole, the College Sciences at UL Lafayette offers undergraduate and graduate students several different options and opportunities so that they are prepared for their respective careers.

APPLIED LIFE SCIENCES

"To foster sustainable living through the responsible application of human and natural resource sciences," reads the mission statement of the College of Applied Life Sciences.

The website for the college states, "The College of Applied Life Sciences offers a higher-education experience that includes academic knowledge, practical insight and social opportunity."

Opportunities are numerous for a student pursuing a career with a degree from this college. Degree programs available include renewable resources, environmental and sustainable resources, sustainable agriculture, preveterinary, preforestry, preagricultural engineering, vocational-education agricultural education, dietetics, child and family studies, apparel design and merchandising, and hospitality management.

Not only are 12 different areas of specialization available, but the college offers several sites on and off campus where students are able to obtain knowledge and experience in their respective careers.

Housed in Hamilton Hall, this building also offers soil and plant research labs, nutrition labs, computer facilities and a student run Lunch Club which operates in the Hospitality Management Lab. Students who participate in the Lunch Club prepare and serve lunches to members of the Lafayette community biweekly. This prepares students for a career in food service and hospitality.

Other facilities available to a student pursuing a major in the College of Applied Life Sciences include the UL Lafayette Nursery School, Ira Nelson Horticulture Center, the Crawfish Research Center, the Acadiana House (formerly called Harmony House), the Model Sustainable Agricultural Complex (formerly Cade Farm) and the UL Lafayette Apparel Computer-Integrated Manufacturing (A-CIM) Center.

Basically each major has some form of facility accessible by students. It is this variety of programs and services that represents the College of Applied Life Sciences. "Our college operates numerous auxiliary units for education, demonstration, and research. Students learn experientially, in teams and individually as they work on projects in our classrooms and auxiliary units and in internships in greater Lafayette."

YEAR IN REVIEW

It's difficult to know where to begin when encompassing a year that has been so exciting yet heartbreaking and triumphant yet tragic.

In the beginning, the 2001-2002 year would have appeared to be no different than any other in recent memory. The football team was not expecting greatness and the men's basketball team was. The women's basketball team predicted little, while the tennis squads were looking up. Track and field was to be very young in players' age as the women's soccer team was a newborn squad. Volleyball was working hard as intramural sports were growing rapidly. Baseball was hoping for another good season and softball was expecting one. Golf was to play quietly as the Ragin Jazz and Cheerleaders screamed out loud. The year looked to be smooth sailing. Little did the teams or coaches know that the situation would change very rapidly.

The sporting year would begin as it always does, with football at the helm. Fan attendance was low and the NCAA didn't like it. Apparently neither did sports administration. Head coach Jerry Baldwin was released and Rickey Bustle was to take his place place. Aptly named was Bustle's campaign... "Bustle Up...It's a new game!" Bustle hustled fans around and got everyone fired up about the season to come.

Men's basketball would make it to the Sun Belt Conference Championships and drop a heartbreaker in the finals; they would follow it up with a loss at the NIT. Women's basketball would play a heartbreaker of a season and head coach Gay Nix would resign. Volleyball would play well, but lose their coach to resignation as well. Women's soccer would tear up the green to advance their standings and begin to build a reputation. The winter holiday placed a nice break from the excitement.

Tragically, the track and field team's head coach Charles Lancon passed away and left the team with the inspiration to surprise themselves. The intramural office would open the gates to its new aquatic center and give the student body some leisure. Golf would play the greens well. Tennis head coach would resign just one year after orchestrating the construction of a new facility. Ragin Jazz and cheerleading are looking at their goals to revamp the program to focus on collective goals rather then individual ones. Both baseball and softball would end their seasons to the LSU Tigers' wrath. However, both teams remain in high spirits as the Lady Cajuns were honored by hosting the NCAA Regional competition and the Cajuns were honored as NCAA Regional runner-up.

The Cajuns have nothing to regret and only good things to look forward to. The Lafayette community can expect to be enticed even more next year to get out there and support our teams.

Tim Ramon

Tim Ramon is a laid back athlete. He enjoys doing things that are relaxing and seems to be cool and collected.

Ramon is a 23 year old general studies major that has been playing baseball since the age of nine. He has aspirations of becoming an athletic director one day and administrating that which made him what he is today.

It has been a frustrating season because Ramon was injured for two months of it. "The team's been doing pretty good I guess, we're winning, but its hard to watch and not be able to play," says Ramon.

Ramon has spent his free time preparing to return rather than killing himself to be active with the team. "My injury has helped me if you consider that I'll be coming into the season fresh just when everyone else is getting soft," optimistically states Ramon.

Ramon married young and has a son to show for it. He is now divorced and working hard to do what he can to make it. "My son is seven and is growing up to be a little ball player, too," proudly states Ramon. "I'm the youngest of seven children, so I have a lot to live up to," says Ramon.

You probably won't find Ramon out at the clubs, because he doesn't like that environment. Ramon does not seem to brag a lot, but the word on the field is that he is very good at billiards. He plays almost every day after practice. "The one thing I love to do is shoot pool. If I'm not on the field, that's where I'm at...I'm a regular over there at Sticks," says Ramon.

Ramon goes out to watch little league games. The logic is in knowing how athletes think on all levels.

Ramon took it easy on the academic side this year by scheduling only twelve hours. Little did he know how easy it would become when he was off the field and in the books. He thinks that it would be nice to be able to go to summer school, but being drafted to the major league is not out of the question. "It's really been relaxing having so much time off," says Ramon.

Ramon also has a fiance' that is a big part of his life. He would like to see her graduate soon.

Ramon loves going fishing, playing golf, seeing movies, pretty much anything relaxing and preferably with his fiance'. In case you didn't pick it up, he's very laid back.

"If I could change this university in any way, I would definitely love to see more people out there at school events. It's disappointing to see someone at our events with an LSU cap on because we're not representing," he says .

MEN'S BASKETBALL

The Cajuns had a very exciting basketball season in 2001-2002. With a record of 20-11, a trip to the Sun Belt Conference Championship game, as well as a trip to the NIT, the team's successes definitely outwieghed any shortcomings. The Cajun's record marks the second time 20 win season in the last three years.

The basketball team is doing just fine as head coach Jessie Evans plans to lead the team to more victories in the near future. No signs of fatigue for the strong team as they storm into the 2002-2003 season with high hopes.

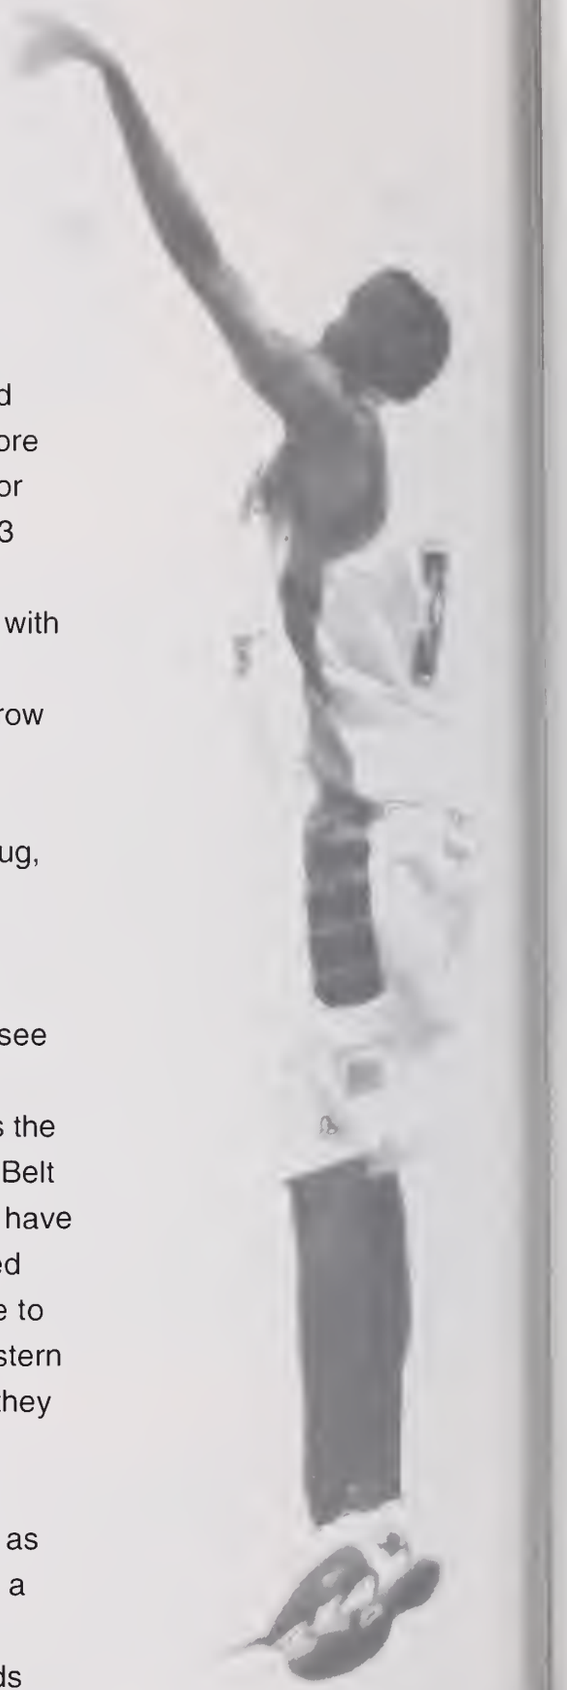

All season, the Cajuns played tough defense with an aggressive offense, and most of their losses were due to small misshaps such as poor freethrow and fouling troubles. After falling to Western Kentucky Evans stated that "once we get a little better in execution and get over the free throw bug, we will be a tough team to beat." He was right.

Promissing for the Cajun future is rookie Michael Southall who broke a school record this year with 70 swats. UL Lafayette can expect to see god things from this player in the future.

What was the highlight of the Cajun year was the trip down to New Orleans to compete for the Sun Belt Conference championship. The Cajuns couldn't have asked for a better tournament as the team walked into the Championship game with a good chacne to win. Unfortunately for the Cajun team, the Western Kentucky team was just too much for them as they dropped a dissappointing six point loss in the finals. What was bad only led to worse, as the Cajuns moved on to the NIT, and disheartened as they were, dropped the ball on the season with a 20 point loss.

The Cajuns have nothing to hang their heads for as they have good things coming their way as they prepare to do it all over again.

Bad Season for the lady cajuns... ...7 wins to their 21 losses

The Ragin Cajuns women's basketballteam did not have a very good season. A losing record and an end of the season bss of a head coach plagued the team this season, as the lady cajun basketball team left the court disheartened in 2002.

The Cajuns would return a 3-12 away record and a 5-9 home record for an 8-21 regular season. Unfortunately for the Cajuns' Sun Belt record, only one of those wins would be against a Sun Belt Conference team. The season was not a total failure, however, as the team gained valuable experience for future seasons. After losing to LSU 81-49, head coach Gay Nix said "We learned a lot from this, and I think there were several bright spots."

What seemed to haunt the Cajun's season was a slew of poor shooting. The Cajun's did manage to put up quite a few very close games as they battled through the season.

Next year, the Lady Cajun's will be guided by J. Kelley Hall, a coach witha lot of collegiate experience. Hall will be replacing Gay Nix as the head coach of the women's basketball team. Nix served six years as head coach. A 19-year collegiate coaching veteran, Hall spent the last two years as associate coach for Louisville's women's basketball team. He also served as their recruiting coordinator and on floor coaching duties of the post players. "My wife and I are pleased to be joining this team," said Hall. "This is a great opportunity for my first Division Ihead coaching job. I'm excited about starting immediately on recruiting," said Hall.

MVP

Brooke Williams

Brooke Williams is a sweetheart. She is very easy to talk to, and has very strong ties to home, family, and community.

Williams is a bright girl who cherishes her small town beginnings. She is majoring in secondary social studies education, and is thinking about going back home to teach and improve her community, but not before attempting graduate school. Williams is apparently following in her father's footsteps as he is a principal. She hopes to do a little coaching as well.

As with most atheletes, Williams is immersed in her sport. Williams is involved in the Boys and Girls Club, however, most of her plans with them have been thwarted by a conflicting Basketball schedule. Williams is also a member of Gamma Beta Phi Honor Society, which keeps her involved in the commmunity in other ways. She is also a member of Phi Alpha Theta, but not a very active one primarily due to the basketball season. "I plan to get more involved after the season is over...in March probably," says Williams.

What does the studious athelete do in her spare time? The answer is study, watch movies, read, talk on the phone, and -last but not least- spend time with family. Williams takes pride in herfamily success. Consisting of one brother, two parents and the little girl (Brooke), the family is tight knit. Williams cannot wait for herbrother to come home from overseas again so she can spend some more time with him.

The team is always supportive of Williams and she gets along quite well with them. She even refers to them as family. They often get together amongst themselves and go out to eat or visit at one another's house. "I love my squad... we build on each other," says Williams.

Schoolwork is not as difficult as it is for most atheletes, as Williams maintains a 3.4 GPA and is working hard to bring it up. "Me and my brother have a little competition...we compare grades from when he was in school, and the winner buys lunch," says Williams. . . she'll even let him supersize it!

She likes to play softballl over the summer, as well as maintain a job at the Boys and Girls Club, but during the schoolyear, basketball is her job.

If everything goes as planned we can expect to see Williams returning for one last season of collegite basketbal, as she plans to graduate in December of 2002. Be sure to keep an eye out for this one next year.

MVP

Kyries Hebert is a man with his head in the clouds and his feet on the ground... literally. At 6'-2" tall, Hebert is the star linebacker for the Ragin Cajun football team.

Hebert is the picture perfect image of the gentle giant. He may be one heck of a football player and a very impressive specimen, but deep down he is a family man with children's best interests in his heart.

Majoring in child and family studies says a lot about Hebert. He has a loving family of his own that is supportive of his aspirations for an NFL career. His wife is his backbone, as she rolls with the punches and makes the best out of what she has. He has one daughter of his own, and probably has plans for more. Hebert loves kids. "My girl (his daughter)... that's my everything," says Hebert.

As for balancing all of the day to day things that make up a student athlete and a husband and father, Hebert feels that with a supportive family, he can do anything.

Individually, Hebert had a pretty good season in 2001, but he won't talk much about it. "My whole career here was never about me, it has always been about the team," says Hebert.

Hebert's grades were keeping him from his family for a little while, as the football team encourages scholastic achievement. "I took that upon myself to do better, and I no longer have to worry about study hall. Now I can spend some time doing what is truly important in my life (family quality time)," says Hebert.

Hebert feels that he can attain what he wants in life if he works hard enough to get it. Hebert now receives A's and B's, and he is truly upset when he receives a C. "You're not promised tomorrow in the NFL, not for long anyway, so I really need to get my act together," says Hebert.

Born and raised in Eunice, La. may very well be what gives this athlete his humble ways. "When I do get to where football is going to take me, I'd like to get my mom, step dad and brother out of Eunice to see some other places," dreams Hebert.

When asked what he does for fun, Hebert responds football, of course. However, when he is not on the field, he likes to spend as much quality time with his family as the weekend will allow. He is also a practicing Baptist.

Hebert is a senior in 2001, and is already doing work with at risk kids over the summer. After graduation and football, Hebert would like to continue his work with at risk kids, and open up a place of his own to help them.

Hebert gives a little bit of advice to underclassmen as he says, "When you're doing things that you enjoy and that you like, you'll never see the difficulty in it."

FOOTBALL

An 8-3 season is not what anyone considers a success. The Cajuns lost their fire in 2001 and the university hopes to rekindle it in 2002. "Nobody likes to lose, it takes the fun out of the games," said senior linebacker Kyries Hebert.

Probably the most optimistic outlook for the future of the Cajuns is from no other than the Cajun's new head coach Rickey Bustle. Bustle was hired just after the end of the season to replace the three year head coach Jerry Baldwin. Bustle wasted no time in getting acquainted with the university and trying to get the fans in the stands. Bustle wants the new Cajun experience to be all it can be, and the university is excited to see it. The community is really starting to get involved with t-shirts, bumper stickers and other paraphernalia featuring the new slogan for the football team-Bustle Up... It's a new game.

"We are extremely happy to have someone of Rickey's enthusiasm and experience here," said Nelson Schexnayder, UL Lafayette's director of athletics.

Bustle's last position as the Virginia Tech offensive coordinator gives him one of the most respected names in collegiate offense. He lead the offense to a bowl game every year that he was there, and he coached a number of quarterbacks into the NFL.

The 2002 schedule has potential for the Cajuns, but the record against the opposing teams combined stands at 35-70-1. UL Lafayette will play two non-conference games, and face opponents from the Big Ten, Big XII, Southeastern Conference and Conference USA. It looks to be a tough season for the Cajuns, but Bustle optimistically comments that "our schedule allows for us to gain national exposure and at the same time compete for a conference championship."

Shut up and DANCE

The Ragin' Jazz Dance Team is comprised of some of the most talented dancers at t University of Louisiana Lafayette. The team spends endless hours making sure that it sta that way.

The dance team is comprised of 17 females that do what they do best at various un versity and community events. The team makes appearances at all UL functions including sporting events, pep rallies, campus fundraisers, etc. They show off their stuff at area parades and sometimes make television appearances.

The dance team's most prestigious event is their competition in Orlando, Fla. Every January is the National Competitions in Orlando, and our team takes pride in attending whenever possible. In fact, in January 2002, the team placed only one space away from finals. That's very good for a squad as busy as UL Lafayette's is.

What most people do not realize is that the dance team is much more involved here at UL Lafayette than many other college teams are. A lot of schools have two squads of dance team, one of which focuses on competition as the other takes care of all Fall sports. At UL Lafayette, the Ragin' Jazz do it all. "It's a lot, I have to be strict on my priorities," said 2001 captain Jennifer Knight.

Another aspect to the dance team is the money. As with many other club sports, the dance team needs to raise money. In an attempt to make money for events, such as competitions that are not directly sponsored by the University of Louisiana the team holds a series of fundraisers. The spirit office publishes a calendar featuring the cheer and dance teams that can be purchased from any one of the members of the cheer and dance squads. The spirit members also judge area high school competitions for a fee that goes directly to the cheer and dance teams. The referendum that was passed in 2002 now provides a stipend that the teams are very grateful for.

The dance team practices on Tuesdays and Thursdays and bumps in another two hours in preparation for the national competition.

The dance team is always on the lookout for new recruits. Tryouts are scheduled annually in April, and are two days in length. To give an idea of what's involved, the first day is a technical tryout focusing on fundamentals and the second day is an evaluation of a learned routine. "You will learn a lot about leadership and dedication... If you have the talent, I would strongly encourage you to go for it," said Knight.

CHEERLEADERS

All for One - Spirit Leaders combined into one squad

No, that is not a misprint...there will be only one cheerleading squad next year. As of the conclusion of the 2001-2002 academic year, the powers that be have decided to make a consolidated team rather than the coed team and the all girls team. The decision was prompted by the need for unity and mutual goals amongst the squad. "We're all here for one purpose and it's not competition, but to serve the university as a whole...we are now one squad with one uniform," says spirit advisor Princess Willis.

In 2001-2002 the two squads participated in the national competition in Orlando, Fla. The coed squad placed eighth and the all girls placed eleventh. The teams were focusing a lot of their attention to competing.

The squad will be practicing three times per week in the summer and two times per week during school. There are open tryouts in April in which any student is invited to attend as well as high school seniors. Currently, there are seven stunters and seven flyers along with a small group of tumblers. The team is lead by one male and one female captain along with a secretary. "Having just one team makes things more manageable... there were just too many people," says coach and business management major Ross Walters.

SOFTBALL

MVP

Melissa Coronado

On the mound is star, senior pitcher Melissa Coronado. She is the beautiful and talented addition to the Lady Cajun softball squad.

Coronado is coming off of a very serious injury (just kidding), as she broke her finger at the end of last year's season of play. "It didn't really hurt my game at all, it was just kind of a shock," remembers Coronado.

Coronado maintains her grades in the best way that she knows how. She admits that school is very difficult because of all the traveling that the team does. "You grow up really fast... time management becomes very important," claims Coronado.

Coronado participates involunteering for the Boys and Girls Club and the Special Olympics. "We try to give back as much as we can when we have time," says Coronado.

Coronado really enjoys spending time with people she feels are bereft of her company; namely her family and friends, whom she doesn't get to see as often as her teammates. As a team, the Lady Cajuns get together once a week to have lunch or dinner, spending time off the field having fun. "All athletes hang out together: football, baseball, soccer, and of course, my teammates who I'm with all the time."

Coronado's favorite restaurant is the Blue Dog Cafe', she enjoys the scenery in California best, and (in her opinion) the best professor at UL Lafayette is Dr.Lyman in Kinesiology.

Coronado feels that the one area of UL Lafayette that she would like to see changed is the parking. She feels that athletes have a uniquely difficult dilemma in that their schedules put them on campus at inopportune times of the day when there is no parking left.

Coronado is majoring in General Studies and is scheduled to graduate in December of 2002. Like many athletes, she would like to coach after graduation. "There have been so many coaches that have taught me so much that I just want to share that with others," says Coronado.

"Everything comes together when you're a senior. You appreciate stuff more, and the way things have been coming together has been really exciting." "We're so busy with our team that there really isn't much time to waste. In the fall we have recruiting and in the spring we have games," comments Coronado.

Amanda Cowieson

The Lady Cajun tennis team did not have the season they might of hoped for. The team had to overcome many obstacles just to compete.

The Cajuns started the year off to a rough start. In the season opener, the Lady Cajuns would be unable to play doubles. Nonetheless, the Cajuns claimed a 5-0 win over the Centenary squad. The loss of coach Brett Schwartz would not stop the Lady Cajuns.

The majority of the Lady Cajun tennis squad would return winning records in singles play. Notable accomplishmentsgo out to Amanda Cowieson at 19-8, Vinca Rampen at 21-6, and Arina Uratani at 12-3. In double play, Uratani and Rampen would return the best record at 9-4.

The Lady Cajuns would conclude their regular season in Southern Mississippi with a 4-0 win to bring their record to 8-6.

Amanda Cowieson is a Canadian with a lot of talent. Hailing all the way from Victoria Bridge, Columbia is difficult, but Cowieson seems to manage very well. "I talk to my mother everyday on the phone," admits Cowieson.

With an undergraduate degree in Public Relations Cowieson is sure to go far. However, she is not satisfied until she can manage her own department, so she plans to get her MBA as well.

Cowieson started playing tennis when she was just 12 years old. Most of her family has played, and she knew she could go far with it. Ten years later, she is still playing. "Everyone seems to think I play with a lot of heart," says Cowieson.

When Cowieson was younger she did a lot of traveling. "The only place I haven't been is Europe...I really love places that are hot," says Cowieson.

Maintaining a GPA at 3.8 is no small task, but with tennis also in the picture, Cowieson deserves all the recognition she can get. She has applied for two prestigious post-graduation scholarships to help in funding her graduate education.

Cowieson is the proud owner of two dogs. One is a Spaniel and the other a Maltese. They can be very loud when visitors arrive (take my word for it). She loves to take care of the dogs.

Hanging around with friends (mostly teammates) is what she does for fun. Probably her favorite place to go out and eat is Woods and Waters. She is very passionate about the internship she had with the United Blood Services, in which she had the privilege of running a blood drive.

Communications lies at the heart of any public relations major and Cowieson is no exception. "My favorite class at UL Lafayette would have to be Communications 425 and my favorite professor Dr. Maher (also in communications)," says Cowieson.

Cowieson believes that the experience she has had here at UL Lafayette has been a great one with all its ups and downs. "I wouldn't change anything," replies the reminiscing Cowieson.

MEN'S TENNIS

The UL Lafayette men's tennis team had a relatively disappointing season.

The poor season began to a slow start with the season opener. Perhaps as a sign of the times, the team was forced to compete with only four players.

As the season progressed, the Cajuns would show both their winning attitude and heart as they stepped up to the net and put on a good show despite their 5-15 record for the season. No one cause could be held responsible for the Cajuns disappointing record, probably due to the sport's edge of the seat game play. A factor that could not have helped the Cajun offensive was the loss of head coach Brett Schwartz.

Returning to the number one spot for the Cajuns this year was senior Jakub Illowski. He would return the highest numbers with a personal record of 20-13.

Newcomer Anthony Blache would also storm onto the courts with an impressive 16-14. In doubles play, the Cajuns would return no winning records, the closest coming from Illowski and Hawkins with a 5-5 split.

The Cajuns would conclude their year on a positive note as they competed in the Sun Belt Tournament and claimed a fourth place finish. The Cajuns fell to in state rivals and number five seed New Orleans in the third round of play.

Goodbye to Brett Schwartz:

Another loss to the UL Lafayette athletic lineup was head coach of the tennis team Brett Schwartz. Schwartz orchestrated the expansion of much of the tennis facility, making it one of the foremost in the country. He left the team for an opportunity in Mandeville, La. Schwartz was head coach of the men's and women's team for three years.

WOMEN'S TRACK

MVP

Jeanne Menard

Jeanne Menard has been referred to as the most attractive member of the track and field team at UL Lafayette.

Menard has a fire in the way she acts. She is a bundle of energy and a sweetheart as well. She seems to be passionate about life. She is an exercise science major.

Menard was very confident about her cross country season, but sickness plagued her track season. Overall, however, she is making up for lost time.

A very supportive family has helped Menard in her life. "My dad is kind of my mentor and my mom's my spiritual guide, my brother is my hero and my sister is my conscience," says Menard.

Pretty much all of Menard's friends are athletes. Her current boyfriend is on the tennis team. "I pretty much know people on ever team," says Menard.

A dancer (no, not that kind of dancer), at heart, Menard graduated with 13 years of formal dance. "I like dancing...I like ballet especially. Of course, I like going out to the clubs as well," laughs Menard.

Menard is a senior on the track team, and is not eligible to run next season. Next year she would like to do more things for the university with her newfound free time. She wants to join clubs like cheerleading, a sorority and run for the SGA.

"What I do on the weekends depends entirely upon whether or not we have a track meet. If there was a meet, I just want to go home and relax, but if not, I guess I like to do the partying thing," said Menard.

"My favorite coach is Ms. Robin (Judice). She's an inspiration. She ran in college, so she knows everything about what the girls on the team are going through," said Menard.

Menard feels that in order to better the world, everyone should do things for others. If everyone would just learn to give a little, this world would be a better place to live.

Menard runs distance because she has a gift for endurance. She used to participate in the high jump, but a rare occurance in high school led her to running. "I have no leg speed," says Menard.

The summer of 2004 I would love to go to New Orleans for medical school. I have plans to become a physical therapist.

-Kyle Libersat

MEN'S TRACK

MVP

Kevin James Charles

"On the whole, the track team is very young ...in fact, there are only two male seniors on the team...I'm really proud of the freshmen," comments senior Kevin Charles.

The track team was plagued by the loss of their head coach, Charles Lancon, just six weeks before the end of the season. However, the team would stand up triumphantly over death to place higher than anyone could have expected. "Unusual as it is, the team used the death of coach Lancon as a catalyst to perform," says assistant track coach Lance Veazey.

The men's team as a whole had a very unexpectedly good season. In the regional that UL Lafayette was picked to finish fifth, they finished third. Everyone on the team stepped up to their place and filled the gaps that were placed by the exiting seniors. Even a lot of the freshmen had great seasons and some placed at the regional.

Hearing all that UL Lafayette was faced with, the team played an absolutely incredible season and showed their stuff in the best possible way. We had conference champions and many unexpected performances from all the team.

To even begin to name the many all stars of the track team would take up the greater part of the space allotted for photos, so a great congratulations goes out to all of them. Keep up the good work.

"Aside from the adversity we had, obviously in the last six weeks of play, we came out there and surprised ourselves with what we can do," said Veazey.

It's not every day that you meet someone with two first names, but Kevin James Charles takes the cake with three.

Charles is a senior in mechanical engineering and a track and field hurdler at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette.

"This outdoor season isn't going as well as I might have hoped, but hopefully things are going to change soon."

Charles has tight family ties. The common bond for Charles's clan seems to be its atheleticism. The mother is an official for some track events, and the father was a star in his own day. Charles's brother runs track right alongside him here at UL Lafayette. "My true friend is my brother...we have the same interests and we do everything together," says Charles.

Charles was impressed with the mechanical engineering program here at UL Lafayette when choosing a school. Charles's academic career has been successful, and he has no regrets about running track. He admits that track and field may have adversely affected his grades, but his love of the game surpasses any doubts he may have about continuing.

Charles is a very laid back kind of guy. He likes to relax in his down time and in no way interested in being a party animal. "I usually just stay at home and enjoy my computer...I love (computer) games and I like to draw," says Charles.

One of his favorite places he has visited is Miami, Fl. "I enjoy a laid back atmosphere when I go places too," says Charles.

Charles would like to see the university improve cosmetically as he feels that the campus is starting to look run down. "I'd like to see some publicity for some of the events that the University puts on. . .if our student body can feel the involvement of the community, it would encourage our student body to do great things," says Charles.

Charles has two plans for after graduation, to either bring track to the next level and see where it might take him, or to join the professional work force with his degree in hand. He would probably like to seehimself either doing what he loves or retiring early to get out of what he does not.

INTRAMURALS

The intramural program at UL Lafayette is not unlike that of many other other u
versities and high schools. It gives students a chance to compete for fun, not for lif

Intramural sports are those that are competitive amongst the university only, a at the end of the season, compete for state titles.

Wayne Harper, the director of intramural sports and recreation for UL Lafayette is very open to any and all student athletic interests. Currently and reliably, UL Lafayette hosts the flag football, volleyball, basketball, and softball seasons of intramural play. However, Harper is always on the lookout for new leagues. "Our job is to offer whatever the students want," says Harper.

Harper thinks that intramural sports is a poor term to describe what UL Lafayette has to offer. It continually offers recreation like aerobics, powerlifting, swimming, racquetball, and other not so popular, but equally entertaining sporting events. It also offers everything from social time at the pool to leasing the pool for an evening party. The office oversees the even larger arena of club sports. The recreational office is located just inside the Bourgeois Hall Recreational Complex on Cajundome Boulevard. Any student or faculty is welcome to use the over abundantfacility provided he or she has a current UL Lafayette ID card.

As for the sports that are "intramural" in nature and provide a definite structure that lies within the university, the year has been fantastic. With two state competitors bringing home trophies, a national competitor and a year of healthy afternoon exercise, who is to complain? The largest league (basketball) is comprised of a staggering 50 teams.

Plans for the future include a rethinking of the field space and powerlifting areas provided to the students as well as expanded program offerings to better suit the students. There is even a request in the works for a cricket league. "I think we have one of the top five leisure pools in the country. Not three other schools have what we have that is devoted directly to the students," gloats Harper.

The moral of the story is that if you want to play, UL Lafayette has the equipment, so come on out and have a great time.

RAGIN' CAJUNS

GOLF

The Ragin Cajun golf team played a good season on the greens, but not as good as they might have hoped.

The spring season of play started off to a mediocre start with a tenth place finish at the Rice Intercollegiate Tournament. However, the team's mediocrity would not last as they would fall into despair by following their tenth place with a thirteenth and back to back seventeenth place finishes. Their streak of poor luck would come to a culmination at the Louisiana Classics that the university annually hosts. The team would take thirteenth on their own turf.

UL Lafayette's luck would soon change as the team would follow up a streak of bad luck with a sixth place finish at the Border Olympics, only five shots out of third. Head coach Bob Bass commented that the finish was not a sixth place finish, but rather a sixth place start. "We've been working really hard on improving, and it was good to see some of that practice pay off," says Bass.

The team would take eighth place at the Arkansas State Indian Classics to round out the season. UL Lafayette had five players finish in the top 50.

The Cajuns would make a seventh place showing at the Sun Belt Tournament. The event marked the third try at a SBC Tournament title.

The shining star of the tournaments for the UL Lafayette team would be senior Orn Hjartson. He would go on to take third place at the USTA Invitational.

As the team is improving its skills, UL Lafayette can expect to see very good things to come.

Om Hjartarson

Orn Hjartarson is a very serious golf player. Hailing all the way from Iceland, he has proven to be a competitor on the greens.

Hjartarson is a bit of the strong silent type. He seems to know what he does best, namely golf, and he is very focused on it.

Hjartarson is shooting around a 74, but is very disappointed, because last year he was at 73. His best round ever was a 60 that he put up while he was in Scotland. "I just can't seem to get out of this rut, but me and coach have been working very hard," he retorts.

Everyone wants to know what it is that makes a student want to leave their country to come to Lafayette. Hjartarson felt that he had to travel south, because when he was in Iceland, they could only practice golf for a few months out of the year. He decided on UL Lafayette because he had received some good alumni feedback while still residing in Iceland. Once coach Bass got wind of the talents of Hjartarson, it was only a matter of time before a visit and an application for enrollment were in order. "I had to get out of Iceland if I wanted golf to go anywhere," said Hjartarson.

This year the golf team has been struggling a little bit. We can't seem to get it together. We get along very well, and work together, but we have a bunch of new guys this year," says Hjartarson.

Golf practices every weekday, and Hjartarson values his weekends very much. "It is very easy to get burned out on golf, and it's nice to have a little fun sometimes," says Hjartarson.

"I spend a lot of time with my friends on the golf team. We go out and have fun. We like to watch the sporting events and stuff. We get along pretty well," he says.

Hjartarson is extremely well traveled. He's been all over the globe with the Iceland ic national golf team. "I've been all around Europe and elsewhere for a total of 20 different countries," says Hjartarson.

Hjartarson is a senior majoring in General Studies with a focus on business. Hjartarson would like to play on the European tour after graduation. "I'll try out for the (European) tour and give it about two or three years, and if that doesn't work out, it looks like I'll have to try something else," Hjartarson jests.

VOLLEYBALL

On the whole, the UL Lafayette Ragin Cajun Volleyball team had a very successful 2001-2002 season. Contrary to popular belief, however, it was not so much a result of the star seniors.

The volleyball team pulled a 14-11 overall record in 2001 with an 8-7 Sun Belt record for quite an impressive season. The team has showed much success in recent campaigns with a school record number of wins in 2000. 2001 was no exception to the volleyball team's strength. 2001 marked the third straight time that the Cajuns made a semifinal appearance in the SBC tournament.

The success of any truly team sport is based on the ability of the squad to work together. Volleyball is a particularly peer dependent sport due to its constant movement and pass dependency. The UL Lafayette volleyball team relies heavily on its underclassmen to adapt to the game to make it successful. "No matter what happens, it seems that the Freshmen will be what counts the most...how they adapt is what makes the team," says senior outside hitter Janaina Gomes.

A loss in the second round of the SBC tournament is what did the Cajuns in for the season, but the resignation of head coach Chris Campbell is what plagued the Cajuns morale in 2001. Campbell resigned from his coaching position of three years. Campbell left the school with a 46-43 mark. What truly worried the lady Cajuns was the lack of a coach altogether. As of the layout date of this periodical, the Cajuns had not found anyone to fill the position. "They (the rest of the team) are scared right now," says Gomes.

Not to worry. The Cajuns have a strong team going into 2001-2002. Look for more positive things to come in the very near future.

Janaina Gomez

UL Lafayette was lucky enough to have Janaina Gomes as outside hitter for its volleyball team. She hails all the way from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Gomes is majoring in interpersonal and public organizational communication. She plans to complete her degree program in the spring of 2002 with a minor in business.

Gomes's volleyball career here at UL Lafayette was not quite as good as she had hoped, especially her last two years on the squad. Gomes suffered a serious knee injury in her 1999-2001 season and has been feeling the pains of recovery since. The injury didn't stop her from putting numbers on the board, as Gomes still has quite an impressive serve.

Gomes's grades are not as high as she hoped either. Not being in class will almost always cost a letter grade. Now that she has all the free time she didn't have during her volleyball years, Gomes is taking advantage of every opportunity to get involved with her major. "I guess I can blame volleyball for not having the GPA I could have. Even though you have that excused absence, you're out of the class for so long that it really takes its toll," understandingly reports Gomes.

Most of Gomes's closest friends are international students. "In my free time I just like to hang out and go to the park or something," says Gomes.

After graduation, Gomes plans to go to Middle Tennessee to pursue a graduate degree followed by consulting work.

Gomes has interest in many aspects of art. "That's what I miss about Brazil, the theater and art museums and stuff," says Gomes.

Gomes has one pet peeve about the university which she would like to mention. "I think that the university should be here to serve us. We are paying them for a service, and it seems like they make us feel like we are just coming and going. People need to know what's going on. The University should make every attempt to make it crystal clear what needs to be done and how," passionately responds Gomes.

The UL Lafayette is proud to recognize such aphenomenal player and hopes to see good things in her future.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

Marking their second season in NCAA play, the UL Lafayette women's soccer team is taking steps to become a renowned and fearsome opponent in the Southeastern Conference circui

The girls' first game of the season was an exciting one, as Butler and UL Lafayett traveled to Mobile, Ala. to face off in what certainly was foreshadowing of the team's futur An overtime loss for the Cajuns is nothing to be thrilled about, but a game that close show the team has definitely become an NCAA competitor.

Two days later, the team faced off against Jacksonville and won! Unfortunately, the thrill of victory would be followed with the agony of defeat as the Cajuns dropped their next five matches against Southeastern Louisiana, LSU, Centenary, Northwestern State, and South Alabama respectively.

To provide a little history for the rival match against Louisiana-Monroe, the Cajuns posted their first ever win as a team against the Indians one year ago. This year, the Cajuns had home field advantage, and shut out the now disheartened rivals 1-0.

The Cajuns would lose their next road game in Miami, Fla. to Florida International, but follow the loss with a three game winning streak. The team would defeat Houston, Arkansas State and Arkansas-Little Rock in the teams first ever winning streak.

Unfortunatley for the exstatic Cajuns, their victories would be mirrored in defeat by conference teams. The Cajuns fell to North Texas, Denver, and Western Kentucky, but would finish the regular season with a conference win against Middle Tennessee.

The second season of UL Lafayette women's soccer was a raging sucess. Almost every single matchup was thrilling and had a dangerously close score. A record of 6-10 is not a winning record by anyone's standards, but it was certainly a show of the girls' skills as a team.

All in all, the team played very well. All are encouraged to attend their home games at Moore Park in Carencro, La., as next year should prove an exciting addition to this team's growing history.

MVP

Jenny Brown

Glen Clark

Jenny Brown is a young addition to the UL Lafayette soccer squad. She is only 19 years old.

Brown is a freshman soccer player for the University of Louisiana at Lafayette's relatively young soccer team. She hails all the way from Washington state. At only 5'3" tall, she's been tearing up the big green this year as mid-fielder/forward.

Brown maintains a high GPA at UL Lafayette. She was also the valedictorian of her high school class, which is very good for a four year letterman winner as well as athlete of the fall in 2000.

Brown finds it hard to be away from her family, as the rest of her family still resides in Washington. When she is at home, she likes to do a lot of outdoor activities with them, such as hike, ski, and ride bikes. "It's kinda tough, actually, but they come to visit sometimes," says Brown.

So, what is it that draws a top soccer athlete from so far away to UL Lafayette? Soccer, of course. She was playing at a tournament in Dallas, TX when coach Poggi spoke with her and eventually convinced her to come on a visit. "I liked it...and I came here," laughs Brown.

Brown had no trouble adjusting to the new environment and making friends. "My closest friends are soccer players. We bond pretty well and get along, but I do have other friends...they all seem to play sports too," comments Brown.

The soccer team does a lot of hanging out together, and every once in a while they go out to the clubs. "I don't really like going out to the clubs and stuff. Most of the time we just go to each other's apartments. . .the soccer team has gotten really close to the tennis team as well," says Brown.

Brown's favorite restaurant is Sonic, her favorite place to visit is Italy, she loves to sleep in late on the weekends, and she's interested in art and music, with a talent for playing the piano. Every summer, her and her family takes a trip to Mexico to build houses for the poor.

Brown plans to go into medicine as a reconstructive surgeon. She is currently pursuing a biology degree. Keep an eye out for Brown in the classroom, and on the field, as she's sure to be a big hit around the University in the years to come.

CLUB SPORTS

Sitting at a level just above intramurals and just below varsity sports is club sports.

Club sports at UL Lafayette are competitive and intercollegiate. They encompass any and all areas of student interest. The teams are overseen by the intramural office, but are led by students and coaches alone. Funding is tight, but the competition is great.

UL Lafayette offers a wide range of club sports including badminton, bowling, Judo, powerlifting, rugby, sport shooting, soccer, Tae Kwon Do, and water skiing. These sports are generally less than mainstream.

At any time, new sports are welcome additions to the list. In fact, 2001-2002 is the first time that the UL Lafayette offered powerlifting. Club sports usually require only that you are a UL Lafayette student and that you agree to pay fees and show up for practice and fund raisers. "It's pretty difficult to find the following for a new sport. Powerlifting is an especially difficult sport because it has no off-season... you just have to keep working at it," says powerlifting captain Travis Warner.

As one might suspect, the teams are funded in minimal ways. However, a lack of money is not going to stand in the way of athletes with drive. The club sports often host fund raisers to boost the number of activities that the teams can participate in.

Judo is by far the largest of the club sports with over 120 members. The team put together the "Swamp Meet" competition which played host to teams from 38 states and 13 countries. One of the top teams in the country, the water ski team rules the waves annually. At the same time, the Tae Kwon Doe team operates internally.

"It all comes down to the students, we find out what they want to do, we put it together and let them have fun," says director of intramurals Wayne Harper.

CAJUNS LOSE COACHING LEGEND

Coach Lancon's Story

UL Lafayette is saddened to announce the loss of head track and field coach Charles Lancon.

Lancon was the longest tenured coach at the University having begun his campaign in October of 1989. He passed away in 2002 of a believed heart attack.

Lancon turned the UL Lafayette track and field program into a force to be reckoned with. He lead the Cajuns to many so many conference championships that the trophies now seem to litter the track office, 17 in all. Before Lancon joined the Cajuns, the team had not won a title in a decade. "He was a great representative of the University and athletics as a player and a coach, but especially as a person. Coach Lancon led Ragin' Cajuns track to tremendous accomplishments as a team, individually and in the personal development of his players," said director of athletics Nelson Schexnayder.

Lancon has been honored with 14 coach of the year conference titles for his efforts with both the men's and women's teams. Lancon is a member of the Lafayette Sports Hall of Fame. "Coach Lancon always knew what was going on on his team... even if he wasn't working with you directly, he knew what you needed to do to improve and he pushed it upon you," said senior Jeanne Menard.

Lancon was a graduate of USL in 1959 when he earned his second track letter. He immediately moved into coaching high schools where he remained until 1989. "Coach Lancon was like a father to many athletes. I believe it was his nurturing attitude that made parents comfortable to send their kids to UL," said assistant track coach Lance Veazey.

The Cajuns have established the Coach Charles R. Lancon Memorial Track Scholarship in his honor. Donations can be made to UL Lafayette Athletics, 201 Reinhardt Drive, Lafayette, LA 70506.

A native of Ashton, La., Lancon was married to the former Beryl Richard. They have one son, Kevin Charles, and two grandchildren.

CLUB SPORTS

Help Wanted

The UL Lafayette athletic department has seen many people come and go, but the 2001-2002 year has been ridiculous.

The 2001-2002 year marked a loss of head coaches Jerry Baldwin, Gay Nix, Chris Campbell, and Charles Lancon. As the headlines might suggest, it was not a good year:

BUSTLE UP...December 13, 2001
SCHWARTZ LEAVING TO PURSUE OTHER OPTIONS...Jan. 8, 2002
NIX RESIGNS AS WOMEN'S BASKETBALL COACH...March 4, 2002
CAMBPELL RESIGNS AS VOLLEYBALL COACH...March 4, 2002
CAJUNS LOSE COACHING LEGEND...April 13, 2002

To look at the number of NCAA teams to the number of head coaches leaving, 11 to 5 is mind boggling. UL Lafayette has lost fully half of its head coaching staff because one of those coaches oversaw two teams.

It seems that the nature of university athletics yields a cycling of its coaches, but is it coincidence that UL Lafayette has lost so many in one year? What could have caused three coaches to resign? Was it the team or perhaps the administration, or frustration of disappointment? Only the coaches will know for sure.

There was only one planned loss that seemed to trigger the vicious chain of events. Baldwin (head football coach) was released from employment for reasons undisclosed. That chain seems to have been broken by the death of the longest tenured coach at UL Lafayette, Charles Lancon.

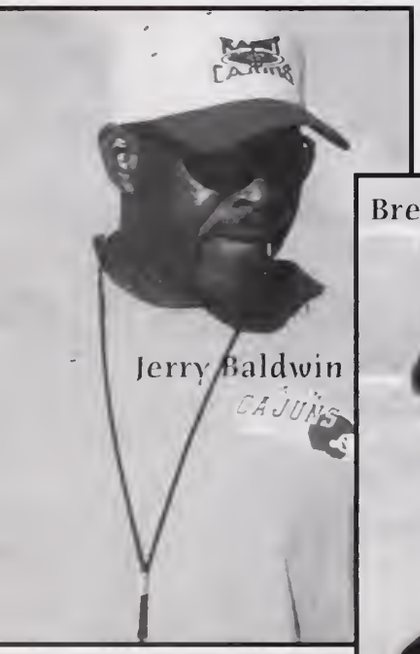

The University of Louisiana at Lafayette is now actively pursuing coaches to fill the vacancies. However, the teams are paying the price in the meantime. The teams with resigning coaches have lost what would have been the recruiting season. This not only affects the 2002-2003 teams, but the teams success for the next four year's.

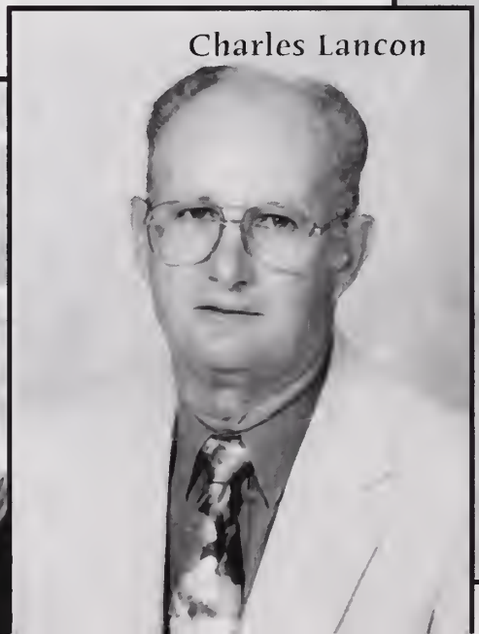

It is a little late to be concerned with recruiting, so it is in the best interest of the teams to do what they can with what they have until the replacements arrive.

The one light at the end, or in this case, at the beginning of the tunnel is the hiring of coach Bustle. Bustle is thought to be an improvement over his predecessor primarily because of his commitment to getting fans into the seats and motivational ways.

Herbert Heymann

Mr. Herbert Heymann was a man who in many ways shaped the community of Lafayette into becoming the thriving success that it is today. For nearly 31 years Heymann has been a dedicated supporter of UL Lafayette athletics and academics. He made it very clear that he had every intention of seeing the university grow and prosper. His contributions to the university included donation of his home, which is the current home of the UL Lafayette Alumni Center, and sitting on the committee that created the home of Ragin' Cajun basketball, the Cajundome. He was also an avid fan of UL Lafayette athletics. "Herbert was a rare person who graciously shared his many visions with his community," said UL Lafayette President Ray Authement.

He also made changes on a community level by converting the Children's Museum into a place where children will grow and learn for generations and creating the Heymann Center for performing arts. He also provided land for such Lafayette structures as the University Art Museum, the Lafayette Natural History Museum and Planetarium and the Lafayette General Medical Center. Everyone seems to agree that Heymann was instrumental in creating the thriving cultural and educational center that Lafayette is to Acadiana.

On April 10, 2001, the Lafayette community lost Heymann to sickness. He is now gone, but never forgotten.

On September 1, 2001, the University of Louisiana stepped up to make sure that the Heymann legend would live on. The first football game of every season beginning with the 2001 season will be renamed the Herbert Heymann Football Classic. "This recognition is a small thank-you for the longtime support, dedication and love he had for us," said director of athletics Nelson Schexnayder.

SGA PRESIDENT

Steve Johnson

Submitted

For Steve Johnson, being elected president of the Student Government Association has been a priceless learning experience. Not only has he delved into the complexities of how the university operates, but the experiences of this graduating senior have resulted in a deeper understanding of himself.

"I have seen a lot that not everyone else gets to see, as far as how policies are made and why decisions are what they are and how they affect the students," states Johnson.

On the other hand, in Johnson's one-year term, he has had to face disappointment. He believes, "You should have as many tears as you do smiles in a job like this because if you don't have failure, you're not pushing yourself as far as you can."

Being a native of Lafayette, he strongly feels the friendliness of the people here is what makes it a special place.

Johnson's next step after graduating in accounting is to attend law school. He plans on becoming a tax attorney; however, his dream job is to become a college professor. He aspires to be like professors who have influenced him at UL Lafayette, particularly psychology professor Dr. Charles Sandoz, and English professor Dr. David Thibodeaux.

But when it comes to people Johnson admires most, he does not think twice in saying his parents. "Love and respect for myself and others is the most valuable lesson they have taught me."

Johnson has a policy of making free time for himself during which he never minds spending time alone. He has a love for the outdoors, as well as traveling. One of his favorite things to do; however, is meet people he does not know.

"I like being around people who make me smile, and hopefully I make them smile just the same."

SGA VICE PRESIDENT

Chad Becnel

For now, Chad Becnel has achieved his goal: to create a link between the student body and the university administration. Becnel, a fifth-year architecture major, worked his way through the SGA from a senator of the College of Arts to a member of the prestigious "Big Three."

"I ran against seven people [my first year] as an independent." Becnel said. "I saw how I could make my voice heard within the college and I knew I could handle the job."

His dedication and constant vigilance are a testament to his commitment to his work. These traits would endure if a remastered Becnel were possible. His busy schedule does not allow for much personal reflection; however. "I always find myself making other people happy, I would definitely concentrate a little more on myself," Becnel said. "I find myself getting quickly preoccupied."

Among his interests in the university is the Student Arts Council, which he began. "We host welcoming parties for lectors in the College of Arts. It makes them feel appreciated and recognized, as they should," Becnel said. Becnel also serves as the entertainment chair of the Union Program Council (UPC). The priorities of this organization and how it interacts within the university are Becnel's future concerns.

"This is my final year of SGA, I think that UPC needs my attention now," Becnel said. "It needs to be multicultural. At every event it has, every different nationality should be represented."

Becnel began his college career with a piece of advice from his parents, advice that he keeps close to heart. "My mom and dad told me not to worry about what people think, just how they react to your ways. If they react negatively to your actions, you haven't communicated well enough. Never judge people, and if you surround yourself with good people you'll make good decisions,"Becnel concluded.

SGA TREASURER

Annie Winngate

Working side by side with other leaders to help solve many problems that affect student body fills the schedule of Lafayette native Annie Wingate, a senior psychology major.

As treasurer of the SGA, Wingate performs multiple duties to help make UL Lafayette an even better university. Wingate along with the SGA president and vice president often initiate changes to the university.

Renovations Wingate would make to the campus include blowing up and rebuilding Olivier and Coronna Hall. As they are some of the oldest buildings on campus, Wingate would like them redecorated.

She would also like to remaster Girard Hall. "This is the most beautiful building on campus and should be taken care of. Girard is the oldest academic building and it's the most disregarded building on campus," Wingate said.

She would also like to remaster some aspects of herself. "I would change my laugh so it wouldn't be so obnoxious," Wingate giggled.

On Oct. 27, 2001, during the UL Lafayette homecoming game, Wingate was crowned homecoming queen. "I initially felt honored to be able to represent the school in that way, especially knowing that all the other candidate's were great choices," Wingate said. After graduating in May, Wingate plans to attend either the University of Alabama, Georgia State or Louisiana State University for graduate school.

Wingate wears her emotions on her sleeve. When she is happy, sad or frustrated people around her will know. She believes you should not hide your feelings and if there is a problem you should do your best to fix it. "There's always a solution, and you shouldn't skip over your feelings."

Wingate's multiple leadership roles in campus organizations has taught her, more than anything, how to work well with others. She believes this is a great lesson and will help her wherever the road leads her.

SGA SECRETARY
Sandra Bonin

The SGA would not be the same without the help and guidance of its secretary, Sandra Bonin. She considers herself the surrogate mother to the students in the SGA because she not only advises them, but consoles, and even feeds them. Her love of secretarial work helps things run smoothly for the SGA.

"I see people who make a lot more money than I do, but are so stressed out. I may not make that much paywise, but I come out even with benefits," says Bonin. Bonin was hired by former SGA president, Ravis Martinez, because she enjoyed working with the students.

Keeping up with the SGA president and officers is a chore for Bonin because it is hard to hold any of them to a schedule. At the beginning of the year, she has them all sit down with her and figure out their schedules for setting appointments. But Bonin says that as the semester progresses, it is harder to hold them to it. A frustration of her job is dealing with people who expect her to be able to find the SGA officers at any given time in a moment's notice.

When asked if she had any favorite SGA presidents, Bonin responded that each had unique attributes. She says there are stories she holds dear with each officer and that each one is very much a different character.

SGA SENATE CHAIR

Jami Williams

"I did not just want to be an athlete at the university. I wanted to be an exemplary student who people could look up to," states sophomore Jami Williams. To many at UL Lafayette, Williams has done just that. Williams is a mass communication major, specializing in broadcasting.

Originally from Lake Charles, La., Williams did not have to travel far to find a college where she would prosper. Not only is she an asset to the UL Lafayette track team, she also holds down the position of SGA senate chair, a job she takes with great pride.

Do not be fooled into thinking Williams is all work and no play. She does take time out to have fun with her friends "when the money is right." Also, she loves to watch her favorite television show, "Friends." "I love Joey and his catch phrase 'How you doin?'. It is great."

In this incredible young woman lies a weakness she would change in a heartbeat. "I would get rid of my clumsiness. There is not a crack on this campus that my foot has not tripped on," Williams adds jokingly.

Williams has accomplished many of her goals at UL Lafayette. She is just enjoying her time here. She has big dreams when it comes to her future. "My dream job would be to become a rich homemaker! Hey, it can't hurt to try."

Laurie Miller

2000-2001 Layout Editor

Submitted

On the eve of L'Acadien's first deadline, as promised, Laurie Miller enters the yearbook office in the midst of chaos to drop off pictures for her profile page. She looks around at the work in progress and jokes about a time, not too long ago, when she was in the same position.

Miller experienced part of the production of Digitally Remastered, as the outgoing layout editor. She left the staff after graduating in December to join the real world.

Now, holding a degree in visual arts, Miller laughs at the staff for still being in school. Ironically,her words of advice are: "Stay in school, the real world sucks!"

Miller joined the yearbook staff in January 2000 as a layout artist. "I heard about the yearbook through the grapevine, and man was the wine tasty," Miller said. She also demonstrated her design skills as The Vermilion 's media director in her last semester.

But Miller's creativity reached a new level when she had to present her art in her Final Thesis Exhibition. "My show was more of my graduation than the actual ceremony. I had finally reached that point where everything I had worked so hard for was displayed for everyone to see."

A "well-seasoned graduate," Miller landed a job as a graphic designer for The Times of Acadiana. "It's fun because it's what I love to do...working hard then seeing it in print."

Love of life and her friends inspire Miller. Her outlook on life is to not take anything too seriously, which supports her motto: "Whatever you do--be happy!" Miller's free spirit and love of laughter make her a phenomenal individual.

Miller loves music from the 1980s and *N Sync, but "that's a secret." When asked if there was anything she would remaster about herself, Miller simply responded, "Nothing, I'm perfect!". Her hobby is hanging out with friends.

"When I'm with friends, it means I'm not working."

After her long-anticipated move to San Diego, Calif., Miller aspires to start a magazine.

Miller's final contribution to the yearbook, other than being the "master" mind behind the current yearbook theme, was creating the first coed sraternity (that's right, "sraternity") composed of the staff's "bristers and srothers."

"I'd like to thank all the staff members I've worked with throughout the years for good times and their company during late-night stress sessions," Miller said.

A coed "sraternity"?! It's not like that layout stuff really mattered anyway.

Vermilion Editor in Chief

Leslie Gautreaux

Rick Gautreaux

Leslie Gautreaux, editor in chief of The Vermilion, is no stranger to news. She not only is responsible for editing the campus newspaper, but many times is directly involved with newsworthy events and projects at UL Lafayette.

Taking the top position of The Vermilion in January 2001, Gautreaux and her staff took the school paper in a new direction.

"There was no question that I wanted to do it," Gautreaux commented, on accepting her new position.

A graduating English major, Gautreaux started out as The Vermilion's style columnist and moved up to be features editor a year later. She immediately implemented changes to the newspaper's layout and worked to improve the quality of news stories produced.

Gautreaux also helped to make news, as part of a nation wide college campaign called "V-Day." The result of the campaign was the production of "The Vagina Monologues" and more importantly, donating all proceeds to a local women's nonprofit organization.

Gautreaux was not only responsible for promoting the campaign, but she found a little time to audition to be a member of the unique all-female cast.

Gautreaux's smile and warm personality reflect her great outlook on life. She is happy with every aspect about her and would only remaster one thing about herself: her patience. According to Gautreaux, sometimes she wants everything done immediately.

Gautreaux has found the love of her life and has been dating him for some time now. In fact, one of the most romantic things she has ever done was drive to Texas to surprise her boyfriend for one night. She drove back the next morning to attend class.

After graduating, Gautreaux will be on her way to fulfilling her dream to become a college English professor as she begins graduate school. She then wishes to pursue a doctorate in English. With her strong credentials and contributions to campus news coverage, Gautreaux already has gone a long way.

CHI ALPHA CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Chi Alpha Christian Fellowhship is a group of students on campus who are gathered for the purpose of making known the person and truth of Jesus Christ to their fellow students. Students from almost very etnic group on campus have been included in their weekly events, whether it be "Thursday Night Live" in the Bayou Bijou, Wednesday's "Cafe Chi Alpha" at the Chi Alpha House, or "International Night" on Fridays. According to Chi Alpha members, this diversity is a result of striving to extend the love of Christ to each of their classmates.

Fall Semester 2001 had several highlights for Chi Alpha. The first was being picked to be the flag bearers for the "Louisiana'a Victory Run" flag presentation at the start of every home football game. A second highlight was the "Burger Bash", which was a part of UL's opening week activities. Over 330 students came to eat burgers, climb the rock wall, sumo wrestle, and try out the bungee run.

In the late September, it was time to pack up and ride the bus to "Fall Breakaway," a gathering of Chi Alpha students from all over Louisiana. This great weekend included prayer, a worship celebration, and lots of new friendships!

The next big on-campus events was the "Miracle Tent Meeting" from Oct. 8-11, under a giant tent in front of the women's gym. The speaker, Sean Smith, spoke about God's desire to have a personal realtionship with every student. Many students who attended during the four nights reported receiving personal restoration and healing. In all of these events and activities, Chi Alpha seeks to serve their fellow students by giving them real friendships and a place to belong.

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated is the oldest Greek letter organization established by black women in America. Alpha Kappa Alpha was formed in 1908 by 9 college women on the campus of Howard University in Washington, D.C. The sorority was under the leadership of a true visionary, Ethel Hedgeman Lyle, and proliferated four years later to add a new dimension - a national organization and perpetual membership.

We, the ladies of the Epsilon Beta Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., which was chartered on December 16, 1967, stand by our motto "By merit and by culture." The ladies of Epsilon Beta Chapter provide service to the community by volunteering at Up 'Til Dawn and Amelia Manor Nursing Home. Delta Sigma Theta

On January 13, 1913, 22 outstanding women on the campus of Howard University founded Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. The sorority was founded on three principles: sisterhood, scholarship, and service. The goal of these young women was to provide services and programs to promote human welfare.

The Theta Xi Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta was charted in 1971 on the campus of UL Lafayette. This year, Theta Xi members, past and present, reunited to celebrate the chapter's 30th anniversary. The theme for the celebration was "Reunite with Sisterly Love in the New Millennium," which included a Memorial Service, Burn the Mortgage Ceremony and participation in Homecoming weekend.

Members of the Theta Xi Chapter have held many leadership positions in the sorority and in campus organizations. Theta Xi's members are represented in various campus organizations such as the National Society of Black Engineers, LAMP, The McNair Program, UL Lafayette Gospel Choir, UL Lafayette Sports Medicine Society, UL Tutoring Program, Union Program Council, Omega Phi Alpha Service Sorority, NPHC and Greek Council.

The ladies of Delta Sigma Theta play active roles in their communities by participating in a variety of service projects that are based on the sorority's five-point thrust: educational development, economic development, political awareness and involvement, international awareness and involvement and physical and mental health.

National service projects include the Delta Academy, Delta Habit for Humanity, national Library Project, Teen Lift and Adopt-a-Black Business.

Local service projects include Sickle Cell Can Shake, Breast Cancer Awareness, Project Homeless, Read America, Book Drive, Bone Marrow Drive and PROLINK.

We strive to encompass the attributes depicted in the words of Delta Sigma Theta:

Delta Delta Delta

Membership in Delta Delta Delta is more than a strong feeling . . . it is a decision, a judgment, and a promise. Tri Delta encourages its members to assume, with integrity and devotion to moral and democratic principles, the highest responsibilities of college women.

Delta Delta Delta was founded on Thanksgiving Eve, 1888 at Boston university. Its colors are silver, gold, and blue. The dolphin represents Tri Delta, and its flower is the Pansy. The UL chapter, Phi Nu, was founded on April 9, 1957.

Tri Delta's national philanthropies include Children's Cancer Research, Scholarships for University Women, Delta Delta Delta/American Cancer Society Golf Tournament , and an annual Easter egg hunt. In 1999, Tri Delta stated a formal agreement to support a partnership with St. Jude's Children Hospital. The Tri Deltas at UL Lafayette have been working to support its philanthropies through activities, carwashes, and the annual Frats-at-Bat softball tournament. Tri Deltas also volunteer their time at local children's hospitals.

The Tri Delta women stay busy with school, service projects, and campus activities. But, we have our fun at date parties! Each year, Tri Delta holds Fall Fling, Stars and Crescent Semi-Formal, Grub, Crush, Spring Formal, and participates in fraternity socials.

Tri Deltas strive to establish a perpetual bond of friendship and a stronger womanly character among its members. "Alone we can do so little, together we can do so much."

Phi Mu

Phi Mu is the second oldest sorority in the country today. This great organization was founded in 1852 in Macon, Ga. Phi Mu was founded upon three ideals: love, honor, and truth. Each member today strives to uphold those three ideals in everything Phi Mu does.

A major part of being a Phi Mu is dedicating time to our national philanthropy: Children's Miracle Network. An annual carwash is held every spring, and all money raised is donated to Children's Miracle Network. Phi Mu also holds Big Man on Campus every year. This is a fund raiser that all fraternities and sororities compete in to see who can raise the most money for CMN. The winner trades places with a dean for a day. This year Phi Mu donated coloring books and I.V. bag covers to a local children's hospital. The Alpha Sigma chapter at UL Lafayette was honored for being among the top 10 contributing to philanthropy chapters in the nation.

Scholarship is also a very important part of being a member. Our scholarship program offers great incentives to encourage members to keep up their good grades. One of these incentives is an auction called Scholar Dollars. For every good grade members receive on tests, they are awarded a certain amount of "scholar dollars." At the end of the semester different items are auctioned off, and the member with the most scholar dollars for that item wins it. Phi Mu especially likes to recognize members who are outstanding students. At the end of each semester members with a 4.0 are awarded a medal, and all other outstanding GPA's are awarded as well.

While Phi Mu keeps a pretty busy schedule between philanthropic and campus activities, there is a little time for some fun! Phi Mu is invited to socials with several fraternities that each features a different theme. Phi Mu also holds date parties every year including Fall Fiesta, Mystery Date, Crush, and Carnation Ball. Members also look forward to Founder's Day Luncheon, State Day, leadership conferences, and retreats every year.

Sisterhood is a very important part of Phi Mu and we are very proud of the individuality, uniqueness and special qualities each member brings. So come join us to see for yourself all that Phi Mu has to offer.

Sigma Gamma Rho

Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority Inc. is the last sorority of the National Panhellenic council Greek letter organizations. It was founded by seven educators at Butler University in Indianapolis, Ind. on Nov. 12, 1922. On a predominately white campus, these seven Sigma Pearls boldly established standards that only an educated woman of high moral character could uphold. Through the years the ladies of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority Inc. have been blessed with strength, perseverance, and courage to offer the communities and university campus' "greater service, greater progress" on a worldwide basis.

Sigma women are strong believers in high academics, quality not quantity, and the motto, "Last created, best designed." Our Sigma flower is the Yellow Tea Rose and our mascot is the French Toy Poodle. They are both symbols of rare beauty, excellence, and purity.

"Last created, best designed" describes what took place at UL Lafayette. On April 22, 2001 ten ladies pledged their minds, hearts, and souls to Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority Inc. Deemed "Beautiful In Every Language" the charter members of Pi Epsilon are Katrina Auzenne, Angela Guilbeau, April Monroe, April Harris, Sheree Olivier, Genise Theodore, Sherry Thompson, Lori Vallot, Lacy White, and Anecia Young. We ladies of Pi Epsilon made our own "Herstroy" and we continue to shape it with "Greater Service, Greater Progress." We work hard to uphold the standards that were placed upon us. We love ourselves, our bond, and respect our letters. In one sentence: We are Sigma Gamma Rho, last created, best designed, where pRHOduction is priority.

Gamma Alpha Chi

Gamma Alpha Chi Fraternity was founded in 1990 by thirteen young men at Louisiana State University. These men had the dream of establishing an organization separate from the stereotypical fraternities of that time. Each man who wore the letters of this "modern" fraternity would hold true to being himself and would respect the name and purpose of his fraternity.

Four years later, the vision and light of these founding fathers began to shin at the "Almighty" Zeta Chapter of what was then the University of Southwestern Louisiana. Through Manhood, Scholarship, Perserverance, and Development, that light will continue to shine in the hearts of every Gamma man at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette.

Kappa Alpha

An organization is only as good as its members. Every year, the brothers of the Gamma Phi Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order strive to achieve higher standards than those previously set. Kappa Alpah Order seeks to create a lifetime experience, which centers on reverence to God, duty, honor, character, and gentlemanly conduct as inspired by Robert E. Lee, our spirtual founder. In keeping with Lee's example, Gamma Phi annually sponsors an Alumni Golf Tournament benefiting the Muscular Dystrophy Association, which was adopted as our national philanthropy in 1975.

Kappa Alpha Order's four founders are James Ward Wood, William Nelson Scott, Stanhope McClelland Scott and William Archibald Walsh. The Order was founded in Walsh's dorm room on December 21, 1865, at Washington College, now Washington and Lee University in Lexington, VA. James Ward Wood was the driving force behind our Order. He was also the only founder to serve in the Civil War. Every year to commemorate the admirable lives of our founders, Old South is held. The highlight of this week-long celebration is the Lawn Pary, where members dress as Civil War Soldiers and their dates don Antebellum gowns.

Men may be classified according to emblems worn upon their chests; but judged by the pattern of their lives. An organization is viewed by the people who wear its symbols. The Gamma Phi Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order has received the largest pledge class on the row for the last two years. Kappa Alpha's official colors are crimson and old gold, and the flowers are the magnolia and the red rose. The newly elected officers serving the Gamma Phi Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order are: president, Garrett Gauthier, vice president, James Bayard, recording secretary, Jacob Crouch, corresponding secretary, Jay McCormick, historian, Matt Boudreaux, treasurer, Will Page, parlimentarian, Josh Landry, sergeant-at-arms, Brad Pisani, and ritualist, Hunter Southerland.

The forbearing use of power does not only form a touchstone, but the manner in which an individual enjoys certain advantages over others is a test of a true gentleman. You will never grow taller than when you stoop to help a brother. And you cannot desert him when others do. You can never become wiser by disregarding the sterling ideals of your Order. You can never worship your God more intimately than when you utilize the tools Kappa Alpha has given you. If you will do these things, you cannot but realize for yourself the respect of your fellow man, the wealth of mortal happiness, and the salvation by a generous God.

Phi Beta Sigma

Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc. was founded by three young African American male students at Howard University in Washington, D.C. on January 9, 1914. The founders of this prestigious organization were the most honorable A. Langston Taylor, the most honorable Leonard F. Morse, and the most honorable Charles I. Brown.

The founders wanted to organize a Greek letter organization that would exemplify the high ideals of Brotherhood, Scholarship, and Service. Brothers Taylor, Morse, and Brown wished to create an organization that viewed itself as a part of the general community. They believed that each potential member should be judged on his own merits rather than his family background and affluence, without regard to race, nationality, or color.

They wanted their fraternity to exist as a part of an even greater brotherhood and sisterhood, which would be devoted to the "inclusive we" rather than the "exclusive we". We brothers of the Iota Iota Chapter arrived on the campus of University of Louisiana at Lafayette in the Fall of 1976.

The Iota Iota Chapter has shown and proven to be an asset to the University's Greek life and the Lafayette community. The brothers have completed community service hours with with the MDA Telethon, The American Cancer Society, and a mentoring program at Lafayette Middle School.

Our founders conceived Phi Beta Sigma as a mechanism to deliver services to the general community. Rather than gaining skills to be utilized exclusively for themselves and their immediate families, the founders of Phi Beta Sigma held a deep conviction that they should return their newly acquired skills to the communities from which they had come. This deep conviction is mirrored in the Iota Iota Chapter, as expressed in the fraternity motto: "Culture for Service for Humanity."

Phi Beta Sigma has initiated men from all walks of life, among them are: President of South Africa Nelson Mandella, Scientist George Washington Carver, Composer James Weldon B. Johnson, Dallas Cowboy Emmitt Smith, and television and movieactor Morris Chestnut.

The fraternity encourages its three national programs which are Bigger and Better Business, Social Action, and Education. The fraternity also was the National Head Quarters for The Million Man March held in October of 1995 in Washington, D.C. with force and power of its more than 200,000 dedicated men united in more than 900 chapters across the U.S., Africa, Europe, and Asia. Phi Beta Sigma continues to faithfully strive for the best.

Kappa Sigma

Kappa Sigma was originally founded, over 600 years ago, in Bologna, Italy. It was established in America on December 10, 1869 at the University of Virginia. With over 200,000 brothers and 210 chapters, including chapters in Canada, Kappa Sigma is one of the largest fraternities in North America.

The Epsilon Chi chapter was originally founded at UL-Lafayette on March 17, 1956 and was refounded on August 29, 1998.

Kappa Sigma gives back to the community by volunteering for Habitat for Humanity each semester. We enjoy helping out and building homes for those who are in need. Kappa Sigma has also adopted Big Brothers/Big Sisters as its international philanthropy.

Kappa Sigma has many members who are in leadership positions on campus: IFC vice president, Student Orientation Staff, Who's Who, and Student Government senators.

While Kappa Sigma continually has one of the highest GPAs of any Greek organization, we still manage to have many parties such as sorority socials, homecoming, Founder's Day, and our annual Green Party, a weeklong party that is always one of the best and biggest parties of the year on campus.

Kappa Sigma gives its members a chance to have the best four years of their lives by offering a good time and a brotherhood that lasts a lifetime. Living by the star and crescent, all members of Kappa Sigma live their lives to the fullest.

Only smiles allowed at a Kappa Sigma party.

Omega Psi Phi

Omega Psi Phi, Inc. was founded on November 17, 1911 at Howard University by four distinguished, determined, and ambitious young men. The Gamma Delta Chapter at UL-Lafayette was founded in 1972. The men of Omega Psi Phi strive to uphold the principles of the fraternity: Manhood, Scholarship, Perserverance, and Uplift.

Omega men are active volunteers at the local, national, and international levels. At the local level, the chapter participates in helping the Salvation Army, Boys and Girls Club, and St. Joseph Distribution Center. At the national level, Omega Psi Phi contributes to the United Negro College Fund, National High School Essay Contest, and numerous national scholarships that are awarded to qualified young men on the basis of academics and service.

The men of Gamma Delta are steadily continuing to rebuild the strengths, principles, and image that the four founders originally established for Omega.

Phi Kappa Theta

Phi Kappa Theta - a winning tradition at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette. Since that glorious day in May, 1941, the brothers of this fraternity have been a vibrant part of college at UL-Lafayette. PKT, as it is affectionately known, is proud of its history as the oldest national fraternity on campus.

The requirements the fraternity was founded on are: honor to God and our fellow man, as well as scholastic excellence. Year after year, PKT upholds these values in all of our competitions pursued. For the past 10 years, the chapter has placed in the top three positions for Homecoming Sweepstakes. Furthermore, the brothers have been leaders in Greek Intramural Athletics for the past twelve seasons.

The highest award on campus is the Dean's Award. It is presented to the fraternity that has excelled in scholastics, campus involvement, interrelations with other Greek organizations, and community service. For several years, PKT has received this outstanding award. Competitions are exciting and fun, but there comes a time to party! PKT offers many opportunities - socials with sororities, the annual South Seas and Heaven-n-Hell parties, TGIF, and the annual Columbine Formal.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

"The True Gentleman is the man whose conduct proceeds from good will and an acute sense of propriety, and whose self-control is equal to all emergencies; who does not make the poor man conscious of his poverty, the obscure man of his obscurity, or any man of his inferiority or deformity;who is himself humbled if necessity compels him to humble another; who does not flatter wealth, cringe before power, or boast of his own possessions or achievements; who speaks with frankness but always with sincerity and sympathy; whose deed follows his word; who thinks of the rights and feelings of others, rather than his own; and who appears well in any company, a man with whom honor is sacred and virtue safe."

- John Walter Wayland

"The True Gentleman" by John Walter Wayland serves as the creed of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity, and for almost three quarters of a century, our Brothers have been guided by these simple but powerful words. They have inspired us in times of discouragement, guided us in times of confusion, humbled us at our moments of great achievement, and bonded us across all distance and time. In many ways, the words penned by John Walter Wayland are Sigma Alpha Epsilon, to members and non-members alike. No other piece of writing captures so completely our intentions and standards; no other work sums up so concisely what we stand for, aspire to, and work toward in everything we do.

Sigma Nu

The Sigma Nu Fraternity was founded at Virginia Military Institute in 1869 on the basis of Love, Truth and Honor. The Eta Nu chapter has been on the UL of Lafayette campus for nearly 40 years, and has remained one of the largest fraternities here. Sigma Nu has the largest rush class every semester with upwards of 75 active members - the most on the row by far. We have the largest house on the row and the largest amount of members living on the row. As our numbers continue to grow, the quality of our members will never drop.

We have had the highest GPA on the row two years running. We have won the Inter-Fraternities All-Sports trophy six out of the last ten years, and are currently in possession of the trophy. Last year we were undefeated in every sport, every tournament, and every game in the all sports tournament.

Year after year, we have the largest party of the Spring called the End of the World. We also remain the only fraternity to have an out-of-state formal and are currently planning on going to Gulf Shores.

Some of the things we participate in are Up Till Dawn, the MDA Summer Camp, United Way Blood Drive, Food Net Drive, and The Knights of Columbus's "Christmas in April" - a program designed to repair the homes of the underprivileged in the community.

TKE

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Tau Kappa Epsilon, Fraternity of kings and presidents.

Tau Kappa Epsilon was founded on January 10, 1899 at Illinois Wesleyan University and has since become one of the largest international fraternities in the world. The Omicron Chapter was founded at UL-Lafayette in 1974, and was re-chartered in 1993. Today TKE is one of the leading Greek organiztions on campus, adding success to the fraternity as a whole. Tekes have held past positions as SGA president, Greek Council president and vice president, UPC members, as well as several SGA senators and committee members. Tau Kappa Epsilon is building a reputation, not resting on one.

Tau Kappa Epsilon is also an active force within the community. We participate annually with our national philanthropy, the Special Olympics. Within the community, Tekes volunteer with St. Joseph's Diner, Big Brothers of Acadiana, Goodwill, and the Salvation Army. TKE has completed more community service hours than any other fraternity on campus for the past four years.

TKE also knows how to have a good time. With Homecoming, Tiki Island, Red Carnation Ball, Hell Party, Toga Party, and sorority socials, Tekes know how to have fun!

Tau Kappa Epsilon, the choice to belong, the challenge to become.

Lambda Chi Alpha

The Brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha embody the prestige and honor of being part of one of the greatest Greek organizations in the nation. These privileges are not given to just anyone, but only to those who are committed to bring out the best in themselves and others. Lambda Chi Alpha was founded on the UL Lafayette campus in 1963.

On campus, Lambda Chis are active in many organizations and functions. The chapter has members in the Union Program Council, Student Government Association, Inter-Fraternity Council, and Greek Council. The brothers placed highly in the All Sports Championship, won the IFC Softball tournament, and tied for first place in the Homecoming Sweepstakes. Lambda Chi also sponsors a week called Watermelon Bust, in which sororities compete against each other in athletic, spirit, and philanthropic contests.

Lambda Chi encourages leadership skills through its Impact Leadership program. Impact Leadership is a program that inspires passion and challenges in the development of dynamic people who impact their lifetime communities through values-based leadership. It is one of the most comprehensive and interactive leadership modules available to collegiate men. This program is a four-phase, multiyear module that focuses on an interactive approach to leadership. Since its introduction, Impact Leadership has reached nearly 1,200 undergraduate members.

Lambda Chi Alpha is one of the largest men's general fraternities in North America with more than 227,000 initiated members and subsidiaries at more than 300 universities. It was the first fraternity to eliminate pledging and remains a leader in the fight against hazing, alcohol abuse, and other challenges facing today's college students. Lambda Chi Alpha serves to complement higher education by providing opportunities for academic achievement, leadership development, and lifelong friends.

The spirit of WAW continues . . .

Thank You

Danielle Alsandor : Editor-in-Chief

Wow what a year - for our nation, our university and for me. As I make an effort to express gratitude and thanks to all the people who have helped in the production of this yearbook, I want everyone to know that this was truly a team effort. And the only way it was all possible was through God. When stories were not done, more information was needed, pictures needed to be taken at the last minute, layout was stressed and somehow, someway everything was soon done and ready to go (although sometimes late), it was Him. He gave us that extra strength, energy and time to complete our task. He placed good people in our path to help guide and assist us in this book's production. So first of all thank you God.

I became editor of L'Acadien in spring 2002 after Uyen Kim Bui graduated in fall 2001. She began the process of this book and passed it on to me - Thank You. This has been a very busy semester of trying to get this book done. Thank you for believing in me and seeing something in me. May you have a successful and blessed life.

It is quite a difficult task to try to compile all of the major events that occur at UL Lafayette and in the Lafayette area in an academic year into 400 pages. Yet we manage and also highlight national events. They are important to us as well, for no one will forget the tragedy of Sept. 11 and how it has affected our country and its citizens.

However it is from unexpected occurrences that people grow and are able to fully realize who is behind them and evaluate what really matters in life. This past spring I suffered a setback that prevented me from being actively involved in things for quite some time. Yet, the tremendous amount of help, support and encouragement I received during and after this period is to be commended. So it is with all the events and emotions I have experienced that I attempt to say thanks.

To my family: No amount of words or flamboyant adjectives can express my total appreciation. Daddy, you have always been there for me and you do whatever it takes to help me and Davonia. You are a true dad, and not just dad, but mom-dad. I love you and thank you. To my big sister Davonia, we have the strongest relationship I know. Thanks for...everything.

To all of my family: grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins - the names are numerous, thank you. Thank you for your support and concern for my well-being. All of those house visits and long distance phone calls were much needed and appreciated.

To my friends both near and far, thanks! Hearing a concerned voice with whom I could share happiness, excitement, anger and sorrow with made life more full. Mary Pickney, Heather Richard and Roger Timber, thanks for your constant support. Mary, you were more than a roommate, but you are a true friend. Roger, your jokes bring me laughter. Thank you for listening and having an extra shoulder when I need one.

This academic year I experienced the awesome character of UL Lafayette's professors, and administration. Their willingness to help in any way shows that they care. Two thumbs up!

Thanks to Mr. Lucien Gastineau. You have been so much more than an advisor, you have been our friend. You always make time for us in your busy schedule. Between the chaos that surrounds parking and transit and changing the id system, you have managed to return calls and be available when decisions needed to be made, papers needed signing or to tell us who to contact for what. Thanks also to the parking and transit staff for delivering countless messages.

Thank you Ms. Suzy. I was new to the whole system and you eagerly welcomed me and answered many questions. And thank you Ms. Sandra Bonin for all your help, we appreciate it.

To my staff - what can I say but, WE DID IT!! Thanks to all of the writers, photographers and layout artists for your many contributions to Digitally Remastered.

A very special thanks to Danyelle Jumonville (Layout Editor) for doing hundreds of pages and working for almost half the semester by herself. I know it has been rough, but the end result is much worth it You've got skills!

Maria Garcia, you have had a memorable semester! Thanks for finding time to edit dozens of stories and give great story topics and on top of that dealing with the Greek section. Good luck on your career! You will succeed in whatever you do. You will be missed.

Rick Garneau you have helped me in my transition to editor by taking great pictures and suggesting good ideas. While I was out you and Danyelle helped things keep going. Thank you!

Sports is Kyle Libersat's area. Thanks for keeping up with all of the sports news and highlights. Glad to have you for another year!

Kristen Avilas and Blaise Beniot you saved our butts. Thanks for writing numerous stories, some of which were at the last minute. Kristen I am sorry to see you go, but congrats on graduation & I wish you all the luck!

Deborah McElligot and Camille Kelly, thank you! Your great personalities, stories and your willing to help out in anyway when needed is appreciated.

Jeff Chambers, thanks for great pics. Despite your class at meeting time you turned in assignments on time and were always available. Good luck with your photography business!

Photographers Gerald "Ghe" Rhodes, Cameron Odom, and Mandy Migues many thanks. You all have brought laughter to staff as well as great pics, thanks. See yall next year!

Michelle Young and Stephanie Reed I can not thank ya'll enough. You truly saved our butts with layout. Your talent and creativity has made this book look cool!

Also Brandon Fayette and Davin Smith joined the layout team and helped in this book's production. The time and creativity you put into your pages shows it. Thanks!

To Charles Ravagalia, Sam Slater and Yokenda Hawkins thanks for your contributions.

Thanks to Christopher Nodd, the "computer guy". Whether you came to the office to repair computers, install software or were instructing us via telephone how to fix problems, you were there - THANKS!

The Colophon:
Technical information about this volume of L'Acadien

The L'Acadien yearbook operates with the freedom of the press and protections of the First Amendment of the United States Constitution. Taylor Publishing Company, 1550 W. Mockingbird, Dallas, TX, 75235, published "Digitally Remastered," volume 83 of L'Acadien,through an open-bid cotract with the University of Louisiana at Lafayette office of purchasing.

The book was designed using Macintosh computers. In house graphic designers, under the supervision on the editor-in-chief, designed all layouts. Quark Express 4.0, Adobe Illustrator 7.0.1 and Adobe Photoshop 6.0 were used for computer illustrations, art work and type effects. All pictures were scanned into Photoshop using an in-house Microtek Scanmaker L3, Umax Astra 1200S scanner and a Minolta Quickscan 35mm negative scanner.

All information was sent to Taylor on Iomega Zip 100 megabyte disks and Verbatim CD-RW 650mb compact disks for reproduction and binding. The book was printed using offset lithography.

Type faces used included the theme standards Impact, Charcoal, Geneva, and Verdana in addition to numerous others.

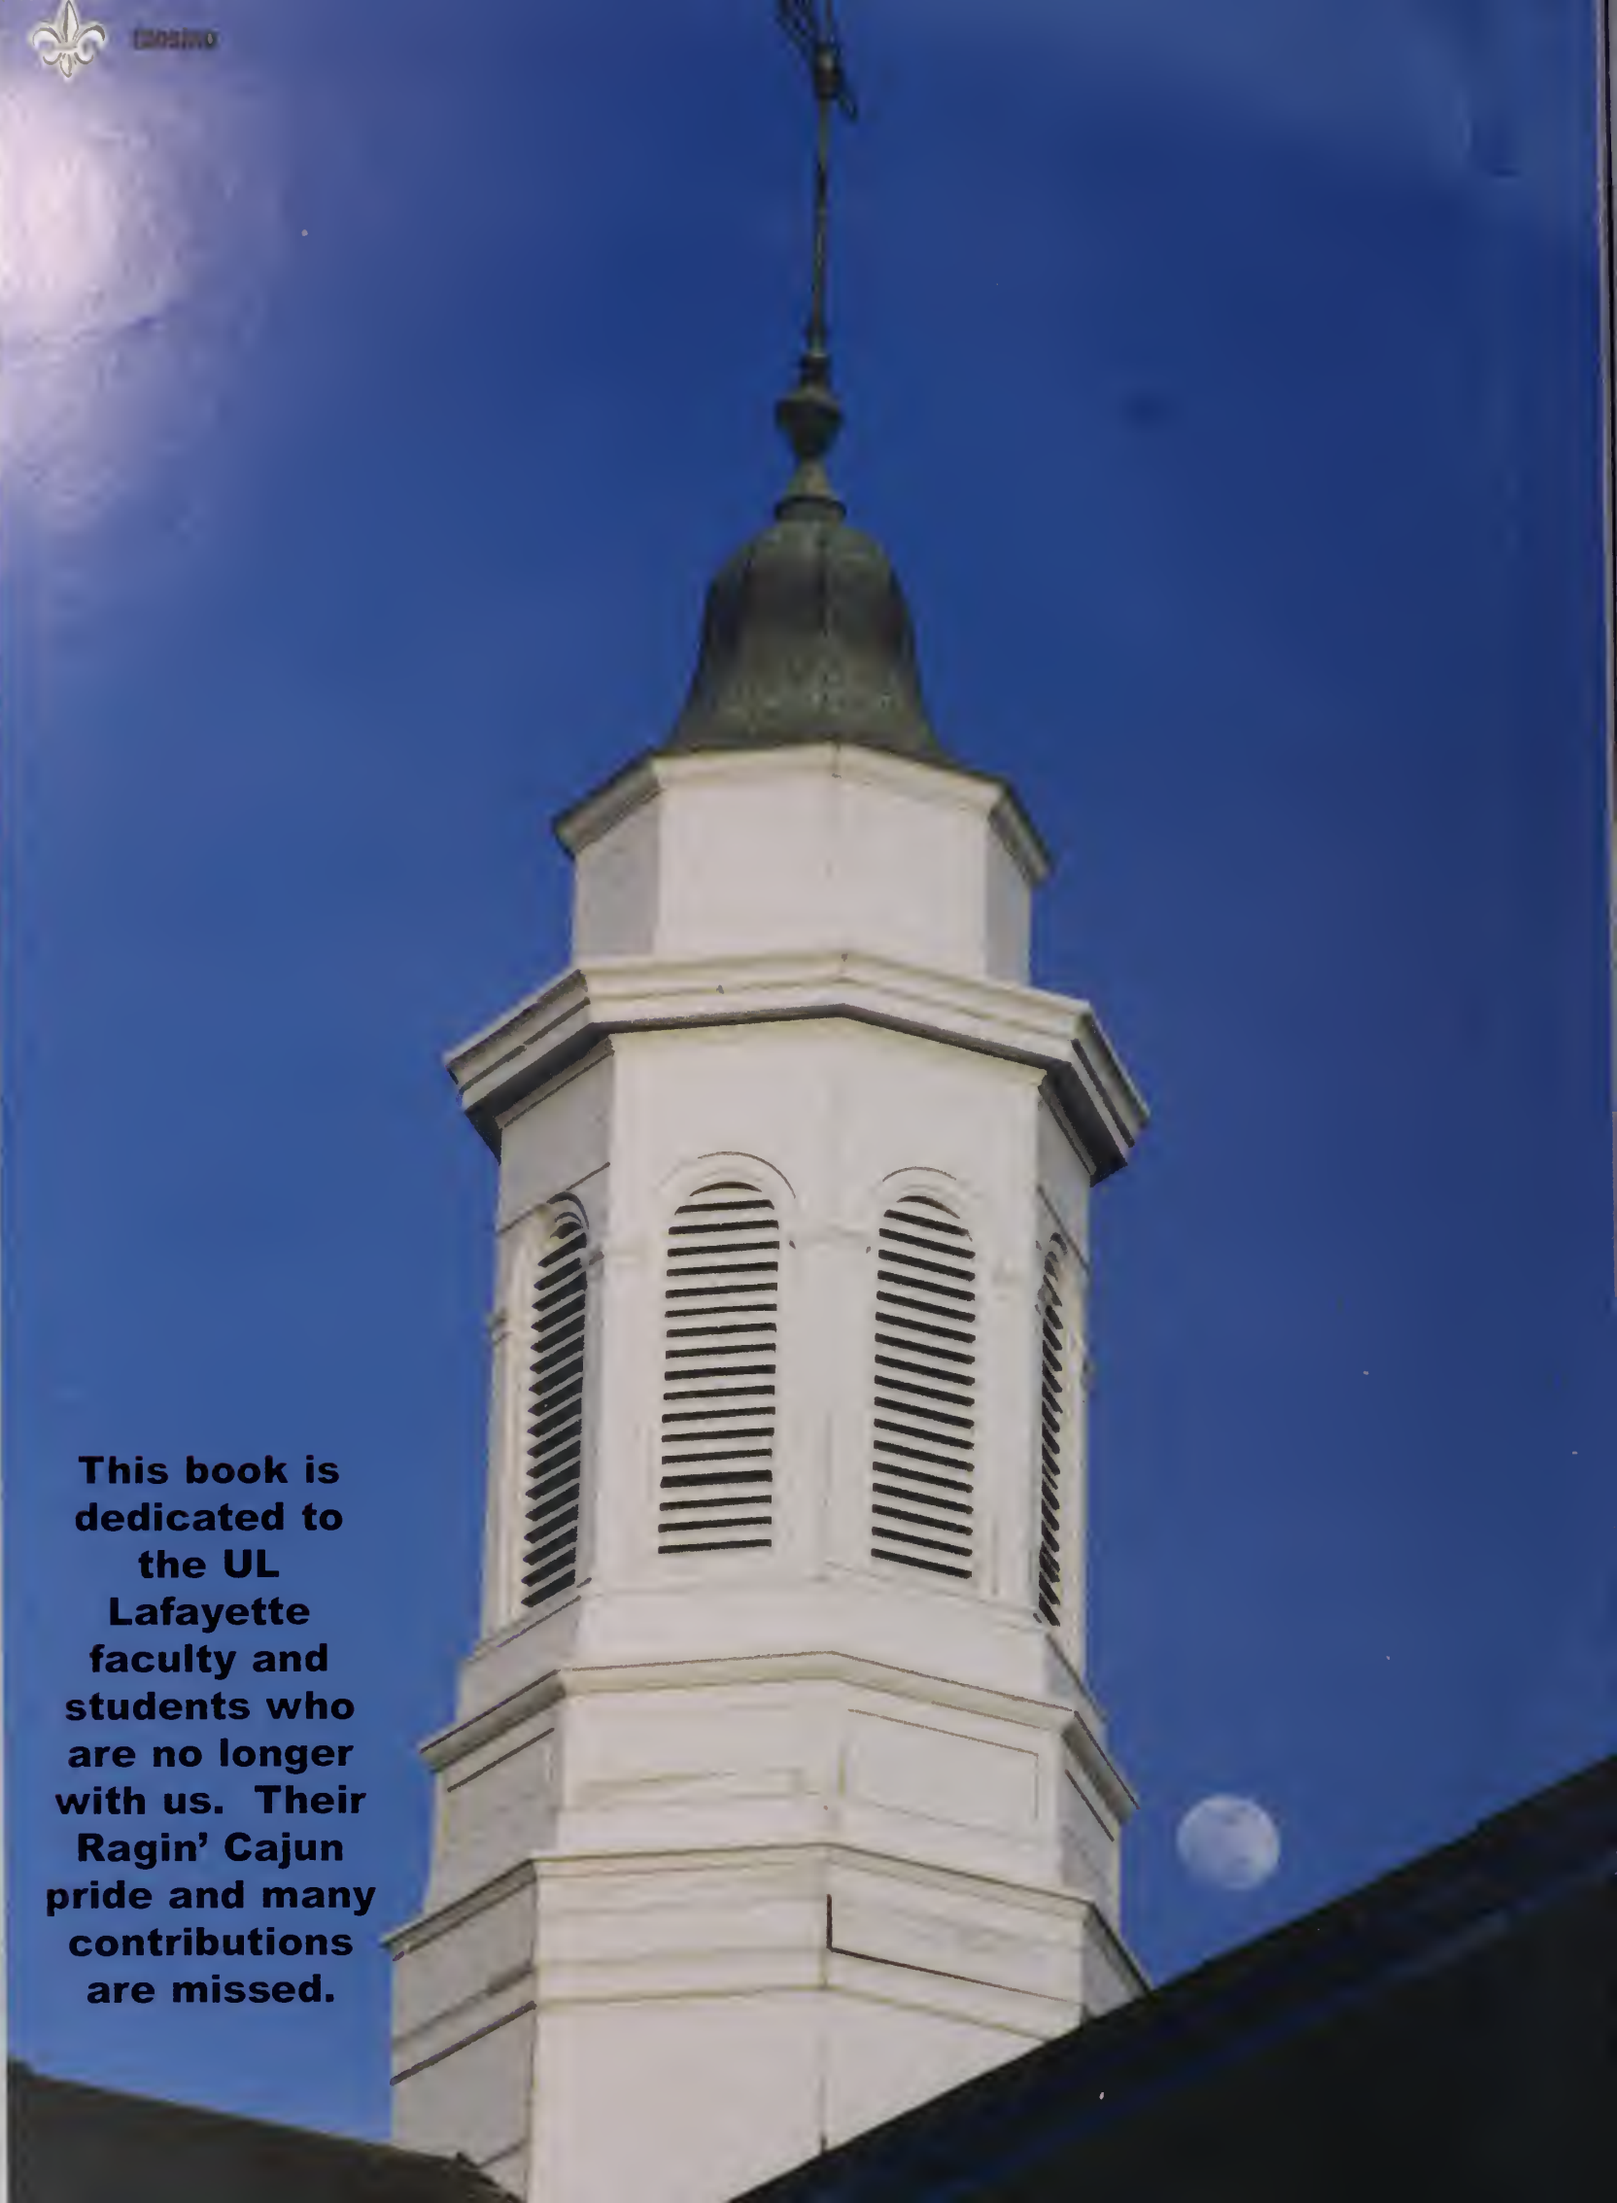

The cover design was developed in conjuction with the layout editor, photography editor, and editor-in-chief.

The editor-in-chief assigned copy to staff and contributing writers. Section editors and the editor-in-chief proofed all copy for submission to the publishing company.

Section editors, the editor-in-chief and layout designers selected all photos. Staff members and contributing photographers shot all photographs, and local processing services developed all photographs. UL Lafayette Parking an d Transit Office, in conjuction with the student identification card process, submitted all student and faculty portraits. Sorority and fraternity group shots were either taken by staff, submitted by members of the organization, or submitted by national composite picture companies. Missing group or Greek organizations did not make an appointment or did not turn in a photo after repeated requests.

The 2001-2002 L'Acadien, volume 83, is copyrighted and may not be reproduced in any form, except for educational purposes, without prior written permission of the current editor-in-chief, the UL Lafayette Communications Committee and the UL Lafayette Vice President of Student Affairs.
